MILLS' WIDOW IS WITNESS AT MURDER TRIAL

Woman Starts to Tell of "Suspicious Actions" as Court Adjourns.

DEFENSE SAYS PISTOL WAS OWNED BY TROUT

Former Farm Hand Fails to Identify Robertson as Employer's Slayer.

(By a Staff Correspondent.)

Frederick, Md., Oct. 22.—The Mills murder trial was left high in the air here at 4:45 o'clock this afternoon when court was adjourned until 9:30 o'clock tomorrow morning.

Mrs. Bertha Mae Mills, widow of the murdered Edward L. Mills, Montgomery County dairy farmer, was on the witness stand and had just said something about hearing of "suspicious actions," the nature of which she did not reveal, when an objection was registered and court was adjourned.

H. Dorsey Etchison, counsel for Samuel T. Robertson, the Bethesda building contractor, accused of first-degree murder, had asked Mrs. Mills in cross-questioning if she had told all she knew of the break of day shooting of her husband in a field on his farm July 7, 1927.

Mrs. Mills replied that she had described all her actions and told all she saw of the murder, but added a phrase about "suspicious actions."

To whom she was referring was not brought out before adjournment. If she is allowed, she may make herself clear on resuming her place on the stand tomorrow morning.

The first day of the trial, which is expected to last a week, was given over to the selection of a jury, which was accomplished at the morning session, the delivery of opening statements by the State and defense and the taking of testimony of several witnesses at the afternoon session.

Son Also Testifies.

Preceding Mrs. Mills on the witness stand were her son, Paul; Clarence H. Miles, a farm hand, the only eyewitness of the shooting; Joseph M. Starkey, Montgomery County surveyor; Theodore F. Bolten, a photographer; Dr. William T. Pratt, who performed the autopsy, and William R. Pumphrey, a Rockville undertaker.

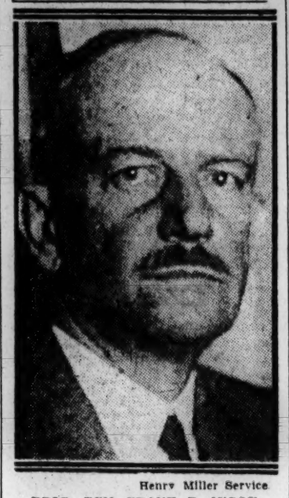

The testimony of Mrs. Mills, Paul Mills and Miles all was to the effect that the murder took place between 4:30 and 5 o'clock on a foggy morning. Miles testified he saw a man approach Mills from a woody patch on the farm, say "good morning, Mr. Mills," and then as the latter replied good morning, Mr ——began shooting.

The courtroom of the Frederick County Courthouse was filled nearly the entire day by residents of Frederick and a large group of Montgomery County farmers and citizens of the Rockville-Bethesda neighborhood, where both Mills and Robertson lived and where the murder was committed. Friends and relatives of both families were in court.

Robert B. Peter, jr., State's Attorney of Rockville, outlined the evidence which the State plans to present and Stedman Prescott, of Rockville, of defense counsel, made the opening state-

TELLS OF BANDITS

BRIG. GEN. FRANK R. M'COY.

NEW BANDIT LEADER ACTIVE IN NICARAGUA

(United Press.)

A new "bandit gang" in Nicaragua under the leadership of Pedro Altamirano, described as a trusted lieutenant of the rebel leader Sandino, is held responsible for the recent murders of several Nicaraguan residents in a report made yesterday to Secretary of State Kellogg from Brig. Gen. Frank R. McCoy, president of the American electoral mission in Nicaragua.

The report was brought here by Col. Francis Lejeune Parker, vice chairman of the electoral mission, who has just returned from Jinotega, the Nicaraguan province where the murders were perpetrated. His report was made after an extensive investigation of Altamirano's activities.

The new bandit leader's object, Col. Parker's report said, "is to terrorize inhabitants and, if possible, keep them from registering and from the election." The Nicaraguan election, to be held early in November, is to be supervised by the electoral mission with the aid of United States marines.

The murders, the report disclosed, were committed at San Marcos and in several other small villages in Jinotega, which region for a time was the center of Sandino's activities. Other than mentioning that Altamirano was a "trusted lieutenant" of Sandino, the report gave no indication of whether Sandino was still active in Nicaragua.

The report went into detail about "the most revolting cruelty" of the murders, and told how Altamirano had released some of his captives "on the condition they spread the warning among other inhabitants that he, returning October 24, would kill all who attempted to vote November 4."

San Marcos is described by Col. Parker as an isolated village some miles from the nearest marine registration post precinct.

Previous reports to the State Department from Brig. Gen. McCoy have indicated he expected the election to be held November 4 without serious difficulty. He has expressed confidence in the ability of the American marine force and the Nicaragua guardia to maintain order.

CAR FARE RAISE APPEAL IS LOST, VIEWS INDICATE

Utilities Board to Wait on Congress' Action, Reports Add.

BRAND AIDS LADUE OPPOSE INCREASES

Bride Smooths Out Legal Points at Conference; Problems Remaining.

Street car fares will not be raised, it was indicated at the conclusion of a two-hour executive session of the Public Utilities Commission yesterday. Whether the utilities commission will dismiss the application of the Capital Traction Street Car Co. for a 10-cent cash fare, with four tokens for 30 cents, has not been finally determined. The commission may simply let the question remain dormant pending the disposition of the street car merger question by Congress.

In any event, the session yesterday, while it did not result in a final decision, left the situation more favorable to the street car riders than it has been at any other time since the move to dismiss the higher fare petition, because the company did not prove an "emergency," was defeated.

Col. William B. Ladue is understood to have found stronger support for his plan to deny the fare increase, because, he held, the Washington Railway & Electric Co. is not entitled to it and the Capital Traction Co. has said it would not accept the higher fare unless its competitor got it too.

Corporation Counsel William W. Bride, general counsel of the commission, again yesterday was closeted with members of the commission, discussing, he said, "legal points" on which his opinion was asked by commission members.

Bride Explains Opinion.

Bride is understood to be the author of the plan advocated by Col. Ladue, and to insist that the proposed action is legally sound, and can be defended in the courts, should the Capital Traction Co. seek to have it upset.

Harrison Brand, jr., vice chairman of the commission, reported to have lined up with Ladue although insisting that there still are many angles which the commission must consider carefully.

The question of what is the practical course entered the discussion yesterday and, it is understood, it was consideration of this aspect which gave support to the proposal to let the matter remain dormant. Such a course, it is believed would not give the company any very good ground on which to challenge the commission, or to institute court action in the near future.

The question of a new valuation of the Capital Traction Co. seems, for the moment at least, to be subordinate. John W. Childress, chairman of the commission, is said to have argued that there are only two courses open to the body, to grant the increased fare on the basis of the 1925 court valuation or to dismiss the company's plea on one or another legal ground.

None of Questions Settled.

None of the questions revolving around the proposed fare increase have been settled by a vote of the commission members and the present status of the discussion may be changed at the next meeting, it is said. Nevertheless, opponents of a fare increase at this time were happy last night in the conviction that the possibility of the increase was dimmer than at any time since the Capital Traction Co. raised the issue.

When the question will be settled definitely has not been determined. The commission ended its car fare meeting yesterday without deciding when it will again take up the question.

The commission is holding daily hearings on gas valuations, and another car fare meeting is hardly possible without interrupting these. The commission has fixed Thursday as a regular meeting day to consider general matters and car fares may come up then.

BRITAIN BARES FRENCH NAVAL PACT IN DETAIL

London Accepted Views of Paris on Army Status to Win Sea Accord.

WASHINGTON TREATY RECOGNIZED AS BASIC

Proposal Fixed Four Classes of Vessels to Be Limited at Arms Conference.

London, Oct. 22 (A.P.).—A full history of the inception and negotiation of the naval compromise between France and Great Britain, which has been the object of so much contention, suspicion and conjecture, has at last been published by the British Foreign Office.

The fact that the government has so long and persistently withheld the matter from the public, despite strong press demands for publication, led to all kinds of reports of secret clauses. These reports appear to have had little basis beyond the fact that the British government has given reluctant recognition of the French views with regard to army reserves as the price of securing a naval agreement.

Lord Cushendon, acting foreign minister, in the absence of Sir Austen Chamberlain, explains that the only reason of withholding publication of the papers was the fear of embarrassing other governments by what might have seemed an attempt to force their hand.

Text of Pact Published.

The publication of the papers at this juncture is regarded by the press and the public as having historic rather than immediate importance, as the terms of agreement are being opposed by the United States and Italy and the compromise is considered already dead.

The text of the agreement follows:

"Limitations which the disarmament conference will have to determine will deal with four classes of warships:

"1. Capital ships, that is, ships of over 10,000 tons or with guns of more than 8-inch caliber.

"2. Aircraft carriers of over 10,000 tons.

"3. Surface vessels of or below 10,000 tons, armed with guns of more than 6-inch and up to 8-inch caliber.

"4. Ocean going submarines, that is, over 600 tons.

Cites Washington Treaty.

"The Washington treaty regulates limitations in classes one and two and the disarmament conference will only have to consider the method of extending these limitations to powers nonsignatory to this treaty.

"As regards classes three and four the final disarmament conference will fix a maximum tonnage applicable to all powers, which no power will be allowed to exceed for the total of vessels in each of these respective categories during the period covered by the convention. Within this maximum limit each power will at the final conference indicate for each of these categories the tonnage they propose to reach, and which they undertake not to exceed during the period covered by the convention."

The compromise, or agreement itself, is quite a brief document, but the white paper consists of 45 pages, starting with a large number of extracts of speeches delivered at the meetings of the preparatory commission on disarmament by the statesmen of different nationalities, leading up to the break between the British and French governments and the opening of a new pourparlers last March in an effort to arrive at some sort of a compromise.

Stand on Armies Discussed.

The different standpoints of the two governments on the question of land armaments came to the front in the record of a conversation between M. Briand and Sir Austen Chamberlain on March 9, 1928 in the course of a discussion about the coming meeting of the preparatory commission. Here Sir Austen expressed regret that on two crucial military and naval questions the French and British were diametrically opposed.

British public opinion, said Sir Austen, with its traditions, believed that voluntary armies were defensive and that conscript armies implied offensive war, whereas he was fully aware that to the French mind compulsory military service seemed a guarantee of pacific policy, and a voluntary army appeared in the dangerous light of a Pretorian guard.

The British foreign secretary then acquainted M. Briand with the modified proposals for naval limitation drafted by the British admiralty, and added that public opinion realized that concessions were necessary from all parties in order to arrive at a general settlement.

Naval Concession Sought.

"If we could point to a concession by the French in naval matters," he said, "it would probably acquiesce in my yielding a point on the military side. On the other hand, we could not abandon the British standpoint on the question of army reserves unless we could justify this concession by pointing to a similar (Staff Corrsepondent of The Post).

Madison Square Garden, New York, Oct. 22.—Herbert Hoover closed his campaign in the East tonight with a smashing assault on Gov. Alfred E. Smith's program for handling prohibition, farm relief and water power. He did not mention him by name, but there was no doubt that the governor was his target.

He charged that "our opponents" have abandoned the tenets of the Democratic party and now would turn to "State socialism" and beauracracy as a solution of these three issues.

There has been presented to the American people, he said, a fundamental principle—whether the country shall accept the paternalistic and destructive program of the Democrats or hold fast to the policy of "rugged individualism" sponsored by the Republicans.

Hoover delivered this, the most forceful speech of his campaign in Tex Rickard's new Madison Square Garden. He stood on a platform pitched near the spot where the prize ring usually stands, and no newly-crowned champion ever precipitated such cheering and tumult.

22,000 Shout Big Ovation.

As he followed Vice President Charles G. Dawes to the microphone the 22,000 men and women in the huge building leaped to their feet, waved tiny flags aloft and cheered him for fully 10 minutes. And they stopped then only because he begged them with his eyes and upraised hand to cease.

Could this be the New York of "sidewalks" fame, the admiring hometown of Al Smith? Hoover must have found it hard to believe that it was.

Senator George H. Moses, of New Hampshire, had been warned that Democratic hecklers would try to harass Hoover, but nothing like this happened.

A man in the gallery yelled "Hurray for Al Smith" early in the rally and a minute later found himself out on the sidewalk. It was reported that a number of men had planned to cheer for Smith, but lost their nerve in the face of such rampant Republicanism.

Hoover wore the look of a man confident of victory as he lashed away at Gov. Smith. He had been assured during the day that his election was assured, indeed, he openly predicted as much himself in a press conference.

Decries Government in Business.

The series of proposals made by the Democrats, he told the crowd tonight, would mean the abandonment of the American system of individual initiative and a surrender to the destructive program of government in business.

When he asked if the people were going to abandon the American system, there were loud cries of "no," "no."

"Because," he said, "the country is faced with difficulty and doubt over certain national problems—that is, prohibition, farm relief and electrical power—our opponents propose that we must thrust government a long way into the business which give rise to these problems.

"In effect they abandon the tenets of their own party and turn to State

CHRISTENDOM UNION HELD CHURCH IDEAL

Episcopal Bishops in Joint Session With Delegates in Memorial Hall.

FAITH HEALING INDORSED

A united Christendom as the goal toward which all churches should work was the ideal evolved at a joint session of the House of Bishops and the House of Deputies of the General Convention of the Protestant Episcopal Church in Memorial Continental Hall yesterday afternoon.

Earlier in the day the House of Bishops had received from a joint commission of the two houses a report that Christian healing is no longer an experiment, but is of unquestioned value. Three members of the commission were physicians of national repute—Dr. Charles H. Mayo, of Rochester, Minn.; Dr. Howard Johnson, of San Francisco and Dr. W. Sinclair Bowen, of this city.

The joint session of the House of Bishops and the House of Deputies was called to consider the question of Christian unity, world faith and order and young people's work. Reports were heard from several churchmen who attended the Lausanne conference on faith and order summer before last. The joint session was presided over by the Most Rev. John Gardner Murray, presiding bishop of the Church.

In addition, a discussion took place on the plans of the national commission on evangelism for the nation-wide campaign of 1929.

Last night the bishops took a holiday from legislative cares and were the guests at dinner of Bishop Freeman of Washington and the dean and chapter of Washington Cathedral, at the Chevy Chase Club.

Gen. John J. Pershing, who was one of the few guests outside of the bishops

MAN KILLED, 3 HURT IN HIGHWAY CRASH

Manslaughter Charged After Sedan Strikes Truck in Maryland.

ROAD WORKER CRUSHED

One man was killed, a man and two women were sent to the hospital and another man was charged with manslaughter as the result of a crash late yesterday involving a heavy sedan and two trucks on the Rockville pike about 2 miles from Bethesda.

The dead man was George Amerien, of Cabin John. The injured women are Mrs. Myer Cohen, wife of Myer Cohen, of the law firm of Wolf & Cohen, who lives at 1868 Columbia road northwest, and her companion, Miss Agnes Anderson. They were taken to Waverly Sanitarium, suffering from shock.

Their chauffeur, Robert Crawford, colored, was taken to Bethesda police station, where he was charged with manslaughter and later released on $1,500 bond. Another negro, Fred Grice, was taken to Georgetown Hospital with a fractured leg and fractured collarbone.

The trucks, owned by the McDermott Construction Co., were parked one behind the other, about 1 foot off the road, when Mrs. Cohen's sedan crashed into the back of the rear truck, pushing it forward so that it crushed to death America, who was working between the trucks.

All three machines were headed toward Rockville. Grice, the driver of the rear truck, was thrown into a ditch. The sedan skidded about 150 feet before the crash. Occupants of the Cohen car said there were no lights on the truck.

Spectators said America was crushed beyond recognition. His body was taken to Pumphrey's undertaking establishment in Rockville.

Erstwhile 'Desert Rat' Wins Copper Invention Millions

Supreme Court Refusal to Review Suit Aids G. C. Carson.

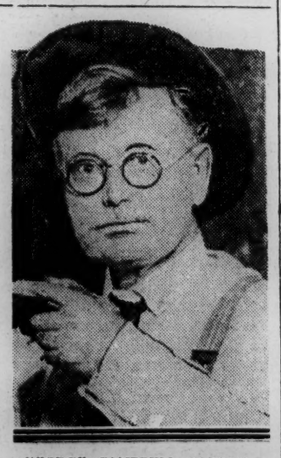

San Francisco, Oct. 22 (A.P.).—An old-time "desert rat," George Campbell Carson, after years of litigation with copper companies over a patent used in smelting furnaces, is at last to reap a reward of millions from his invention, his attorneys said today.

Refusal of the United States Supreme Court to review the decision of the Ninth Circuit Court of Appeals in Carson's patent infringement case against the Anaconda and other copper companies means, his attorneys said, that the one-time prospector and inventor is in a position to collect approximately $20,000,000 from the companies. The invention claimed by Carson is said to be used almost universally in the copper industry.

Carson will not receive all the money expected to be recovered, however, as he was too poor to finance the litigation, and assigned his rights to the Carson Investment Co. in which a group of San Francisco capitalists are interested. However, he is a stockholder, with the result that he will have a good share of the potential millions.

Attorneys for the inventor declared that Carson, who is 60 years old, would very soon be a multimillionaire.

Carson's suit against the Anaconda Copper Co. was begun in the United States District Court in Montana and decided against him. It was appealed and the circuit court sustained Carson. It was the Anaconda case which the Supreme Court today declined to review. Carson came to San Francisco virtually without funds. He was an old prospector of wide experience. He was self-educated, but had a good grounding in chemistry. At first he could find no one who would take an interest in his case.

GEORGE CAMPBELL CARSON.

Finally Rudolph Spreckels, San Francisco banker, saw merit in Carson's claims, and formed the Carson Investment Co. to finance the litigation. The investment company spent $300,000 in the legal fight, but expects to obtain in all aproximately $20,000,000. Carson sold some of his interest in his prospects to raise funds. He married some time ago, and lives in Los Angeles.

Burns Kill Woman, Husband Arrested

Police Quiz Man on Failure to Rescue Wife When Home Was Ablaze.

Mrs. Lila Smith died last night at Casualty Hospital as the result of burns which she received early yesterday when her home at 205 Eighth street northeast was wrecked by fire.

Her husband, Sidney Smith, 57 years old, is being held for investigation by police of the Ninth Precinct, who are questioning him in connection with his story of discovering the flames and his subsequent actions.

Firemen rescued Mrs. Smith from a room on the second floor of the home, where she was found in an unconscious condition and suffering from serious burns and scalds.

Smith was arrested by police while standing out in front of his home watching the fire. Smith told police that he was reading a paper about 1 o'clock, smelled the smoke and found a davenport on the first floor on fire. Notifying his wife, he said he then ran to the street to get assistance.

Big Mob Defends Woman Against Tax Collectors

State Police Disperse Crowd of 500 Which Menaces Officers Who Arrest Mother of 8—Hysterical, She Is Freed.

Lansford, Pa., Oct. 22 (A.P.).—State police were called to Summit Hill late today to disperse a crowd of 500 men and women who gathered in front of the home of Harry Kline, tax collector, and threatened two detectives who had been charged with using violence in arresting Mrs. Michael Daderko, mother of eight children, because of her alleged failure to pay taxes for 1926 and 1927.

The woman finally was freed and removed to her home in a highly nervous condition, suffering from shock and injuries.

The detectives have been engaged in collecting delinquent taxes from women and where they have met with refusal the, have caused arrests. The community has protested the methods of enforcing collection because in a majority of cases the husbands are unemployed.

Today the officers attempted to serve a dozen warrants, and first called on Mrs. Daderko, who asserted she had paid the taxes, but could not produce the receipts. Forced into a waiting automobile, the woman became hysterical. Crowds quickly gathered and the detectives hurried to the home of the tax collector with hundreds of persons in pursuit.

A call was sent to the State police at Tamaqua and two men responded and dispersed the crowd. In the meantime warrants were served on the detectives, charging assault. They will be given a hearing tomorrow.

The tax collector said tonight that he had no alternative, pointing out that his bondsmen were insisting on clearing his duplicates, while the municipal and board of education bodies were demanding the taxes.

Six women previously arrested, have paid their tax, but there are still nearly 300 who are to be visited by the collectors. An organization, formed at a mass meeting, threatened legal action but the collector said he would continue his efforts to force payment.

socialism as a solution for the difficulties presented by all three.

"It is proposed that we shall change from prohibition to the State purchase and sale of liquor.

Scores Farm Relief Proposal.

"If their agriculture program means anything, it means that the Government shall directly or indirectly buy and sell and fix prices of agricultural products.

"And we are to go into the hydro-electric power business. In other words, we are confronted with a huge program of government in business."

He then called upon the people to decide what they wanted, a program destructive of self-government and initiative, or a continuation of the Republican, or American, policy of equal opportunity and freedom to the individual. This policy, he said, has come nearer to abolishing poverty and fear and want than any in history.

Hoover devoted most of the remainder of his speech to telling what the Republican party has done in the last seven and a half years to foster progress and prosperity. The speech abounded with epigrams, one of which was:

"The slogan of progress is changing from the full dinner pail to the full garage."

Dawes Makes First Speech.

His only reference to religion came when he declared that his conception of America is a land "where every man shall be respected in the faith that his conscience and his heart direct him to follow."

"You're all right, Herbert," an enthusiast in the gallery yelled as Hoover neared the end of his speech, and the nominee smiled.

Vice President Dawes, who preceded Hoover before the microphone, declared that the dominant issue in the campaign is the maintainence of prosperity. And the "average man," realizing this, will vote the Republican ticket two weeks hence. It was Dawes' first speech in this campaign.

So greatly does prosperity overshadow prohibition, he said, that the result of the election will in no way indicate the sentiment of the people toward the liquor question.

Strenuous Day at Hotel.

Although he did not leave the Waldorf-Astoria once until he went to the Garden tonight, Hoover had one of the most strenuous days of his campaign, individuals and delagations besieging his suite throughout the morning and afternoon. Meanwhile a crowd stood on the sidewalk outside the hotel, hoping to catch a glimpse of the nominee. But Hoover was too busy to show himself.

Up at 7 in the morning, Hoover had breakfast an hour later with a "board of strategy" made up of national and State Republican leaders. What the leaders told Hoover or what he told them was not made known, but at the end everybody seemed optimistic.

William H. Hill, chairman of the Hoover-Curtis campaign committee, predicted that Hoover would capture New York's 45 electoral votes by a plurality of 375,000. Hoover, he said, would come to New York City with a plurality of more than 770,000, far more than enough to overcome Gov. Smith's plurality in this city. He said he didn't think that the governor's plurality in the city would exceed 375,000.

While Hoover was breakfasting with the Republican strategists Mrs. Hoover was breaking bread with the members of the women's branch of the engineers Republican national committee. On either side of her sat Mrs. Thomas A. Edison and Mrs. Henry Ford.

Butler Calls on Nominee.

Among those who called on Mrs. Hoover in the morning was Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler, president of Columbia University, who early in the campaign attacked the Republican nominee's views on prohibition.

In a conference with newspapermen after the breakfast, Hoover for the first time in the campaign predicted his own election in November. After praising the Republican workers throughout the country for their zeal, the nominee said:

"I have no doubt about the outcome if our Republican organization continues to work as effectively as it has been working. The only danger is overconfidence."

Hoover announced that he would make a speech in St. Louis on his way to California to vote. Three other cities had been under consideration for this speech, Chicago, Minneapolis and Milwaukee, Republican leaders in Missouri had pleaded with Hoover to speak in St. Louis in an attempt to offset the visit of Gov. Smith to that State.

Replying to questions by newspapermen, Hoover said he was beginning to enjoy campaigning and that he never felt better in his life. He declined to say whether he agreed with Dr. Hubert Work that the people are tired of hearing about the oil cases.

Praises State Candidates.

In the afternoon, Hoover was the honor guest at a luncheon and "pep meeting" in the hotel. Here he again warned against overconfidence in the outcome of the election, and urged the workers not to relax their efforts until the last ballot is in the box on election day. As is his custom when visiting a State, he praised the Republican State ticket, particularly Alonzo D. Houghton, Ambassador to Great Britain, who is running for the United States Senate, and Albert Ottinger, candidate for Governor.

"A Republican majority in the Senate and House," Hoover told the workers "is vitally necessary if the President is to consummate the will of the people and continue the nation on the real road to progress."

Senator George H. Moses, of New Hampshire, predicted that Hoover would be "easy to elect this time, and easier to reelect in 1932." His statement evoked vociferous applause. Laying aside his famous underslung pipe, Vice President Charles G. Dawes declared that the election of Hoover would mean an "old-fashioned progressive Republican administration."

Religious Issue Discussed.

Louis Marshall, famous Jewish lawyer, declared that the Republican party was in no way responsible for the injection of the religious question in the campaign. Hoover, he said, has voiced his hatred of intolerance on several occasions, and it is not fair to hold him responsible for the views of fanatical individuals. The intolerance, he said, is not to be found so much in Republican territory as it is in the solid Democratic South.

Following the luncheon, Hoover received a delegation made up of men who served under him in his relief work in Europe and representatives of 23 countries which he had helped to feed and clothe.

To a delegation of theatrical stars that called on him, Mr. Hoover, in a very human talk, frankly admitted that he envied all those who had been trained to act. The stars, whose salaries combined probably would aggregate more than $1,000,000, were headed by Daniel Frohman.

Mr. Frohman hailed Hoover as an "intellectual liberal," which obviously pleased the candidate.

"I do not know when I have been more touched than on this occasion," Hoover told the delegation, "because of one expression you have used—that is an 'intellectual liberal.' Liberal in America has an interpretation of its own. It has an interpretation in our own institutions, and American liberalism has led others for 150 years.

Receives Group of Girls.

"I would accredit it as the greatest honor I could receive to have been known as an American intellectual liberal.

"I feel very proud at having so fine a reception from your group. I confess the charge chiefly brought against me, and one to which I admit my guilt, is that I, myself, can not act. I often wish I could. I certainly could deliver my own message better if I had some of the qualities of your profession."

Edith Selonic, an 11-year-old singer, made the nominee flush when she sang, "Hoover Is My Weakness Now."

Perhaps the most colorful ceremony of the day was a reception which Mr. Hoover held on the roof of the hotel just before dinner. Twelve little girls, each dressed in the costume of a country which Mr. Hoover has served at one time or another, walked up to him, courtsied, and presented him with flags of the countries they represented.

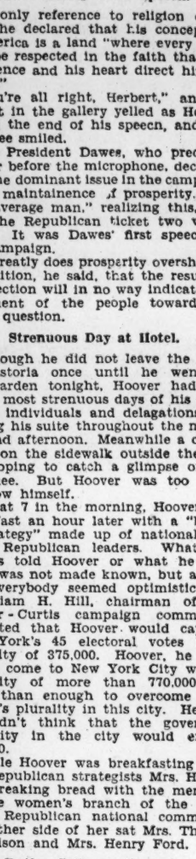

A delegation of disabled war veterans also was received by the nominee. In the receiving line with him were Vice President Dawes, Col. Theodore Roosevelt and Assistant Secretary of War Trubee Davison.

POLICE AGAIN OPEN WALDMAN INQUIRY

IS WITNESS AT HEARING

New York, Oct. 22 (A.P.).—Mrs. Milton S. Waldman, daughter of the late Benjamin Guggenheim, copper magnate, will be among witnesses to be questioned in an inquiry into the death of her two children, killed Friday in a thirteen-story fall from the roof of the Hotel Surrey, Chief Medical Examiner Charles Norris announced today.

Dr. Norris said an investigation of the place of the tragedy had convinced him that an inquiry was warranted "in the interests of all concerned" so that "the facts of this deplorable tragedy may be placed in the official record."

The police, who had listed the children's death as accidental, also reopened their investigation into the case today. They made a survey of the penthouse terrace and questioned employes of the hotel. Mrs. Waldman's physician would not permit them to see her.

The mother, wife of an associate editor of the London Mercury, has been under the care of a physician since the death of the children. On the day of the accident she told police she and her two sons, Terrence, 4 years old, and Benjamin, 14 months old, were seated in the garden of a friend's penthouse apartment atop the hotel.

The older boy, she said, attempted to climb into her lap, knocked the baby from her arms, then lost his balance and both toppled over the edge of the roof.

Dr. Norris said he did not know whether Mrs. Waldman's version of the occurrence had been reported correctly, but that many rumors had sprung up in connection with the case and he thought it fair to the mother that an official inquiry be started to establish the facts.

Roosevelts to Go To Jungles of Asia

Will Explore Territory North of French Indo-China for Museum.

Special to The Washington Post.

Chicago, Oct. 22.—Col. Theodore Roosevelt and Kermit Roosevelt are to lead another zoological expedition for the Field Museum of Natural History to obtain rare animals in certain virtually unexplored mountains and jungles of southeastern Asia, it was announced today by Stephen C. Simms, director of the museum.

The expedition is sponsored by William V. Kelley, president of the Miehle Printing Press & Manufacturing Co. It will start a few days after the election. Plans were completed during a recent visit of the Roosevelt brothers to Chicago, when they conferred with Stanley Field, president of the museum; Simms and some of the scientists who will be members of the expedition.

The expedition has two main purposes. The first is to make a collection in a remote part of French Indo-China, where conditions of climate and travel are so difficult that hitherto no comprehensive zoological collecting has been done by scientists. The second is to explore certain territory lying north of Indo-China along the gorges of the Mekong River and abutting on the borders of Burma, Siam and Yunnan.

Slayer Is Doomed; Guard Fills Court

Paul Jaworski, Who Killed Pay Roll Custodian, Calm When Sentenced.

Pittsburgh, Oct. 22 (A.P.).—Paul Jaworski, slayer and notorious bandit who was at large for more than a year after his escape from the Allegheny County Jail here, today was sentenced to die for killing a payroll guard.

Sufferingfrom a bullet wound he received in a battle with Cleveland police who captured him several weeks ago, Jaworski was carried into court. He was composed and seemed unperturbed except for his slightly flushed race. His only words were, "I have nothing to say," spoken in answer to Visiting Judge J. Frank Graf's question before sentence was pronounced.

A heavy guard was stationed in the courtroomand corridors to prevent any attempt to free the slayer. Jaworski received aid from an outside source when he made his sensational escape from jail while awaiting sentence fourteen months ago and county authorities were prepared to cope with any disturbance today. Nearly 100 detectives, deputy sheriffs and patrolmen lined the courtroom walls and the corridors.

Woman's Bones, Gems Found in Burned Home

Butler, Pa., Oct. 22 (A.P.).—Discovery of a skull and other bones of a woman, a wedding ring and other jewelry in the ashes of an abandoned house that was burned Friday, today brought about an investigation by county authorities.

The house, of log and frame construction, was located about ten miles southeast of here and had been vacant two years. It was in an isolated section of the county. The bones and jewelry were found yesterday and county authorities were notified. Coroner William F. Pohl said the bones were those of a woman. Among the jewelry were two diamond rings. The farm on which the house was located is owned by Mrs. Clara Graham, of Wilkinsburg.

MRS. MILLS ON STAND AT ROBERTSON TRIAL

ment in behalf of the accused man. Peter told the jury that the State, on presentation of its evidence, would expect a verdict of first degree murder against Robertson.

Gun Was Trout's, Says Lawyer.

Peter referred to and later offered as evidence, but did not read or have read a photostatic copy of what has been described as the "obscene" note found pinned to the murdered man's clothing at the shoulder. The State will attempt to prove, he said, that the bullets which killed Mills were from an automatic owned by Robertson and that the note was written on a typewriter owned by Robertson.

Prescott declared the defense would prove to the jury that Robertson is not guilty and is entitled to acquittal. The defense will prove, he said, that Robertson and Mills spoke to each other as Sam and Ed, and not as Mr. Robertson and Mr. Mills. The defense also will prove, he went on, that Robertson did not buy his typewriter until after Mills was slain and that the automatic in question was taken from Wilson Trout, of Glen, during an argument between Robertson and Trout.

All indications were that the trial would develop into one of experts. The State has summoned experts to testify regarding both the Robertson gun and typewriter. Miles, the former farmhand, who now is an inmate of the Maryland House of Correction as the result of a conviction on a charge of larceny, said he did not see the face and could not identify the black-clad man who slew his employer and fastened the note on his clothing.

Can Not Identify Robertson.

Prescott asked Miles, "Is Mr Robertson here the man you saw shoot Mills?"

Miles answered, "I would not say he is the man."

Paul Mills, 19 years old, the next witness, said he was in the dairy barn at the farm when he heard several shots and Miles came running to tell him someone had shot his father. Young Mills ran out of the barn, he said, in time to see a man straighten up from a bent position over his father and run into the woods nearby. The son then sent the hired man for a physician. Mrs. Mills followed her son on the stand and between sobs, told of running to her husband's side.

Mrs. Robertson, wife of the accused man, also was in court. She had the four Robertson children with her, ranging from 2 to 11 years of age. Mabel Mae, the baby, laughed and seemed to be enjoying it all as the jury was being selected. The defense exercised 19 of the 20 preemptory challenges allowed it, and the State used 7 of its 10.

The jury consists almost entirely of Frederick County farmers, one man, Charles A. Sifford, Frederick, is a coal dealer. Charles F. Rothenhoofer, Frederick, is a dairy farmer, the same as Mills, and J. Calvin Fox is a retired farmer who now lives in Frederick. The other jurors are Joseph H. Hilebrand, John S. Long, Charles D. Wood, Harry C. Crum, Joseph A. Kauffman, Elias E. Shipley, H. C. Boone, Claude C. Lewis and J. William Gaver.

Man, Serving 'Life' Term For Killing Horse, Freed

Pittsburgh, Oct. 22 (A.P.).—Mike Palmero, of McKeesport, isn't going to spend the rest of his days in jail for killing his horse, although Mike had believed his sentence amounted to that. Judge James B. Drew decided today that three months in jail was penalty enough, so Mike was "pardoned."

Mike entered upon his "life" term when he couldn't pay a $20 fine imposed by Alderman James J. Lundie. "Pay the fine," said the alderman "or go to jail until released by due process of law." Lundie admitted he didn't know what the "due process of law" would be, so it seemed life imprisonment was Mike's lot.

The medal will be presented to Hoover next February at the annual national convention of Mining Engineers, of which he is past president. The inscription on the medal reads:

MYSTERY SHOT HITS DRY AGENT IN COURT

Victim in Chicago Comments Casually on Muffled Report Before Collapse.

ATTACK ON HEELS OF RAID

Chicago, Oct. 22 (U.P.).—Thomas Ryan, prohibition agent, was shot and seriously wounded today in the courtroom of Prohibition Commissioner Edwin K. Walker, where the agent was a witness in a liquor raid case.

A thorough search of all persons in the courtroom was made, but no weapon was found and police could give no explanation as to how Ryan had been shot.

Ryan, with his back to an open window, was standing with three other agents on one side of the courtroom. A slight report was heard and some one in the room remarked, "There's a shot."

Ryan said to a companion, "Some one dropped a torpedo," and a few seconds later he collapsed, saying, "I'm shot." He was shot in the back.

Mistaken Identity Considered.

Michael Shannon, patrolman, who took part in the raid involved in the case, said he believed whoever shot Ryan had mistaken the agent's identity and that the bullet probably was intended for himself.

Shannon shot and killed Sylvia Colomba during the raid. He said several men who were in the courtroom when the shot was heard left immediately.

He identified one of the men as a cousin of Colomba.

Ryan had figured in the raid on Wick Beemstorboer's garage and had been called as a witness. His part in the raid, however, officers said, was not important, as he arrived after police had seized all material at the garage.

Thirty Persons Searched.

As soon as it was learned Ryan had been shot all persons still in the courtroom, numbering about 30, were searched and held by police for questioning.

Ryan was unconscious for several minutes, but later regained consciousness. His condition is considered critical.

"All I felt was a slight stinging sensation in the back," he said. "Then I became faint and fell."

Search was being made tonight for Colomba's cousin. Police believe that the man who fired the bullet had hidden a gun in the pocket of his coat and fired through the cloth, which would explain the muffled report.

Girl, Wounded by Dry, Tells About Shooting

Elyria, Ohio, Oct. 22 (A.P.).—Betty Heywood, 22-year-old Elyria girl, was called to the witness stand today, to describe events of the night of September 26 when she was shot by Luis Cicco, Lorain, Ohio, dry agent. Cicco is on trial charged with shooting with intent to wound.

Miss Heywood took the stand shortly before the noon recess, still wearing a bandage around her head. Attorney George Glitsch, counsel for Cicco, said the defense would attempt to prove that Cicco fired at the tires of the automobile in which Miss Heywood was riding, and that there was no "intent to wound." He also criticized "outside interference" with stirring up sentiment against Cicco.

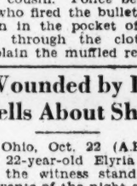

London Is Damaged By Small Tornado

Cafe Windows Crash as Wind Blows Soot Down Chimneys.

London, Oct. 22 (A.P.).—London and much of South England today experienced a miniature tornado and a deluge of rain such as rarely has been recorded here. The storm struck about 7 o'clock. The streets became raging torrents, gusts of wind blew down chimneys, smashed windows and shop signs, and bowled vehicles along the streets.

In the fashionable West End there was complete confusion as dinner-bound parties struggled for taxicabs. In one of the largest hotels the windows of the restaurant crashed and the wind swept the tables clear of linen, plates and food. Soot blew down the chimneys and almost smothered the guests.

Out in the streets the wind was so strong that the most muscular men hardly could hold the doors of movie houses shut against it.

RELIGION BIG ISSUE IN BAY STATE RACE

Walsh Unable to Stem Tide of Feeling on Topic; Keeps Separate Headquarters.

DEMOCRATS LACK FUNDS

By CARLISLE BARGERON.
Staff Correspondent of The Post.

Boston, Oct. 22.—Masachusetts Democrats resemble the well-dressed man who lives at the best hotel, but who sneaks out and takes his meals at a pie counter. That is to say, they have all the earmarks of affluence, but in reality are in dire financial straits.

No small part of two floors of the Statler Hotel are occupied. There are plenty of typewriters, well cushioned, comfortable chairs and well-fed people manning them. But outside of the hotel the Democratic workers are passing the hat at rallies, staging benefit dances and Smith bridge parties. The official explainers say this is just the unique way of the Democrats. It is unique. It suggests the union workers, out on strike too long and with the word from national headquarters that it can supply no more funds.

The situation here is not due to the poverty of Massachusetts Democrats, however, but to a set of circumstances. Massachusetts Democracy was right cocky at the outset of the campaign—and still is, despite its financial plight. Senator David I. Walsh is said, whether it is true or not, to have reared himself here to the stature he assumes when denouncing the Republicans in the Senate and to have declared that Massachusetts could take care of itself and instead of asking for money from New York would give money to it.

New York Keeps Donation.

The latter seems to have been done and it is New York's disinclination to give any of the money back that now has the Democrats dancing and playing cards when they should be giving all their time to more serious pursuits. Quinn and Donohue, national committeemen and State chairman, respectively, have been to New York on the matter.

In the meantime Democratic activity, while noisy and enthusiastic, is not 100 per cent effective, as compared with that of the Republicans. The latter have 13,000 workers and funds are not troubling them.

This disillusionment experienced by the visitor as regards the Democratic state of finances, is not his only one, however. Another was the discovery that all Bostonians do not necessarily eat beans and still another shattered his belief that the religious issue would not be as intense here as in other States.

A Democratic worker, in fact, expressing his disgust at reported conditions in the South, said confidently: "Well, you won't find anything like that in this State. We are educated."

The State is supposed to be the stronghold of culture, but culture or no culture, religion is the issue of the campaign. There are supplementary issues, such as the tariff, prosperity and prohibition, but they simply afford the campaign graphophones a change of record now and then, not that any close student of the situation believes they will seriously affect the outcome.

Dry Stay With Party.

A conservative Democrat who believes that Smith will emerge the victor, told this reporter that he does not, however, expect him to get any assistance from wet Republicans. The wet Republicans have promised too many times before to come over to the Democrats, he explained, but are yet to do it.

The wet and dry issue was clean cut two years ago, he recalled, between Gaston, the Democratic gubernatorial nominee, and Fuller, the Republican candidate. Gaston is a high type of man, of the Boston inner club crowd; in every way a constructive wet. Fuller, the dry, beat him by 150,000. This vote is not accepted as the measure of the wets and drys, but rather as the fact that wet sentiment in the State is not strong enough to predominate other issues.

As to whether the State as a whole is wet or dry is a serious question among most observers. The margin is certainly close either way.

Suffice to say Gov. Smith's managers are not harping on his wetness as a vote-getting appeal. Neither does Senator Walsh talk about the degree of his own wetness, which the friendly Antisaloon League describes as "moist." This inimitable vote-getter has never made an open play for wet votes, it is said, and the Antisaloon League has never waged aggressive warfare against him. The league's attitude toward him is best shown in its present labeling. Of all the candidates in the present campaign he is the only one described by the league as "moist." The others are definitely wet or dry. There are but a few men like Senator Walsh in public life.

And it is a fact, although he would deny it, that he would rather Gov. Smith not be in this campaign with him. The Smith enthusiasts say the senator is jealous; that he has always been the Democratic prima donna in this State and that he dislikes to give first place on the stage to Smith. In a way this is probably true, but it is not based on the senator's vanity; the feeling comes from a practical political head. He does not mind the governor sitting in the front, but he is afraid of the questions and issues which sit out there with the governor, questions and issues which Walsh has always managed to keep in the background, something that nobody but the amiable Walsh could do. For example, Walsh, although a Catholic, has never made an open play for the Catholic vote. In fact, he has spent no little of his time going around to Protestant congregations assuring them how broad-minded he thinks they are to tolerate him. The senator is one of those fellows who gets along with everybody.

In justice to him, it should be said that he has assumed full responsibility for the Smith campaign. That is, his men are conducting it and the senator speaks for Smith whenever he speaks for himself. But he is also maintaining his own headquarters separate from the national campaign and in several respects there appears to be a conflict. For one thing, there are placards in behalf of his candidacy describing him as the "People's Candidate." Gov. Smith is, of course, the Democrats' candidate, and a lot of Smith Democrats are asking what Walsh means by his distinctive designation.

Is Supporter of Coolidge.

No little of Walsh's bid for votes, too, is based on his support of Coolidge, not antagonism to him. He points with pride, as also does the Boston Post, which has always espoused his cause and which, in this campaign, is warmly supporting Smith, that he voted against the LaFollette anti-third term resolution. It points out gleefully that Senator Gillette, Republican, voted for it.

Walsh is the Post's first love and Smith its second and, believing that Smith does himself no good in this State by attacking the Coolidge administration, it hopes to pick up quite a few votes for Walsh by pointing out that he supported Coolidge.

Right here, it should be said that the race is so close in this state that no one can say with a degree of conviction whether Walsh will run ahead of his ticket and possibly be elected, even if Smith is defeated, or whether a Hoover victory would make it a clean sweep, electing B. Loring Young in Walsh's place.

Young, former speaker of the Massachusetts House, is a high-standing, capable man of old Yankee stock. Apparently he has at least brought his campaign to the point of convincing his fellow Republicans that it is possible for Walsh to be beaten, a hope that they had almost ceased to entertain.

The relative chances of Smith and Hoover will be discussed in another article. For the present it is safe to assume that religion is the predominant issue. The Democrats are having the Fellowship Forum printed in French and distributing it among the French Catholic communities; the Republicans are trying to turn the Forum's attack to their own account; and hoodlums are slashing the tires of automobiles bearing plates with Smith's name.

Neither Hoover's visit here, nor that of Smith, this week, will appreciably affect the outcome. The latter will give the Boston police one of the greatest problems they have ever had and President Coolidge knows they have had some

BATTLE FOR EAST PLANNED BY SMITH

Democrats Line Up for Final Struggle for Votes on Atlantic Seaboard.

COUNTING ON SOLID SOUTH

By EDWIN GABELMAN
Staff Correspondent of The Post.

Albany, N. Y., Oct. 22.—Plans for the "Battle of the Atlantic Seaboard" are being formulated here during the two days that Governor Alfred E. Smith, the Democratic presidential nominee, is resting from the fatiguing experience of his swing through portions of the South, the border States, and the Eastern Central States.

Developments since the campaign opened five weeks ago have vindicated early predictions that the East is the real battleground of the campaign. Unless Gov. Smith realizes the expectations of himself and his managers in this populous section of the country, his chances of victory will be hopeless.

It is conceded generally by disinterested observers, even by those who do not give Gov. Smith a look-in, that he returned to Albany in better shape politically than when he started on his first campaign tour five weeks ago.

Solid South Held Safe.

No one talks seriously any more about the Republicans making any serious inroads into the solid South, meaning, of course, the ten States with a total electoral vote of 114, that have not gone Republican since the Civil War.

The tendency of most observers is to give Smith two of the border States, Tennessee with 12 electoral votes, Missouri, with 18 which would give him 30 more. Kentucky is listed as doubtful, with Mr. Hoover having the edge there, while Oklahoma and West Virginia virtually are conceded to the Republican nominee. In the northwest Wisconsin and Montana are counted as only sure to go for Smith, with Minnesota and North Dakota in the balance because of the large drift to Smith in both States among the discontented farmers. Other States west of the Mississippi River, in which Gov. Smith is believed to have better than a fighting chance are New Mexico, Nevada, Arizona and Nebraska. It is not venturing beyond the realm of probability to say, then, that Gov. Smith has 164 potential votes outside of the East, divided as follows, the Solid South, 114; Tennessee, 12; Missouri, 18; Montana, 4; Wisconsin, 13 and New Mexico, 3.

254 Electoral Votes Listed.

New York with 45, Massachusetts with 18, New Jersey with 14, Rhode Island with 5, and Maryland with 8 electoral votes would bring the total to 264, within 12 votes of a majority.

Assuming for the sake of this tabulation that he carries all the States listed above, the remaining twelve might be supplied from Kentucky or Minnesota, or by combinations in which Connecticut, Delaware, North Dakota, Nebraska, Nevada and Arizona figure. Taking into consideration the conflicting reports from all these States and the under currents that are baffling seasoned political prognosticators, it is just as reasonable to assume that he will carry these States or some of them as that he will not.

If it should happen that he is victorious in all the States west of the Allegheny Mountains in which he is given a chance, he can lose one or two of the Eastern States regarded as essential to victory.

But he must carry New York and Massachusetts in any event to win unless the returns of the day after election, pieced together, form a political crazy quilt for which heretofore there has been no pattern. This is true to a lesser degree of Mr. Hoover, who, according to preelection estimates, can stand greater losses in the East than his Democratic opponent because of his greater margin of safety elsewhere.

Leaders Look to East.

It so happens that New York and Massachusetts are the two Eastern States which are most likely to go for Gov. Smith. Republican leaders say his chances are better in Massachusetts than in his home State, which is tantamount to saying that he has a decided edge there. They insist he has no better than an even chance in New York. The Democrats, however, interpret the phenomenal increase in registration in New York City to presage a majority for the governor in the metropolis that will wipe out the Republican majority up-State. No matter if it exceeds all previous records.

Rhone Island with its five electoral votes appears to be third on the list of potential Smith States in the East, with Maryland, from which are predictions came earlier in the campaign, said to be swinging back to the New York governor. New Jersey is the State that has upset the preelection calculations of the Democrats more than any other one in the Eastern section. At the time of the Houston convention, New Jersey was pictured as a State that was running over with Smith sentiment, a State that already was "in the bag." Since the campaign got under way, however, reports from that State has been discouraging to the Smith forces.

Difficulty in New Jersey.

The Hoover strength is attributed in part to the large number of Jersey commuters who only vote every four years, and then support the Republican national ticket, and to the fact that the Democratic boss of Hudson County, Frank Hague, the big Democratic stronghold, is under investigation for alleged sins committed as Mayor of Jersey City. Much depends on the reaction to Gov. Smith's visit to New Jersey next week. If he receives the same welcome and excites the same enthusiasm for his candidacy that he did when he visited Seagirt last August, immediately following the notification ceremonies, he may succeed in turning the tide that is said to be setting in against him there.

Connecticut, Delaware and New Hampshire are three more States where the Smith managers have hopes of success. Thomas Spellacy, national committeeman from Connecticut, who was here yesterday to confer with Gov Smith, said there was no question but that the unprecedented registrations in the cities of the State was favorable to Smith. He said the result will be close, but he is confident that Smith will carry the State by a small margin.

Raskob Claims Pennsylvania.

Pennsylvania figures strongly in the calculation of John J. Raskob, the Democratic national chairman. But no one else seems to take his talk seriously. Not even his Democratic associates. The same may be said also of Illinois, another Republican stronghold. The probabilities are that if Gov. Smith carries Pennsylvania and Illinois, he will not need them to win, while if he does need them to put him over, they will be in the Republican column.

It is the increased registration that is baffling all the so-called experts. It constitutes the big riddle of the 1928 campaign. Politicians on both sides are agreed that the thousands of voters who are preparing to go to the polls in November for the first time in many years are seized with an uncontrollable desire to vote for somebody or against somebody, but privately they admit they have no accurate line on the situation. Publicly both Republicans and Democrats can explain it a way that augurs well for their respective tickets. The man or woman who could size up accurately the motives that are prompting this vast army of nonvoters to register could write a ticket that would be cashed on November 7 wherever betting odds are posted.

Smith Counts on East.

Gov. Smith, however, is not a bit downcast over the outlook in the East. He is making all his plans with the thought that it is the East that will carry him through to victory in November. His will be a whirlwind campaign for the last ten days beginning Wednesday, and the belief here is that he has saved his strongest ammunition against the enemy for the closing days of the campaign.

Final arrangements for the Boston speech on Wednesday night and its accompanying activities were completed here today at a conference between Gov. Smith and Senator David I. Walsh of Massachusetts; Gen. Cole, the Democratic nominee for governor; Mayor Quinn of Boston, and Fred Donahue, Democratic State chairman.

The governor is to leave Albany Wednesday morning at 10 o'clock in the private car of his friend, William F. Kenny, to which will be attached a club car and a chair car for newspaper men and working members of his party. Ten-minute stops will be made at Worcester and Springfield en route to Boston, where he is scheduled to arrive at 3:30 p. m. An automobile trip through Boston and its suburbs is to start immediately upon his arrival.

30,000 to Hear Boston Speech.

Gov. Smith's speech is scheduled at 9 p. m. in the Boston Arena, accommodating 13,000 people, but amplifiers are to be installed in two nearby halls. Mechanics Hall and Symphony Hall, which will increase the total number of listeners to 30,000. The subject of his speech has not been given out officially, but the governor intimated strongly in Chicago to labor leaders that he will discuss the labor question in his Boston speech.

Borah, In Texas Speech, Says Smith 'About Faces'

Charges Governor "Changes His Mind for Political Expediency," Citing His Record; Defends Own Criticism of Hoover in 1919.

Dallas, Tex., Oct. 22 (A.P.).—Gov. Smith was declared to have "changed his mind for political expediency" during the campaign on several of the leading issues of the presidential contest, by Senator William E. Borah, of Idaho, tonight in an appeal to the electorate of the Lone Star State to support Herbert Hoover.

Replying to the charge of the Democratic presidential nominee that he had "about faced" in supporting Hoover, the senator in a speech prepared for delivery at the Fair Park auditorium here charged Gov. Smith with having reversed his views on the open saloon, the St. Lawrence waterway, the protective tariff, immigration restriction and the farm equalization fee.

The governor, in his speech at Chicago Friday, had declared that Borah had assailed Hoover in 1919 in the Senate and now was the Republican candidate's "leading spokesman."

"He (Gov. Smith) says I criticized Hoover then," the senator said, "and I am supporting him now. If that be true, it simply shows that Mr. Hoover improves with acquaintance. The longer you know him, the more deeply you respect and trust him.

"That, perhaps, accounts for the fact that he has been the most thoroughly trusted man by those who know him best, in many respects, of this generation. That accounts for the trust that will be reposed in him on the 6th of November.

Senator Borah declared that "eight or ten years ago the governor was the defender of the open saloon, and he says now he has changed his mind—is he sincere?" The senator added that the Democratic standard bearer before the campaign denounced the St. Lawrence waterway, and now "says he is ready to change his mind."

"Four years ago he denounced the protective tariff system," Senator Borah continued, "as a cold-blooded hold-up, and plundering of the American people. He now says it is a good thing and the only trouble is that we have not had enough of it. He only found it out 20 days before the election. I would be inclined to think he was playing politics.

"Two years ago he declared emphatically against immigration restriction and he now gives evidence of mental pangs which precede a change of view.

"Last July he approved of a declaration to the effect that the McNary-Haugen bill rested upon a fundamental fallacy. What is his view now?

"But there are two propositions," the senator concluded, "upon which the governor has shown great tenacity of purpose and great firmness of mind—his objection to the control of the liquor traffic and his devotion to Tammany Hall."

FURTHER OIL SALES UNDER INVESTIGATION

West Sends Fall's Pact With Lewistown Company to Sargent for Opinion.

(United Press.)

A second contract for sale of Government royalty oil that former Interior Secretary Albert B. Fall negotiated was under scrutiny last night by Attorney General Sargent to determine its validity.

Secretary of the Interior West yesterday asked Sargent to render an opinion on whether the contract for oil from the Cat Creek, Mont., field to the Lewistown Oil & Refinining Co. is binding on the Government.

Search of Interior Department files has disclosed, West said, that this contract has a renewal option clause similar to that which caused Sargent to invalidate the contract for sale of oil from the Salt Creek, Wyo., field to the Sinclair Crude Oil Purchasing Co.

Comparison of the advertisements for bids with the actual contract shows that the renewal provision was not publicly advertised, he added.

West has issued an order directing that all contracts "coming within the purview of the Attorney General's opinion in the Salt Creek contract case" be canceled.

After Sargent's voiding of the Salt Creek contract, West ordered it canceled and instituted an examination of department records to determine if any other contracts existed having secret renewal clauses. This search revealed only the Cat Creek contract.

Both these contracts were made by Fall in 1922 within a few months of his leasing of Teapot Dome and Elk Hills, the two naval oil reserves that have been the center in recent years of the oil cases.

West said he would be guided in his action on the Cat Creek contract by whatever Sargent decides. The Lewistown Oil & Refining Co. is a subsidiary of the Century Oil Co., of Detroit, Mich.

PARTY WILL WEIGH SMITH TARIFF PLAN

Candidates for Congress Are Requested by Raskob to Pledge Support.

LOUISVILLE TALK QUOTED

The Democratic candidates for Senate and House have been asked to issue a joint declaration pledging their adherence to Gov. Smith's tariff declaration in his Louisville speech, it was learned here yesterday.

This amounts to a flat announcement that the Democrats in the national legislature will make no effort, even though the election gives them a majority of Congress, to enact any such revenue bill as the Underwood tariff, for they indorse Gov. Smith's pledge that the only change he would consider will be specific revisions in individual schedules, each considered on its own merits. It will be the first time in the party's history that it has abstained from an effort at a horizontal cut, and marks a complete change in what has been the policy of the party heretofore.

National Committee's Idea.

The plan for the congressional round robin originated with the Democratic national committee. Every Democratic candidate has received a message signed by National Chairman Raskob and Congressional Chairman Oldfield recommending the procedure. Embraced in the declaration is an excerpt from Smith's speech on the subject.

Following is the tentative draft of the pledge of the congressmen:

"We, the undersigned Democratic candidates for the House and Senate reaffirm the allegiance of our party to a nonpartisan tariff commission, as enunciated in the Democratic platform adopted at Houston, and declare our approval of the constructive interpretation placed on the tariff plank by our standard bearer, Gov. Smith, in his Louisville speech, when he said:

Smith Speech Quoted.

"I very definitely pledge that the only change I will consider in the tariff will be specific revisions in specific schedules, each considered on its own merits on the basis of investigation by an impartial tariff commission and a careful hearing before Congress of all concerned; that no revision of any specific schedule will have approval of the Democratic party which in any way interferes with the American standard of living and level of wages. In other words, I say to the American working man that the Democratic party will not do a single thing that will take from his weekly pay envelope a 5-cent piece. To the American farmer I say that the Democratic party will do everything in its power to put back into his pocket all that belongs there and we further say that nothing will be done that will embarrass or interfere in any way with the legitimate progress of business, big or small. With this prescription, honestly put forth with a clear-cut and definite promise to make it effective, I assert with confidence that neither labor nor industry nor agriculture nor business has anything to fear from Democratic success at the polls in November.

"And we hereby pledge our cooperation in carrying out the principles and policies therein set forth."

Taggart, Indiana Leader Of Democrats, to Retire

Indianapolis, Oct. 22 (U.P.).—Thomas Taggart, Democratic political leader of Indiana for many years, and former senator, who is ill in the Methodist Hospital here, announced through friends tonight that he would retire from active politics after the November election. The veteran leader's age and his ailing condition prompted his decision, it was said. He is more than 70 years old. Taggart has been suffering from stomach trouble.

Charles Greathouse, Democratic national committeeman for Indiana; Carleton B. McCulloch, Evans Woollen and Frank Dailey, Democratic nominee for governor, have been mentioned as possible successors.

DANIELS SAYS G. O. P. USES FALL POLICIES

SPEAKS IN WAYNESVILLE

Waynesville, N. C., Oct. 22 (A.P.)—Charging that the Coolidge administration is carrying out the policies of Albert B. Fall in leasing Government oil lands, Josephus Daniels, former Secretary of the Navy, in an address here tonight, called upon Herbert Hoover, Republican presidential candidate, to remove Dr. Hubert Work as Republican national committee chairman for his renewal of the Salt Creek royalty oil contract to Sinclair interests.

"Unless the authorities of the national Republican committee remove Dr Work for his lease of Salt Creek oil lands," Daniels said, "the Republican party officially assumes responsibility for that wrong transaction, as it was compelled to assume full blame for the corrupt conspiracy of leasing Teapot Dome when Will Hays took Sinclair's money to pay off the debt incurred in electing a Republican President."

Corruption Issue, He Says.

"Corruption and favoritism are the outstanding issues of this campaign," Mr. Daniels continued. "The latest exposure of secret leasing of oil lands shows that Albert B. Fall is still, in fact, Secretary of the Interior, and that the Republican national committee must have a new chairman if that party expects to retain the confidence of even its most loyal standpatters.

"The carrying out by Dr. Work of an unlawful contract made by Fall shows that the administration at Washington is still the agent of those oil men who bribed Fall and gave a large sum of money to Will Hays to pay the campaign expenses of the Republican national committee.

"Work took office with full knowledge of the crooked leasing of the naval oil reserves by Fall and he should have known of the indefensible leasing of other oil lands. Because of the exposure, Dr. Work was charged with notice of Fall's subserviency to the oil leases. It is inexcusable that he should renew any lease made by Fall.

Approval Held No Excuse.

"The fact that Fall made any lease to an oil company was prima facie evidence of favoritism or corruption, or both. Any prudent successor would have refused to continue or sanction any Fall transaction until the courts had given their O. K.

"The excuse that the solicitor approved the extension of the lease is no defense. A lawyer in the Navy gave approval to Teapot Dome lease, and one temporary admiral was found to approve the scandal of leasing the petroleum oil reserves.

"The appointment of the man associated with Insull to buy the senatorial election in Illinois for Smith, as successor to Fall and Work, seems to show that oil grabbers and public service interests have a mortgage in the Interior portfolio. West will never be confirmed."

Raskob Says Country Is Swinging to Smith

New York, Oct. 22 (A.P.).—With the Republican presidential candidate here to give a campaign address in his Democratic opponent's home State, Democratic National Chairman John J. Raskob told newspaper men today that he believed the political tide was swinging toward Gov. Smith all over the country. The Democratic outlook, he thought, was getting brighter all the time.

Raskob said that on Thursday night he will make the longest speech he has ever delivered. He will talk on prosperity from 8 o'clock until 9 over radio station WJZ and a Nation-wide hookup of the National Broadcasting Co.

Men Say They Got 40 Cents Per Vote

Eller Trial Witness Asserts He Visited Chicago Polls 15 Times.

Chicago, Oct. 22 (A.P.).—Forty cents a vote was the average price paid "floaters" corraled to the polls last April by lieutenants of City Collector Morris Eller, five witnesses testified today in the trial of Eller's sixteen henchmen for conspiracy. Another witness however, said he fared a little better on the pay roll because he was beaten and kidnaped by mistake after voting fifteen times for the "America first" ticket.

Henry Watts' reward for his fifteen votes and the misdirected slugging was $10, handed him by Judge Emanuel Eller, son of the boss of the "Bloody Twentieth" ward, he told the jury. When Watts identified Sam Kaplan and Joseph Annerino, alias Peppi Genaro, as two of those he had seen at the jail, the last of the sixteen defendants had been involved in the alleged conspiracy by State witnesses.

Two dollars each was the standard wage paid five negro "repeaters" who voted five times for the Eller ticket, they testified. Eddie Brownstein and Sam Bardin were identified as active in hiring the votes of the "floaters."

New York, Oct. 22 (A.P.). — Mrs. Woodrow Wilson returned today on the steamship Leviathan from a trip to Europe. PROSPERITY ISSUE LEADS, SAYS DAWES

Cites Reasons for G. O. P. Victory in Address in New York.

UPHOLDS HIGH TARIFF

New York, Oct. 22 (A.P.).—The text of the address by Vice President Dawes at Madison Square Garden tonight follows:

The campaign is nearing its close. The two party platforms, both of them too long and argumentative perhaps to have been carefully read and considered by the majority of our voters, have been presented and discussed. We are hearing from the partisans of both sides, the strong and inconsistent claims which are always incident in the close of a national contest. The confusion of appeals thickens.

If the average citizen in voting made up his mind as to his duty by mentally weighing the opposing arguments, he, too, might be confused in reaching his decision, but he does not do so. On the contrary, as the argument becomes more voluminous and acrimonious, his mind becomes clearer, for he is applying his common sense to the situation. The average man will go to the polls on November 6 with some one great consideration in his mind which determines his vote—not a half dozen considerations. When asked, he will be able to state that consideration in a few words and those words will be his interpretation of the common sense of the situation. If one can now define what the common sense of the situation is as visualized by the average man, he will have stated the argument most acceptable to voters as a guide to decision. In addition, he will be brief, for common sense demands brevity.

Common sense tells us that the real and overshadowing issue in this campaign urged by the instincts, and uppermost in the consciousness, of the average voter is the issue always dominant when tranquillity and prosperity exist in the country.

Must Maintain Confidence.

That issue is the maintenance of prosperity.

Now the average voter realizes that the maintenance of prosperity depends upon the maintenance of general confidence.

Except for a short period during times of panic, when a loss of confidence induces active but disastrous liquidation, what we call prosperity is simply activity in exchanges of goods and services based upon confidence. The average man senses the dangers of impairing general confidence by a changing of governmental administration in a period of prosperity. The slightest reflection on his part upon the situation suggests immediately what he feels instinctively—that a change in administration means confusion and change in governmental programs and policies and that, in turn, means the passing of confidence which is the very foundation of our present national prosperity and comparative industrial and social peace.

Of course, discussion of the many collateral issues presented by the platforms, and of other issues outside of platforms which candidates in their speeches many endeavor to inject into the campaign, will influence many voters pro and con, but not the average voter of whom I am speaking.

Prohibition Not the Issue.

Consider the question of prohibition. Many will vote in the election one way or the other with this in mind, but when the platforms of the two great parties take practically the same position in upholding prohibition, and prohibition is a part of the Constitution of the United States, the average citizen will not regard it as an issue which should determine his vote. As a result of the expressions of Gov. Smith, adverse to prohibition as a national policy, some dry Democrats may vote for Mr. Hoover and some wet Republicans may vote for Smith, their votes tending to offset each other. But not so with the average citizen. If to vote his sentiments on the prohibition policy, which is not an issue and which can not be decided in this campaign, means that he votes adversely to his own views on the real and greater issue of prosperity which affects him directly, he will not throw away his vote. His vote will be cast upon what is the real issue in his mind, irrespective of the collateral discussion of prohibition.

The existence of this dominant issue of prosperity renders it hopeless to regard the result at the November polls as a sentimental referendum on the prohibition question, and it renders that result unworthy even as an indication of the state of public sentiment on prohibition. And yet for no other practical purposes than the two I have mentioned could a wet or dry vote be cast in this presidential campaign. The average voter senses this.

Oblique Tariff Movement.

Again the existence of that dominant issue of prosperity renders it useless where both parties have pledged themselves in their platforms to attempt farm relief, to hope that either the economic principles or details of any particular measure to effect it can become a major issue in this campaign. The average voter senses this.

Again the Democratic party for decades has been the continuing and bitter opponent of the protective tariff which has been firmly established as a national policy by the Republican party and under which we have achieved our unparalleled national prosperity. While, in its last platform, the Democratic party promises a certain acquiescence in the policy of protection, it is manifestly to avoid the issue in the campaign. A promise to do something, which for years the Democratic party has schooled its members to abhor, is not easy for it to carry out if placed in power.

To attempt to unite itself in Congress in a right-about-face upon the tariff would mean instead some oblique movement since it would involve an effort to square its traditional policy with a platform plank adopted as a campaign expedient. The revision of the tariff at the hands of its traditional enemies instead of its traditional friends would unsettle business confidence and destroy prosperity. Democratic success would plunge that party into utter confusion in carrying out a legislative program when upon prohibition, the Chief Executive would be out of sympathy with the party platform, and upon the tariff, the rank and file of the party would be out of sympathy with the platform. The average citizen senses all this.

These are the reasons which lead me to believe that the average voter upon the issue of preserving prosperity, which is dominant in this campaign, will vote for the continuance of a Republican administration, and it will be the average voter who determines the result of the election.

The Republican party has nominated Secretary Hoover for the Presidency, a man of great ability, training and experience in larger governmental affairs. That he is a man of high purpose, honesty and sincerity, all must admit. Of his executive ability, his energy and his great and constructive accomplishments for the public good, I can testify from collaboration with him in the trying period after the armistice in France when suffering multitudes needed immediate assistance; and again in my work as the first director of the budget when he was engaged in the difficult beginning of his upbuilding of the Department of Commerce, an achievement of such usefulness to our Nation that it alone would have preserved his name in history. I see in the personality of the Republican nominee only added reason for the conclusion that, to the average voter, Republican success in this contest means the continued happiness and prosperity of our people.

TEXT OF HOOVER ATTACK ON DEMOCRATIC POLICIES

The text in full of Herbert Hoover's address at Madison Square Garden, New York, is as follows:

This campaign now draws near a close. The platforms of the two parties defining principles and offering solutions of various national problems have been presented and are being earnestly considered by our people.

After four months' debate it is not the Republican party which finds reason for abandonment of any of the principles it has laid down, or of the views it has expressed for solution of the problems before the country.

The principles to which it adheres are rooted deeply in the foundations of our national life. The solutions which it proposes are based on experience with government and on a consciousness that it may have the responsibility for placing those solutions in action.

In my acceptance speech I endeavored to outline the spirit and ideals by which I would be guided in carrying that platform into administration. Tonight, I will not deal with the multitude of issues which have been already well canvassed. I intend rather to discuss some of those more fundamental principles and ideals upon which I believe the Government of the United States should be conducted.

The Republican party has ever been a party of progress. I do not need to review its 70 years of constructive history. It has always reflected the spirit of the American people. Never has it done more for the advancement of fundamental progress than during the past seven and a half years since we took over the Government amidst the ruin left by war.

It detracts nothing from the character and energy of the American people, it minimizes in no degree the quality of their accomplishments to say that the policies of the Republican party have played a large part in recuperation from the war and the building of the magnificent progress which shows upon every hand today.

I say with emphasis that without the wise policies which the Republican party has brought into action during this period, no such progress would have been possible.

Renewed March of Progress.

The first responsibility of the Republican administration was to renew the march of progress from its collapse by the war. That task involved the restoration of confidence in the future and the liberation and stimulation of the constructive energies of our people. It discharged that task.

There is not a person within the sound of my voice that does not know the profound progress which our country has made in this period. Every man and woman knows that American comfort, hope and confidence for the future are immeasurably higher this day than they were seven and one-half years ago.

It is not my purpose to enter upon a detailed recital of the great constructive measures of the past seven and a half years by which this has been brought about.

It is sufficient to remind you of the restoration of employment to the millions who walked your streets in idleness; to remind you of the creation of the budget system; the reduction of six billions of national debt which gave the powerful impulse of that vast sum returned to industry and commerce; the four subsequent reductions of taxes and thereby the lift to the living of every family; the enactment of adequate protective tariff and immigration laws which have safeguarded our workers and farmers from floods of goods and labor from foreign countries; the creation of credit facilities and many other aids to agriculture; the building up of foreign trade; the care of veterans; the development of aviation, of radio, of our inland waterways, of our highways; the expansion of scientific research, of welfare activities, the making of safer highways, safer mines, better homes; the spread of outdoor recreation; the improvement in public health and the care of children, and a score of other progressive actions.

Lessening Inequalities.

Nor do I need to remind you that Government today deals with an economic and social system vastly more intricate and delicately adjusted than ever before. That system now must be kept in perfect tune if we would maintain uninterrupted employment and the high standards of living of our people.

The Government has come to touch this delicate web at a thousand points. Yearly the relations of Government to national prosperity become more and more intimate. Only through keen vision and helpful cooperation by the Government has stability in business and stability in employment been maintained during this past seven and a half years.

There always are some localities, some industries and some individuals who do not share the prevailing prosperity. The task of government is to lessen these inequalities.

Never has there been a period when the Federal Government has given such aid and impulse to the progress of our people, not alone to economic progress, but to the development of those agencies which make for moral and spiritual progress.

But, in addition to this great record of contributions of the Republican party to progress, there has been a further fundamental contribution—a contribution underlying and sustaining all the others—and that is the resistance of the Republican party to every attempt to inject the Government into business in competition with its citizens.

After the war, when the Republican party assumed administration of the country, we were faced with the problem of determination of the very nature of our national life.

During 150 years we have builded up a form of self-government and a social system which is peculiarly our own. It differs essentially from all others in the world.

It is the American system. It is just as definite and positive a political and social system as has ever been developed on earth. It is founded upon a particular conception of self-government, in which decentralized local responsibility is the very base.

Further than this, it is founded upon the conception that only through ordered liberty, freedom and equal opportunity to the individual will his initiative and enterprise spur on the march of progress. And in our insistence upon equality of opportunity has our system advanced beyond all the world.

Government Solved Problems.

During the war we necessarily turned to the Government to solve every difficult economic problem. The Government having absorbed every energy of our people for war, there was no other solution. For the preservation of the State the Federal Government became a centralized despotism which undertook unprecedented responsibilities, assumed autocratic powers, and took over the business of citizens.

To a large degree we regimented our whole people temporarily into a socialistic state. However justified in time of war, if continued in peace time it would destroy not only our American system, but with it our progress and freedom as well.

When the war closed, the most vital of all issues both in our own country and throughout the world was whether governments should continue their wartime ownership and operation of many instrumentalities of production and distribution.

We were challenged with a peacetime choice between the American system of rugged individualism and a European philosophy of diametrically opposed doctrines—doctrines of paternalism and state socialism.

The acceptance of these ideas would have meant the destruction of self-government through centralization of government. It would have meant the undermining of the individual initiative and enterprise through which our people have grown to unparalleled greatness.

The Republican party from the beginning resolutely turned its face away from these ideas and these war practices.

A Republican Congress cooperated with the Democratic administration to demobilize many of our war activities. At that time the two parties were in accord upon that point.

When the Republican party came into full power it went at once resolutely back to our fundamental conception of the state and the rights and responsibilities of the individual.

Thereby it restored confidence and hope in the American people, it freed and stimulated enterprise, it restored the Government to its position as an umpire instead of a player in the economic game.

For these reasons the American people have gone forward in progress while the rest of the world has halted, and some countries have even gone backward. If any one will study the causes of retarded recuperation in Europe, he will find much of it due to the stifling of private initiative on one hand and overloading of the Government with business on the other.

Some Proposals Revised.

There has been revived in this campaign, however, a series of proposals which, if adopted, would be a long step toward the abandonment of our American system and a surrender to the destructive operation of governmental conduct of commercial business.

Because the country is faced with difficulty and doubt over certain national problems—that is, prohibition, farm relief and electrical power—our opponents propose that we must thrust government a long way into the businesses which give rise to these problems.

In effect, they abandon the tenets of their own party and turn to State socialism as a solution for the difficulties presented by all three. It is proposed that we shall change from prohibition to the State purchase and sale of liquor.

If their agricultural relief program means anything, it means that the Government shall directly or indirectly buy and sell and fix prices of agricultural products. And we are to go into the hydroelectric-power business. In other words, we are confronted with a huge program of government in business.

There is, therefore, submitted to the American people a question of fundamental principle.

That is: Shall we depart from the principles of our American political and economic system, upon which we have advanced beyond all the rest of the world, in order to adopt methods based on principles destructive of its very foundations? And I wish to emphasize the seriousness of these proposals. I wish to make my position clear; for this goes to the very roots of American life and progress.

I should like to state to you the effect that this projection of government in business would have upon our system of self-government and our economic system.

That effect would reach to the daily life of every man and woman.

It would impair the very basis of liberty and freedom not only for those left outside the fold of expanded bureaucracy but for those embraced within it.

Let us first see the effect upon self-government. When the Federal Government undertakes to go into commercial business it must at once set up the organization and administration of that business, and it immediately finds itself in a labyrinth, every alley of which leads to the destruction of self-government.

Commercial business requires a concentration of responsibility. Self-government requires decentralization and many checks and balances to safeguard liberty. Our Government to succeed in business would need become in effect a despotism. There at once begins the destruction of self-government.

Method of Administration.

The first problem of the government about to adventure in commercial business is to determine a method of administration.

It must secure leadership and direction. Shall this leadership be chosen by political agencies or shall we make it elective?

The hard practical fact is that leadership in business must come through the sheer rise in ability and character. That rise can only take place in the free atmosphere of competition. Competition is closed by bureaucracy. Political agencies are feeble channels through which to select able leaders to conduct commercial business.

Government, in order to avoid the possible incompetence, corruption and tyranny of too great authority in individuals entrusted with commercial business, inevitably turns to boards and commissions. To make sure that there are checks and balances, each member of such boards and commissions must have equal authority. Each has his sparate responsibility to the public, and at once we have the conflict of ideas and the lack of decisions which would ruin any commercial business. It has contributed greatly to the demoralization of our shipping business.

Moreover, these commissions must be representative of different sections and different political parties, so that at once we have an entire blight upon coordinated action within their ranks which destroys any possibility of effective administration.

Moreover, our legislative bodies can not in fact delegate their full authority to commissions or to individuals for the conduct of matters vital to the American people; for if we would preserve government by the people we must preserve the authority of our legislators in the activities of our government.

Thus every time the Federal Government goes into a commercial business, 531 senators and representatives become the actual board of directors of that business.

Every time a State government goes into business one or two hundred State senators and legislators become the actual directors of that business.

Even if they were supermen and if there were no politics in the United States, no body of such numbers could competently direct commercial activities; for that requires initiative, instant decision and action.

It took Congress six years of constant discussion to even decide what the method of administration of Muscle Shoals should be.

When the Federal Government undertakes to go into business, the State governments are at once deprived of control and taxation of that business; when a State government undertakes to go into business, it at once deprives the municipalities of taxation and control of that business. Municipalities, being local and close to the people, can, at times, succeed in business where Federal and State governments must fail.

We have trouble enough with log rolling in legislative bodies today. It originates naturally from desires of citizens to advance their particular section or to secure some necessary service. It would be multiplied a thousandfold were the Federal and State governments in these businesses.

The effect upon our economic progress would be even worse. Business progressiveness is dependent on competition. New methods and new ideas are the outgrowth of the spirit of adventure, of individual initiative and of individual enterprise.

Without adventure there is no progress. No government administration can rightly take chances with taxpayers' money.

Incompetency Recalled.

There is no better example of the practical incompetence of government to conduct business than the history of our railways. During the war the Government found it necessary to operate the railways.

That operation continued until after the war. In the year before being freed from Government operation they were not able to meet the demands for transportation. Eight years later we find them, under private enterprise, transporting 15 per cent more goods and meeting every demand for service.

Rates have been reduced by 15 per cent and net earnings increased from less than 1 per cent on their valuation to about 5 per cent.

Wages of employes have improved by 13 per cent. The wages of railway employes are today 121 per cent above prewar, while the wages of Government employes are today only 65 per cent above prewar. That should be a sufficient commentary upon the efficiency of Government operation.

Let us now examine this question from the point of view of the person who may get a Government job and is admitted into the new bureaucracy. Upon that subject let me quote from a speech of that great leader of labor, Samuel Gompers, delivered in Montreal in 1920, a few years before his death. He said:

Gompers for Limited Power.

"I believe there is no man to whom I would take second position in my loyalty to the Republic of the United States, and yet I would not give it more power over the individual citizenship of our country. * * *

"It is a question of whether it shall be Government ownership or private ownership under control. * * * If I were in the majority of one in this convention, I would want to cast my vote so that the men of labor shall not willingly enslave themselves to Government authority in their industrial effort for freedom. * * *

"Let the future tell the story of who is right or who is wrong; who has stood for freedom and who has been willing to submit their fate industrially to the Government."

I would amplify Mr. Gompers' statement. The great body of Government employes which would be created by the proposals of our opponents would either comprise a political machine at the disposal of the party in power, or alternatively, to prevent this, the Government by stringent civil-service rules must debar its employes from their full political rights as free men.

It must limit them in the liberty to bargain for their own wages, for no Government employe can strike against his Government and thus against the whole people. It makes a legislative body with all its political currents their final employer and master. Their bargaining does not rest upon economic need or economic strength, but on political potence.

But what of those who are outside the bureaucracy? What is the effect upon their lives.

Limit to Opportunity.

The area of enterprise and opportunity for them to strive and rise is at once limited.

The Government in commercial business does not tolerate amongst its customers the freedom of competitive reprisals to which private business is subject.

Bureaucracy does not tolerate the spirit of independence; it spreads the spirit of submission into our daily life and penetrates the temper of our people not with the habit of powerful resistance to wrong but with the habit of timid acceptance of irresistible might.

Bureaucracy is ever desirous of spreading its influence and its power. You can not extend the mastery of the Government over the daily working life of a people without at the same time making it the master of the people's souls and thoughts.

Every expansion of Government in business means that Government in order to protect itself from the political consequences of its errors and wrongs is driven irresistibly without peace to greater and greater control of the Nation's press and platform.

It is a false liberalism that interprets itself into the Government operation of commercial business. Every step of bureaucratizing of the business of our country poisons the very roots of liberalism—that is, political equality, free speech, free assembly, free press and equality of opportunity.

Road to Less Liberty.

It is the road not to more liberty, but to less liberty. Liberalism should be found not striving to spread bureaucracy, but striving to set bounds to it. True liberalism seeks all legitimate freedom first in the confident belief that without such freedom the pursuit of all other blessings and benefits is vain. That belief is the foundation of all American progress, political as well as economic.

Liberalism is a force truly of the spirit, a force proceeding from the deep realization that economic freedom can not be sacrificed if political freedom is to be preserved.

Even if governmental conduct of business could give us more efficiency instead of less efficiency, the fundamental objection to it would remain unaltered and unabated. It would destroy political equality. It would increase rather than decrease abuse and corruption. It would stifle initiative and invention. It would undermine the development of leadership.

It would cramp and cripple the mental and spiritual energies of our people. It would extinguish equality and opportunity. It would dry up the spirit of liberty and progress. For these reasons primarily it must be resisted.

For 150 years liberalism has found its true spirit in the American system, not in the European system.

Defines General Policies.

I do not wish to be misunderstood in this statement. I am defining a general policy. It does not mean that our government is to part with one iota of its national resources without complete protection to the public interest.

I have already stated that where the government is engaged in public works for purposes of flood control, of navigation, of irrigation, of scientific research or national defense, or in pioneering a new art, it will at times necessarily produce power or commodities as a by-product. But they must be a by-product of the major purpose, not the major purpose itself.

Nor do I wish to be misinterpreted as believing that the United States is free-for-all and devil-take-the-hindmost. The very essence of equality of opportunity and of American individualism is that there shall be no domination by any group or combination in this Republic, whether it be business or political.

On the contrary, it demands economic justice as well as political and social justice. It is no system of laissez faire.

I feel deeply on this subject because during the war I had some practical experience with governmental operation and control.

I have witnessed not only at home but abroad the many failures of government in business.

Has Witnessed Injustice.

I have seen its tyrannies, it injustices, its destructions of self government, its undermining of the very instincts which carry our people forward to progress.

I have witnessed the lack of advance, the lowered standards of living, the depressed spirits of people working under such a system.

My objection is based not upon theory or upon a failure to recognize wrong or abuse, but I know the adoption of such methods would strike at the very roots of American life and would destroy the very basis of American progress.

Our people have the right to know whether we can continue to solve our great problems without abandonment of our American system. I know we can. We have demonstrated that our system is responsive enough to meet any new and intricate development in our economic and business life.

We have demonstrated that we can meet any economic problem and still maintain our democracy as master in its own house and that we can at the same time preserve equality of opportunity and individual freedom.

In the last 50 years we have discovered that mass production will produce articles for us at half the cost they required previously. We have seen the resultant growth of large units of production and distribution. This is big business.

Republican Policies Cited.

Many businesses must be bigger for our tools are bigger, our country is bigger. We now build a single dynamo of 100,000-horsepower. Even fifteen years ago that would have been a big business all by itself. Yet today advance in production requires that we set ten of these units together in a row.

The American people from bitter experience have a rightful fear that great business units might be used to dominate our industrial life and by illegal and unethical practices destroy equality of opportunity.

Years ago the Republican administration established the principle that such evils could be corrected by regulation. It developed methods by which abuses could be prevented while the full value of industrial progress could be retained for the public.

It insisted upon the principle that when great utilities were clothed with the security of partial monopoly, whether it be railways, power plants, telephones or what not, then there must be the fullest and most complete control of rates, services and finances by Government or local agencies.

It declared that these businesses must be conducted with glass pockets.

As to our great manufacturing and distributing industries, the Republican Party insisted upon the enactment of laws that not only would maintain competition but would destroy conspiracies to destroy the smaller units or dominate and limit the equality of opportunity amongst our people.

Leaders' Views Upheld.

One of the great problems of government is to determine to what extent the Government shall regulate and control commerce and industry and how much it shall leave it alone. No system is perfect. We have had many abuses in the private conduct of business. That every good citizen resents. It is just as important that business keep out of government as that government keep out of business.

Nor am I setting up the contention that our institutions are perfect. No human ideal is ever perfectly attained, since humanity itself is not perfect.

The wisdom of our forefathers in their conception that progress can only be attained as the sum of the accomplishment of free individuals has been re-enforced by all of the great leaders of the country since that day. Jackson, Lincoln, Cleveland, McKinley, Roosevelt, Wilson, and Coolidge have stood unalterably for these principles.

And what have been the results of our American system? Our country has become the land of opportunity to those born without inheritance, not merely because of the wealth of its resources and industry but because of this freedom of initiative and enterprise. Russia has natural resources equal to ours.

Her people are equally industrious, but she has not had the blessings of 150 years of our form of government and of our social system.

Proved by Seven Years.

By adherence to the principles of decentralized self-government, ordered liberty, equal opportunity and freedom to the individual our American experiment in human welfare has yielded a degree of well-being unparalleled in all the world.

It has come nearer to the abolition of poverty, to the abolition of fear of want, than humanity has ever reached before. Progress of the past seven years is the proof of it. This alone furnishes the answer to our opponents who ask us to introduce destructive elements into the system by which this has been accomplished.

Let us see what this system has done for us in our recent years of difficult and trying reconstruction and let us then solemnly ask ourselves if we now wish to abandon it.

As a nation we came out of the war with great losses. We made no profits from it. The apparent increases in wages were at that time fictitious. We were poorer as a Nation when we emerged from the war.

Yet during these last eight years we have recovered from these losses and increased our national income by over one-third even if we discount the inflation of the dollar. That there has been a wide diffusion of our gain in wealth and income is marked by a hundred proofs.

I know of no better test of the improved conditions of the average family than the combined increase in assets of life and industrial insurance, building and loan associations, and savings deposits. These are the savings banks of the average man.

These agencies alone have in seven years increased by nearly 100 per cent to the gigantic sum of over 50 billions of dollars, or nearly one-sixth of our whole national wealth. We have increased in home ownership, we have expanded the investments of the average man.

High Standards of Living.

In addition to these evidences of larger savings, our people are steadily increasing their spending for higher standards of living. Today there are almost 9 automobiles for each 10 families, where 7½ years ago only enough automobiles were running to average less than 4 for each 10 families. The slogan of progress is changing from the full dinner pail to the full garage. Our people have more to eat, better things to wear, and better homes.

We have even gained in elbow room, for the increase of residential floor space is over 25 per cent with less than 10 per cent increase in our number of people.

Wages have increased, the cost of living has decreased. The job to every man and woman has been made more secure. We have in this short period decreased the fear of poverty, the fear of unemployment, the fear of old age; and these are fears that are the greatest calamities of human kind.

All this progress means far more than greater creature comforts. It finds a thousand interpretations into a greater and fuller life.

A score of new helps save the drudgery of the home. In seven years we have added 70 per cent to the electric power at the elbow of our workers and further promoted them from carriers of burdens to directors of machines. We have steadily reduced the sweat in human labor.

Hours of Labor Fewer.

Our hours of labor are lessened; our leisure has increased. We have expanded our parks and playgrounds. We have nearly doubled our attendance at games. We pour into outdoor recreation in every direction.

The visitors at our national parks have trebled and we have so increased the number of sportsmen fishing in our streams and lakes that the longer time between bites is becoming a political issue. In these seven and one-half years the radio has brought music and laughter, education and political discussion to almost every fireside.

Springing from our prosperity with its greater freedom, its vast endowment of scientific research and the greater resources with which to care for public health, we have according to our insurance actuaries during this short period since the war lengthened the average span of life by nearly eight years.

We have reduced infant mortality, we have vastly decreased the days of illness and suffering in the life of every man and woman. We have improved the facilities for the care of the crippled and helpless and deranged.

From our increasing resources we have expanded our educational system in eight years from an outlay of 1,200 millions to 2,700 millions of dollars.

Spread of Education.

The education of our youth has become almost our largest and certainly our most important activity. From our greater income and thus our ability to free youth from toil we have increased the attendance in our grade schools by 14 per cent, in our high schools by 80 per cent, and in our institutions of higher learning by 95 per cent.

Today we have more youth in these institutions of higher learning twice over than all the rest of the world put together. We have made notable progress in literature, in art and in public taste.

We have made progress in the leadership of every branch of American life. Never in our history was the leadership in our economic life more distinguished in its abilities than today, and it has grown greatly in its consciousness of public responsibility.

Leadership in our professions, and in moral and spiritual affairs of our country, was never of a higher order. And our magnificent educational system is bringing forward a host of recruits for the success to this leadership.

I do not need to recite more figures and more evidence. I can not believe that the American people wish to abandon or in any way to weaken the principles of economic freedom and self-government which have been maintained by the Republican party and which have produced results so amazing and so stimulating to the spiritual as well as to the material advance of the Nation.

Benefits to New York.

Your city has been an outstanding beneficiary of this great progress and of these safeguarded principles. With its suburbs it has, during the last seven and a half years, grown by over 1,500,000 people until it has become the greatest metropolitan district of all the world.

Here you have made abundant opportunity not only for the youth of the land, but for the immigrant from foreign shores. This city is the commercial center of the United States. It is the commercial agent of the American people.

It is a great organism of specialized skill and leadership in finance, industry and commerce, which reaches every spot in our country. Its progress and its beauty are the pride of the whole American people.

It leads our Nation in its benevolences to charity, to education and scientific research. It is the center of art, music, literature and drama. It has come to have a more potent voice than any other city in the United States.

But when all is said and done the very life, progress and prosperity of this city is wholly dependent on the prosperity of the 115,000,000 people who dwell in our mountains and valleys across the 3,000 miles to the Pacific Ocean.

Every activity of this city is sensitive to every evil and every favorable tide that sweeps this great Nation of ours. Be there a slackening of industry in any place it affects New York far more than any other part of the country.

Effect of Depression.

In a time of depression one-quarter of all the unemployed in the United States can be numbered in this city. In a time of prosperity the citizens of the great interior of our country pour into your city for business and entertainment at the rate of 150,000 a day.

In fact, so much is this city the reflex of the varied interests of our country that the concern of every one of your citizens for national stability, for national prosperity, for national progress, for preservation of our American system, is far greater than that of any other single part of our country.

We still have great problems if we would achieve the full economic advancement of our country. In these past few years some groups in our country have lagged behind others in the march of progress. I refer more particularly to those engaged in the textile, coal and in the agricultural industries.

We can assist in solving these problems by cooperation of our Government. To the agricultural industry we shall need to advance initial capital to assist them to stabilize their industry.

But this proposal implies that they shall conduct it themselves, and not by the Government. It is in the interest of our cities that we shall bring agriculture and all industries into full stability and prosperity. I know you will gladly cooperate in the faith that in the common prosperity of our country lies its future.

In bringing this address to a conclusion I should like to restate to you some of the fundamental things I have endeavored to bring out.

The foundations of progress and prosperity are dependent as never before upon the wise policies of government, for government now touches at a thousand points the intricate web of economic and social life.

Can Not Progress in Poverty.

Under administration by the Republican party in the last seven and one-half years our country as a whole has made unparalleled progress, and this has been in generous part reflected to this great city. Prosperity is no idle expression.

It is a job for every worker; it is the safety and the safeguard of every business and every home.

A continuation of the policies of the Republican party is fundamentally necessary to the further advancement of this progress and to the further building up of this prosperity.

I have dwelt at some length on the principles of relationship between the Government and business. I make no apologies for dealing with this subject. The first necessity of any nation is the smooth functioning of the vast business machinery for employment, feeding, clothing, housing and providing luxuries and comforts to a people.

Unless these basic elements are properly organized and function, there can be no progress in business, in education, literature, music or art. There can be no advance in the fundamental ideals of a people. A people can not make progress in poverty.

I have endeavored to present to you that the greatness of America has grown out of a political and social system and a method of control of economic forces distinctly its own—our American system—which has carried this great experiment in human welfare farther than ever before in all history.

We are nearer today to the ideal of the abolition of poverty and fear from the lives of men and women than ever before in any land. And I again repeat that the departure from our American system by injecting principles destructive to it which our opponents propose will jeopardize the very liberty and freedom of our people, will destroy equality of opportunity not alone to ourselves, but to our children.

His Conception of America.

To me the foundation of American life rests upon the home and the family. I read into these great economic forces, these intricate and delicate relations of the Government with business and with our political and social life, but one supreme end—that we reinforce the ties that bind together the millions of our families, that we strengthen the security, the happiness and the independence of every home.

My conception of America is a land where men, and women may walk in ordered freedom in the independent conduct of their occupations; where they may enjoy the advantages of wealth, not concentrated in the hands of the few, but spread through the lives of all, where they build and safeguard their homes and give to their children the fullest advantages and opportunities of American life; where every man shall be respected in the faith that his conscience and his heart direct him to follow; where a contented and happy people, secure in their liberties, free from poverty and fear, shall have the leisure and impulse to seek a fuller life.

Some may ask where all this may lead beyond mere material progress. It leads to a release of the energies of men and women from the dull drudgery of life to a wider vision and a higher hope.

It leads to the opportunity for greater and greater service, not alone from man to man in our own land, but from our country to the whole world.

It leads to an America, healthy in body, healthy in spirit, unfettered, youthful, eager with a vision searching beyond the farthest horizons, with an open mind, sympathetic and generous. It is to these higher ideals and for these purposes that I pledge myself and the Republican party.

Leading Points in Hoover's Speech in New York City

After four months' debate it is not the Republican party which finds reasons for abandonment of any of the principles it has laid down, or of the views it has expressed for solution of the problems before the country.

The Republican party has ever been a party of progress.

Never has it done more for the advancement of fundamental progress than during the past seven and a half years since we took over the Government admidst the ruin left by war.

Yearly the relations of Government to national prosperity become more and more intimate.

There has been in this campaign a series of proposals which, if adopted, would be a long step toward abandonment of our American system and a surrender to the destructive operation of governmental conduct of commercial business.

It is proposed that we shall change from prohibition to the State purchase and sale of liquor. If their agricultural relief program means anything, it means that the Government shall directly or indirectly buy and sell and fix prices of agricultural products. And we are to go into the hydroelectric power business.

Commercial business requires a concentration of responsibility.

Our Government to succed in business would need become in effect a despotism.

When the Federal Government undertakes to go into business, the State governments are at once deprived of control and taxation of that business.

We have trouble enough with log rolling in legislative bodies today.

Business progressiveness is dependent on competition.

No government administration can rightly take chances with taxpayers' money.

Our legislative bodies can not, in fact, delegate their full authority to commission or to individuals for the conduct of matters vital to the American people.

There is no better example of the practical incompetence of government to conduct business than the history of our railways.

Bureaucracy is ever desirous of spreading its influence and power.

Free speech does not live many hours after free influence and free commerce die.

It is a false liberalism that interprets itself into the Government operation of commercial business.

It is just as important that business keep out of government as that government keep out of business.

We are nearer today to the ideal of the abolition of poverty and fear from the lives of men and women than ever before in any land.

To me the foundation of American life rests upon the home and family.

FILM-RADIO MERGER INVOLVES HUGE SUM

Giant Corporation to Unite With Keith-Albee-Orpheum and F. B. O.

SARNOFF WILL BE HEAD

New York, Oct. 22 (A.P.).—The plan for the formation of a gigantic entertainment enterprise through a combination of the interests of the Radio Corporation of America, the Keith-Albee-Orpheum Corporation, and F. B. O. Producers, Inc., was announced today.

A holding company, to be known as the Radio-Keith-Orpheum Corporation, is to be formed to take over Keith-Albee-Orpheum and F. B. O. It will issue approximately 1,320,000 shares of class A stock, which will be exchanged share for share for the common stock of the two companies. In addition it will issue 500,000 shares of class B stock to the Radio Corporation in return for contracts for the use of photophone, Radio Corporation's talking movie device, and for a contract under which the National Broadcasting Co., which is affiliated with Radio Corporation, will broadcast the Keith programs.

It is understood that the class A and class B shares will have equal voting rights, but Radio Corporation will take an important part in the management of the new company.

Sarnoff to Be Chairman.

David Sarnoff, Radio's general manager, has accepted the office as chairman of the new concern, and Radio Corporation will have a substantial representation on the board of directors. The class a stock will be entitled to preferential cumulative dividends of $2 per share annually, after which the two classes of stock will share equally.

Offer to exchange their shares for the shares of the new company has been made first to the Keith-Albee stockholders, who must deposit their shares on or before November 15. The plan shall become effective if 51 per cent of the stock is deposited, and holders of 40 per cent are said to have agreed to the plan already. A similar offer is to be made to F. B. O. stockholders later.

Vaudeville, Films and Radio.

The new company combines vaudeville, talking motion picture exhibition, radio broadcasting, and talking picture production and distribution, through the association of companies having capital aggregating $600,000,000, and places the radio corporation in the amusement field on a large scale. It gives Radio Corporation an outlet for its photophone, for the Vitaphone and Movietone interests had tied up most of the leading producers with contracts to use their devices.

Keith-Albee Orpheum operates a chain of nearly 250 motion picture and vaudeville theaters, while F. B. O. is engaged in producing and distributing motion pictures. Radio Corporation is one of the largest manufacturers of radio receiving sets and broadcasting apparatus, and in addition, operates what is virtually a world-wide radio message business.

Frances Newman, Writer, Dies at 40

Author of "Hard Boiled Virgin" Found Unconscious in Hotel Room.

New York, Oct. 22 (A.P.).—Frances Newman, author of "The Hard Boiled Virgin" and "Dead Lovers Are Faithful Lovers," died at the Hotel Schuyler today.

Miss Newman, who had come to New York from Atlanta to correct the proofs of a new book, was found unconscious from cerebral hemorrhage in her bed last Friday.

Pneumonia set in and she died at 9:45 o'clock this morning. She was about 40 years old. At her bedside were her sister, Mrs. John L. Patterson, of Richmond, Va., and her brother, Henry Newman, of Atlanta. The body was sent to Atlanta for burial.

A native of Atlanta and formerly a newspaper woman and librarian, Miss Newman came into prominence as a novelist four years ago with publication of "The Hard Boiled Virgin," her first novel.

The book on which she was correcting proofs when she was stricken is a translation from the French of short stories by La Fargue.

CALL AT WHITE HOUSE

Underwood & Underwood.

Officers of the French cruiser Duquesne, which took the French Ambassador, Paul Claudel, on a tour of the hurricane-swept French provinces in the West Indies, were greeted by President Coolidge at the White House yesterday.

BRITISH WHITE PAPER BARES ANGLO-FRENCH NAVAL TREATY

concession made to us in the naval sphere."

M. Briand undertook to submit the matter thus suggested to his government. After an exchange of further talks and dispatches, the British admiral, Kelly, early in June at Geneva received the French proposals suggesting classification of four classes, namely, capital ships, aircraft carriers, surface vessels of 10,000 tons mounting bigger than 6-inch guns, and submarines. This was the first appearance of the proposals which eventually formed the basis of the Anglo-French agreement.

Sir Austen Chamberlain, in a dispatch to the British Ambassador at Paris, June 26, undertakes to support the foregoing proposals if submitted by France, and says, "This concession to the British views on naval classification would enable Great Britain to meet the French government by withdrawing their opposition to the French standpoint in regard to army-trained reserves."

France Accepts Principle.

M. Briand, in replying to this note a month later—July 23—indicates that the suggestions made to Admiral Kelly were not official, and not entirely acceptable to France. He says the French government would have preferred that Great Britain should have taken into account the opinion already officially or semiofficially expressed by United States and Japan, and thus should have found it impossible to accept the compromise proposed by the French delegation in 1927. Nevertheless, in its anxiety to bring to a solution the question in the same good will, the French government after careful consideration decided to accept in principle the proposals outlined in Sir Austen Chamberlain's note.

M. Briand in the same note suggests that a method for the application of the proposal should be defined by experts to what they could be submitted to other powers with the greatest advantage, and he further observes:

"It will not have escaped the notice of the British government that an agreement so earnestly desired on all sides can only bear fruit if the United States Government in particular agreed to accept it."

He desires to know whether the British government will take steps to this end at Washington and promises that the French government will not fail to explain the reasons for which in their desire to reach an agreement they thought it their duty not to insist on the adoption of the compromise put forward in 1927.

M. Briand finally expresses the belief that concerted action by France and Great Britain will secure the approval of the naval powers concerned.

Depends on Other Powers.

On July 28 the British Ambassador in Paris communicated to Foreign Minister Briand a note which embodied the compromise which had been reached. This note also stated that both governments agreed that the assent of other naval powers would be essential to success and that it would be for the disarmament conference to fix a maximum tonnage applicable to all powers for surface vessels of 10,000 tons displacement and for ocean-going submarines.

The notification of the compromise was sent to Washington in a telegram addressed to Henry Chilton, British Minister, who was in charge of the embassy there in the absence of Sir Esme Howard. Similar notes were also sent to the British representatives in Rome and Tokio. In these notes the British government expressed the belief that the compromise offered the best, if not the only, prospect of making an advance from the present status of disarmament.

The White paper also includes a long explanatory telegram which Lord Cushendun, acting foreign minister, sent to Mr. Chilton on August 10.

American Dispatch Cited.

In this telegram Lord Cushendun explained that the British government had only reluctantly "proposed to offer no further resistance to the French contention about military reserves at the present time."

The message said that this attitude was adopted because no further progress to military disarmament would be possible as long as this stumbling block remained in the way, and it was not believed that any American interest could be prejudiced thereby.

The White paper gives a long dispatch which Ambassador Houghton, of the United States, delivered to Lord Cushendun under date of September 28. Dispatches exchanged with Japan and Italy are also given and the paper concludes with a summary of the whole matter which Lord Cushendun sent to British representatives abroad.

In this summary Lord Cushendun said that the British government in due course would reply to the objections concerning the accord that were raised by the United States and Italy.

BISHOPS AND LAYMEN CALL UNITED CHRISTENDOM GOAL

present, said the two great objectives of his life at present are building of monuments in France to the memory of the service of American soldiers in the World War and assisting in building Washington Cathedral "to the glory of God."

At the joint session yesterday the Right Rev. William T. Manning, Bishop of New York, read a report on behalf of the joint committee on faith and order on the Lausanne world conference in the absence of Bishop Charles H. Brent, of western New York, who had presided over that gathering.

Bishop Manning called the Lausanne conference, where 80 churches of 40 nations were represented, the most serious gathering ever held in the world. Out of the discussions of Christians of every creed came the general agreement that the common confession of faith must be that as contained in the Apostles and the Nicene creeds.

Father Frederick Sill, O. H. C., of the Kent School, defended modern youth and said it was not irreligious or hypocritical, but wanted knowledge without "bunk." He advised intensive teaching of Christianity in churches and schools in order to instruct the boys and girls before they are sent to colleges.

The Rev. C. Leslie Glenn advised parents and elders dealing with young people to rid themselves of an "inferiority complex" and make those over whom they have jurisdiction obey. He said that youth must be brought to see that the business of living today is worth one's life, just as much as in war days.

Personal Evangelism Urged.

The Rev. S. R. Shoemarker, jr., rector of Calvary Church, New York City, advocated personal evangelism and said that the great problem in evangelism is not unresponsive laymen and outsiders, but is in defective experience and training of Christian workers. The seminaries, he held, should have courses in evangelism which are practical clinics. He declared that too often the Episcopal Church exhibited "rather thinly disguised worldliness and complacency in the matter of evangelical effort."

That evangelism is one of the vital needs of the church today was the sense of a resolution unanimously adopted at the close of the joint meeting. It was offered by former United States Senator George Wharton Pepper, of Pennsylvania.

The report of the commission on Christian healing was read to the House of Bishops by H. C. Wyckhoff, lay deputy of Watsonville, Calif. It was placed on the calendar and will be considered later in the session. The commission has worked for six years in an exhaustive study of the value of Christian healing.

It also was noted that, although Bishop T. I. Reese, head of the commission, is president of the American Guild of Health, and another member of the commission, the Rev. Dr. A. J. G. Banks is head of the Society of the Nazarene, a society which practices Christian healing, none of these or other church organizations which follow healing methods, were commended or mentioned specially in the report. It was stated, however, that efforts that are made by trained men and women under the sanctity of the Episcopal authority, to awaken men to the truth of spiritual healing "are to be commended."

Medical Science Recognized.

In the report, the conviction was expressed that all faith healing should be carried on in close cooperation with medical science and practice. It further pointed out that large numbers of persons throughout the world now believe in and practice spiritual healing.

The report sums up the issue in the following words: "While faith in any supposed remedy produces some effects, vital faith in God, as revealed in Christ is followed by results which are more sure, more lasting and of a more evidently spiritual character." The commission did not outline any uniform method to be employed in spiritual healing and asking that its work be continued for three more years, a permission which undoubtedly will be granted.

An agreement was reached between the two houses yesterday to adjourn the ninth general convention Thursday morning. The final session will be a religious service at the Church of the Epiphany Thursday morning.

In a radio speech last night by the Rev. Charles M. Lathrop, executive secretary of the Department of Social Service, a scathing criticism of an unnamed Maryland jail, called "the worst county jail in the United States," and the Richmond, Va., jail, was made.

Dr. Lathrop declared that there are more than a million people in the city and county jails yearly, and that one person out of every 100 of the population goes into the local jail. He scored the usual condition of American jails as being vermin-infested, unfumigated and for "social stupidity and short-sightedness without equal in the modern world."

"My greatest ambition," exclaimed Dr. Lathrop, "is that every bishop and clergyman should be put into jail. I would like to see every bishop thrown into the worst jail in his diocese—Bishop Murray in Maryland and Bishop Tucker in Richmond. In this matter of jail incarceration, I don't know but I would be entirely willing to widen it, not confine it to my own religious body."

Urging its membership to bring pressure upon the United States Senate for prompt ratification of the Kellogg-Briand peace pact, the multilateral treaty was unanimously indorsed by the Woman's Auxiliary at its session in the Mayflower yesterday.

DETECTIVE SEIZED IN WOMAN'S DEATH

MAN AND WIFE IN JAIL

South Bend, Ind., Oct. 22 (A.P.).—The arrest in Atlanta, Ga., today of Harvey Smith, erstwhile private detective, roving evangelist and carnival worker, authorities here said, may bring a solution of the mysterious slaying of Mrs. Genevieve Stultz, whose body was found in a shallow grave near Elkhart Monday.

Smith and Mr. and Mrs. Charles Reyher, of South Bend, are charged with the murder of the woman. The Reyhers are being held without bond in jail at Goshen.

Mrs. Reyher, who was arrested shortly after the finding of the body, told police she had paid Smith $50 to "get Mrs. Stultz out of town." She had employed Smith, she said, to shadow her husband and Mrs. Stultz, whom she suspected of intimacy.

"I am glad Smith is caught," said Reyher, a real estate operator, when informed of the arrest. "Now the police will be able to solve the murder and clear me. I know Smith only by sight. He shadowed me for a while in South Bend on my wife's orders."

Mrs. Reyher, in another cell at the jail, declined to comment on Smith's arrest.

Although doubt was expressed by South Bend authorities that Smith was the actual slayer of Mrs. Stultz, they indicated he could tell who murdered the woman. The body, covered with lime, was found by a hunter. An autopsy showed that the woman's skull had been crushed. There were two bullet holes in the chest.

Mrs. Stultz left South Bend last March in an automobile, accompanied by a strange man. She never was seen alive again. It was thought at the time that she had eloped.

Smith was said by Atlanta police to have admitted he was paid $50 by Mrs. Reyher to get evidence against Mrs. Stultz, sometimes known as Mrs. Ina Lee.

Smith was arrested this morning when he appeared at the postoffice and asked for mail for John Sanders, an alias by which he was known. John B. Kuespert, chief of detectives of South Bend, had traced him from Alabama to Georgia.

Smith waived extradition and Kuespert and his prisoner started at once for South Bend. They are expected to arrive here Wednesday morning.

Rum Ships Ignored By Supreme Court

Refuses to Pass on Seizures of Two Craft Beyond Three-Mile Limit.

(Associated Press.)

The Supreme Court refused yesterday to pass on a new question in prohibition enforcement challenging the right of the Federal Government to seize foreign vessels outside the three-mile limit, when found to have on board cargoes of intoxicating liquors which had not been listed on a manifest.

The French auxiliary schooner Mistinguette and the British auxiliary schooner Rosie M. B. were seized by the Coast Guard, the former 4½ miles off Long Island, with a liquor cargo valued at $108,000, and the latter 11 miles off Long Island, with a small cargo of malt and malt liquor.

The Federal courts at New York City sustained the Government in its contention that the seizures were legal because neither schooner could produce a manifest covering its cargo, while the position of both at the time of seizure indicated that the cargoes were destined for this country. In challenging the seizures the captains of the vessels denied that the United States had jurisdiction.

Episcopal League Hits 'Romanizing'

Changes Its Name and Says It Will Oppose Illegal Practices.

(Associated Press.)

The National Church League under its new name, the Protestant Episcopal Church League, adopted yesterday as part of a reorganization movement, announced following its business session that it would continue to oppose "illegal and Romanizing practices in the Protestant Episcopal Church."

Other pledges to which its membership subscribed were to maintain and defend the constitution and canons of the Protestant Episcopal Church and to "preserve the rights and liberties of the laity."

The league was one of the most bitter opponents of the proposal to eliminate the thirty-ninth article of religion from the Episcopal book of common prayer and presented a memorial to this effect with 35,000 signers.

'Herbert Hoover' Forfeits Collateral as Inebriate

Spectators in Police Court yesterday were furnished with an unexpected thrill when the clerk of the court began calling the collateral list.

"Herbert Hoover, Herbert Hoover, answer to your name or your collateral is forfeited," the clerk called, and, receiving no response, the collateral was forfeited. Spectators turned about in their seats to glimpse the defendant, but were disappointed.

Herbert Hoover, colored laborer, was arrested by Fourth Precinct police on an intoxication charge Sunday. So now the court has had its quota of namesakes of presidential nominees. A few weeks ago a man, giving the name of Alfred E. Smith, was sent to jail because he could not pay a fine imposed by Judge John P. McMahon on a charge of intoxication.

GRAF LIKELY TO SAIL TO WEST TOMORROW

Eckener and Crew Entertained by Mayor Thompson in Chicago.

ARE LUNCHEON GUESTS

Chicago, Oct. 22 (A.P.).—Undismayed by a downpour of rain, Chicago honored the commander and crew of the Graf Zeppelin today and in return was assured a view of the giant air liner as it makes a trip through the Midwest later this week.

Dr. Hugo Eckener, commander of the transoceanic airship, said his plans for the flight from Lakehurst, N. J., through the West were not yet definite, depending somewhat upon weather conditions. While he had originally planned to leave Lakehurst Thursday morning, he said today he perhaps would start Wednesday night so that Cleveland could be reached early the next morning.

The commander said he believed the better route for him to take would be from Lakehurst to Cleveland, thence to Detroit, and on to Chicago and St. Louis, provided a southwest wind was blowing. "I must have a free hand to do as I think best in accordance with weather conditions," he said.

Many Seek Trip to Germany.

Commenting on the return trip to Germany, Dr. Eckener said he had been besieged with requests for passage. The fare will be $3,000 he indicated, but described that as a "fancy price." When regular service is started, he said, fares probably would be $1,000 or $1,200.

Dr. Eckener and his party, including his son, Knut, were received in behalf of the city by Mayor William Hale Thompson at a reception in the city hall.

Later they were guests of the mayor at a luncheon. A public reception and dinner in the evening preceded the party's departure for Lakehurst.

Repairs to Be Finished Soon.

Naval Air Station, Lakehurst, N. J., Oct. 22 (A.P.).—Lieut. Comdr. Zeno W. Wicks, repair officer in charge of work on the Graf Zeppelin, today announced that repairs on the ship's damaged port fin would be completed by Wednesday afternoon.

Approximately 198,000 cubic feet of gas, similar to the blue gas which the Zeppelin burns in its engines, have been pumped into the tanks. Tests were made yesterday with the American gas and the results were satisfactory.

Lieut. Comdr. Wicks said that about 124,000 cubic feet of hydrogen would be put into the craft tomorrow, as well as 13,000 gallons of gasoline to be carried as reserve fuel.

Two Utility Witnesses To Be Recalled Today

(Associated Press.)

The Federal Trade Commission announced yesterday that A. E. Smith, comptroller and assistant secretary of the Electric Bond and Share Co., of New York, and Ralph P. Feagin, vice president in charge of public relations of that company, who declined to answer certain questions last week in the public utility finance investigation, will be recalled to the stand today. E. P. Summerson, secretary of the company, also is expected to testify.

Further inquiry into publicity activities of the public utilities will be made tomorrow when Robert Montgomery, sales manager of the Louisville Gas and Electric Co., Louisville, Ky., and Mrs. Josephine Corliss Preston, of Olympia, Wash., are to testify.

GOVERNMENT IN BUSINESS.

The proposition that the Government should engage in business has appealed to many citizens who have not taken the time to make a close study of the subject. Because the Government conducts such vast businesses as the postal service, the development of waterways and highways, the conduct of international relations, the administration of justice, the national defense, the promotion of agriculture and commerce, and mediation between labor and capital, it is hastily presumed that the Government could with equal success manufacture and distribute electric light and power, superintend a legalized liquor traffic, and fix the prices and supervise the distribution of agricultural products. To all citizens who have been inclined to favor putting the Government in business the address of Mr. Hoover in New York is especially commended.

No other address has so carefully and thoroughly analyzed the situation that would result from Government operation of business. Mr. Hoover explains that the principle of self-government, which has made this country both free and great, is assailed by the proposal that the Government shall engage in business. Government business must be a monopoly; therefore no individual or corporation can hope to compete with the Government. Wherever the Government enters the individual must retire. But the resulting service does not bring satisfaction, because the Government can not successfully manage business enterprises. Its board of directors necessarily consists of the total membership of Congress; and Mr. Hoover points out that this board of directors talked six solid years on the subject of handling the Muscle Shoals plant. As individuals can not be intrusted with the enormous operations that would be called for, boards and commissions would have to be set up, and political quarrels would immediately destroy the efficiency of those commissions.

Hundreds of thousands of employes would be required to do the Government's work if it should set up in the business of manufacturing light and power or try to supervise the marketing of farm products. Are these employes to be Democrats, as a Democratic administration would like to have them, or Republicans, as a Republican administration would prefer? Naturally, business sense would rule out politics, and would demand that employes should be neither Democrats nor Republicans. Thus their political independence would have to be sacrificed, as it is in the civil service now. To the extent that the Government entered into business it would encroach upon the independence and self-government of the people, and would impose upon them a bureaucratic dictatorship.

Mr. Hoover witnessed many experiments in government operation of business in Europe, and in every case he saw that it was at the expense of popular government. The United States fortunately turned away from Government monopoly of business after the war, and resumed its place as "umpire rather than player." Thereupon the enterprise of its citizens brought business back to efficiency and economical operation.

The policy of keeping the Government out of business does not mean that the United States or the States shall throw away their ownership of resources, such as water power or public lands. The Government is bound to protect the people's property. This protection can be achieved without committing the blunder of setting up a great bureaucracy to engage in business. The mails are carried by contract, warships and dirigibles are made by contract, food and other supplies for the Army and Navy are obtained by contract, highways are built by contract, public buildings are erected by contract, and in many other ways the Government conserves the public property while refraining from business enterprise. It would be no more foolish for the Government to take over the railroads for the purpose of carrying the mails itself than it would to build and operate vast electric power plants on the sites it may own.

The political and economic freedom of American citizens, protected by the Government, is the mainspring of prosperity. It is this freedom that is protected by the tariff, which enables Americans to monopolize their own market, the richest in the world. The economic freedom of the worker is maintained by restrictive immigration. American citizens will develop business successfully if they are given equality of opportunity, and if they are not asked to compete with their own Government. They will provide all that the Government needs, and experience does not show that the Government is swindled when it makes contracts with its citizens.

Government consists in rules that apply to all alike. It is utterly destroyed in its nature when it becomes a competitor with those over whom it has the power of life and death. As Mr. Hoover suggests, no worker for the Government can strike. How would Gov. Smith retain the rights of labor employed by the Government in the operation of power plants and in the supervision of agriculture?

DEFECTIVE BRIDGE STEEL.

Careful observation by an inspector, followed by rigid inspection by Bureau of Standards experts, has disclosed, it is said, that 1,300 I-beams for the Highway Bridge were found to be defective. It is fortunate that this discovery was made before the beams were set in place. Microscopic cracks have also been found in "clip angles," small steel plates riveted to the ends of the beams through which the rivets to hold the beams to the side of the bridge are driven.

While contracts call for the delivery of sound material, the elusive nature of the unsoundness may relieve all concerned from the charge of carelessness. Yet catastrophe when it arises from mechanical defects seldom points back an accusing finger. It is therefore gratifying that the defective material was detected; and the important part the Bureau of Standards played in the matter shows the advantage of subjecting such materials to its tests.

The discovery of the defects in these beams has induced added precautionary measures in addition to substitution of sound beams for those at fault. A survey made by the Virginia State Highway Commission shows that the bridge carries as much as 22 vehicles a minute, 26 per cent of which are heavy trucks. Now that the railroads have adopted devices by which the presence of hidden defects in rails may be electrically detected, it may be presumed that steel structural materials will be submitted to similar tests where this material is to be made to bear heavy strain and to involve human safety.

DOUBLE TAXATION.

American economists are seeking to do a service for American industry abroad by attempting to awaken Americans to the importance of this country cooperating in efforts to do away with double taxation. An international conference, meeting at Geneva, and participated in by such academic and practical economists as Prof. T. S. Adams, of Yale; E. C. Alvord, of the Treasury Department, and Mitchell B. Carroll, of the Department of Commerce, is seeking to bring about the adoption of a common practice by all nations toward the taxing of persons residing abroad. The central idea is that individuals having foreign residence shall pay taxes only in the country from which they derive their income. This would either result in paying to one country only, or of division by reason of the income being from more than one country.

The fact that the business men of the United States might find themselves in the position of competing abroad with those whose taxation had been simplified and lightened through their countries' subscription to the principle of the model convention is taken as practical inducement for the people of America to familiarize themselves with the matter, and the factors involved.

There is at present nothing actually at stake, as the plan is still in the stage of projection. Double taxation is not, however, unfamiliar, as between some of the American States themselves. It would seem to be the direction of logical precedence for the States to set themselves in order in this similar situation. An appellant before the tax commissioners of a certain State against taxation of securities issued in another State upon the ground of their being already taxed in the State of their origin is met with the rejoinder: "Yes, we admit that it is a case of double taxation; so, we would recommend to go to the other State and have them remit; we will not." A common practice among all American States is much to be desired, as much as a common practice by all the nations of the earth.

IN HONOR OF EDISON.

"In the space of a single lifetime," said Secretary of the Treasury Mellon in presenting a congressional gold medal to Mr. Edison in recognition of his work in the field of electricity, "Thomas Edison has changed the conditions under which men live; and, more than any one else now living, has helped to bring about a new social order, based upon the achievements of modern science."

Not often does a nation reward its heroes while they live, and less often are men of science singled out for signal recognition. The presentation of this medal was a unique and impressive event. Edison is first of all a practical scientist, applying the discoveries and formulae of pure science to the benefit of humankind. His practical inventions make an impressive list. The phonograph, the motion picture camera, the incandescent light—these and others have altered radically the complexion of the time and have served to create vast industries in which thousands find employment. For all his achievements, Edison has remained in harness, continuing at his experiments long after passing the usual age of retirement.

The medal bestowed upon Mr. Edison comes from the American people. It testifies to the fact that his accomplishment is not unrecognized, that his contribution to the comfort, happiness and well-being of humankind is not unappreciated. No medal, however, is necessary to preserve his name, for it stands in the forefront of the small roll of those who "effect profound changes, not only in the lives of their contemporaries, but of all succeeding generations."

BETTER SENSE OF COLOR.

In no other form of the manipulation of light has there been such interesting development as that which relates to colors. The growth of the world in color sense and appreciation is not less marked than was the steady deadening of the refinements of hearing as a result of modern noise. Fortunately for the refinements of hearing the radio is serving to the multitudes some of the loftiest types of music, and the soul sense that lies back of hearing is reasserting itself.

In the matter of colors, the ramification of dyes into shades and tints that were utterly unknown two decades ago, and the uses of made colors in ways to intrigue the fancy and stimulate the taste amply disclose the place color has assumed in the economy of modern life. It is no longer the artist with his trained eye who alone can detect the glint of green in the sunbeam that "slips through the foliage in a bosky bit of woods." Women, particularly, with their reactions to multitudes of shades and hues, are said to be becoming unconsciously equipped with a practical art appreciation that could not have been so generally acquired except by the study of art itself.

Back of the color movement, which is so pronounced in making materials of common use more agreeable, there is to be found a general emancipation of the times from drab and dull effects and ideas. The psychologist says that the newer color movement is all a matter of mental adjustment. But the manufacturers of dyes and the bureau that keeps track of exports and imports of dyes and dye materials and dyed products allege it is because invention has been color active. The people of this country have in their possession a range of processes for making dyes that was not before imagined. Invention is constantly adding to the oldest of human arts, that of application of color to material. The yield of dye vats for 1927 amounted to 5,960,000 pounds as compared with 4,030,000 pounds for 1926. American ingenuity has leaped the bars and sought color effects with pioneer daring, so that "it does not merely follow the footsteps of older dye-producing nations, but has developed many new and important dyes." The world's products are increasingly viewed through colored glasses.

FORDSON'S TRACTORS NEW HOME.

Considerable indignation was felt in the Irish Free State last summer when it became known that the Ford Motor Co. had decided to transfer its Irish plant for the production of automobiles from Cork to England. That decision meant the discontinuance of a large weekly pay roll in the principal southern city of the Free State, the throwing idle of many employes, and a consequent deplorable economic loss. The indignation was not against the Ford people, who, it was recognized, were the victims of circumstances in the shape of tariff regulations as between Britain and the Free State. It was directed rather against the two governments, each being blamed for the situation according to the prejudices and predilections of the individual faultfinder. The distasteful and hateful fact was, however, there, and it seemed that nothing could be done about it.

But a new move on the part of the Michigan manufacturing concern has dispelled the gloom and brought back joy and gladness to Irish hearts. Within the last few days it has been learned that the main Fordson tractor plant is to be moved from America and established at Cork. Approximately 80 per cent of the tractor-making machinery and equipment is, one is informed, already being removed to the Irish city on Ford vessels. It is to be reassembled there, and will be in operation by January 1 next. It will be worked on a basis of two eight-hour shifts a day, and will have a daily output of some 300 tractors. The wage bill is estimated at $5,000,000 a year.

There is natural jubilation throughout the Irish Free State at this unexpected turn of events. It was voiced by President Cosgrave, who sits in the Dail Eireann as member for Cork, when he said:

> I am delighted to hear that news. It will mean a good deal to the industrial life of the city of Cork, and, indeed, to all of south Ireland, to have this hive of industry in our midst. I can assure the Ford people that their representatives will receive a hearty welcome * * * Merchants and traders generally anticipate Ford's coming with pleasure, and so do civic chiefs and labor representatives * * * Cork will be found a fine center for carrying on trade.

It is well understood, of course, that, in making the decision at which they have arrived, the keen business heads behind the Fordson tractor were not influenced by any mere philanthropic or humanitarian considerations. One reason for the removal is that the space until recently given over to the tractor is required for the manufacture of the new model A Ford car. The second and principal reason is, however, that increased demand in Europe for tractors has made increased production overseas advisable. That demand comes at present mostly from Britain, Ireland, Germany and Russia, but it will almost to a certainty extend to other countries, when they learn the advantages of the tractor and the readiness with which orders for it can be filled. In this connection, it is interesting, and also highly suggestive, to note that Kemal Pasha, who is seeking to educate his people in Western ways by example as well as by precept, has a model farm in Turkey, on which he has already 19 Fordson tractors at work. In fact, the possibilities before the tractor in practically every European country are well-nigh illimitable.

Americans who visited Ireland last summer were forcibly struck by the number of British and German firms that have started factories and business establishments in Dublin and other cities. The Fords, who led the way in this development of the island, have had experience of Cork, and it is evident that it is suitable to their requirements. In President Cosgrave's phrase, they will probably find Cork "a fine center for carrying on trade."

Trouble Aplenty.

Philadelphia Inquirer: In this campaign party lines seem to be crossed wires.

Boston Transcript: The weather man is respectfully notified that there has got to be a cold gray dawn for somebody inside of three weeks.

Cincinnati Enquirer: The question of life after death has been solved by a Texas headline writer, who wrote: "Texan Kills Self and Shoots Wife."

Well, They're Pickled Yet.

Detroit News: Who can remember when the bulk of the large, stone crocks in the basement were occupied by home-made, salt-water pickles?

An Ideal Month.

Caruthersville Republican: October should be an ideal month for the most of us—no grass to cut and no snow to shovel and little, if any, coal to bring in.

Don't Get Too Excited.

Boston Transcript: Campaign enthusiasm is all very well, but enthusiasts ought not to forget that both candidates are honest men.

Why Tint 'em?

Minneapolis Journal: Chicago is to have tinted telephone poles. The driver who hits one usually sees several colors anyhow.

Al Loses Wisconsin.

Detroit News: With everything set in Wisconsin, Al Smith made that irretrievable blunder: He accented La Follette on the third syllable.

A Foolish Move.

Louisville Courier Journal: A campaign to abolish the death penalty has been launched in England. If successful it will allow England to compete with the United States in murders.

Or Enduring It.

Fort Wayne News Sentinel: For all too many of us, middle age means that period of life when we spend a good share of our time anticipating some new ache or pain.

Kidding Al.

Indianapolis News: Now that Al Smith has worked on President Coolidge's economy record, maybe he will see what he can do with proof that the President talks too much.

The Infernal Lamp.

St. Louis Post-Dispatch: Our personal objection is that, no matter what sort of shade you put on a certain type of lamp, it always looks like a certain type of lamp.

Now It Goes for Gas.

Rushville Republican: Remember the good old days when the people in the rural districts had so much money they could afford to buy a gold brick once in a while?

Scalp Treatment.

Natchez Democrat: The Osage maiden who spent $38 in one month for scalp treatments had a great-granddaddy who gave them to the white visitors for nothing.

Great Stand-By.

Indianapolis News: A candidate perplexed about how to answer questions as to whether he is wet or dry can, in an emergency, always fall back on the Constitution of the United States of America.

Saturday's Games.

Baltimore Sun: Saturday's games were thrilling enough, by all accounts, and a review of the reports discloses the prominence which the forward pass has attained as an offensive weapon. Navy's victory over Duke, by virtue of a captured fumble and plunging gains, was almost the only important triumph of the day which owed nothing to the new method of advance. Does this look as if football prowess were unfairly dependent on a special stunt? Perhaps so; but when the "Lawford" stroke came into tennis its exponents cleaned up for a while, and yet the game has now been made even speedier, every one knows even better strokes and the temporary inequality has vanished.

Gentle Feminine Influence.

Ohio State Journal: We have never seen another campaign where woman's gentle influence was so much in evidence, and one member of the Diet and Girdle Club of the Franklin Avenue Protective Association has already sat in the most determined and thorough manner on seven separate and distinct brown derbies.

Lost in National Affairs.

Philadelphia Ledger: Gov. Smith is having as much trouble about his attacks on "Coolidge economy" as he has with his tariff, farm and immigration "policies." He still is trying to explain his Sedalia speech, and is making a messy job of it. About the easiest way for him would be to admit that he is now, for the first time, learning the difference between "authorized expenditures" and actual "appropriations." Talk about "trick bookkeeping" will not help him. The economies he assails are genuine, and the swift and devastating reply of Secretary Mellon drove the New Yorker far out on a limb. It is possible that the governor, after all his years of public life, does not know the everyday facts about how Federal appropriations are and always have been made.

Uncle Sam, Goat.

Houston Post-Dispatch: The United States, the richest Nation in the world, wants universal and permanent peace. The European nations ought to agree and sign covenants and things for permanent peace so far as the United States is concerned. They ought to leave some place where they can buy munitions and borrow money when they are at war with one another.

Beggars Must Show Off.

Atchison Globe: A very rich man once said that it's hardly worth while for anybody to wear solid gold jewelry; that if you're poor nobody will believe it is gold, and if you are well-to-do they will think it is gold anyway. Which recalls that the writer once met John D. Rockefeller, jr., and felt sure the suit he was wearing was a hand-me-down and didn't cost more than $16.

HOOVER FOR PRESIDENT

To the Editor of the Post—Sir: The Washington Post, which has been friendly toward Gov. Smith all along, now turns over for Hoover. This is no surprise to me. Indeed, I had thought all along that this would be the case just before election. You know there is an old proverb, "Republicans always go home to roost just before elections."

At first The Post appeared to favor Smith, according to the theory of fair play, and then after the campaign begins to look pretty serious for the party candidate, it gradually withdraws its support from Smith and leans strongly toward Hoover. It looks like the work of a master strategist.

While I believe Hoover is a good man, I believe he is handicapped by the party. People just can't forget about the old line party heads who poured oil and corruption all over the name of the G. O. P. I just don't believe the party will be returned to power, after all this.

This country may be prosperous in spots. But where is the prosperity in the farm belt? Why so many bank failures?

Something must be done about agricultural conditions. Promises of the Republicans mean nothing. This sort of thing just can't go on.

HARRY ALEXANDER,
513 B street southeast.
Washington, D. C.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I have been a reader of The Post since it was The Post, and its predecessor, the Patriot, and I regret the fact that you are taking your paper out of the field of independent journalism. If there is any community in this country where an independent newspaper would appeal to the general public, it is right here in this disfranchised District. The Post's changed attitude is somewhat startling as in the earlier stages of the campaign it was apparently pro-Smith. Being a member of no church organization, I am in a position to heartily indorse your stand on the religious aspect of the campaign. Will continue to read The Post for news. OLD TIMER.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I have just finished reading your editorial in which you come out for Hoover, giving the tariff as the reason, which you have a perfect right to do, but as a Democrat, I object to you misrepresenting Gov. Smith's position on that question and putting words in his mouth which he never used and quoting them as if used by him. You say: Gov. Smith virtually says to the voters, "The Republican tariff policy has been right and ours has been wrong. We now admit that prosperity and high wages can not be maintained by us unless we imitate the Republican tariff policy. That is a genuine thing, ours is an imitation. We ask you to turn away from the real thing and accept the imitation."

These are your words, not Smith's which you put in his mouth with quotations. Gov. Smith never said anything of the kind, never even intimated such a tariff policy and it is not only misleading to the reader but downright duplicity intended to confuse the unsuspecting mind of the average reader of your paper who does not take the trouble to digest things. Besides, there is no prosperity in this country excepting for the privileged few. There are millions of men out of employment, to say nothing of the distress in the agricultural, textile and coal industries.

W. J. DWYER.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Sincere congratulations.

JOHN N. QUINN,
Takoma Park, D. C.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I want sincerely to commend the staff and management for their editorial this morning taking a definite stand for Herbert Hoover for President. It is to me one of the sanest editorials I have seen during the campaign.

I want also to thank the paper for its consideration of the work being done by our general convention.

DAVID LINCOLN FERRIS,
Bishop Coadjutor, Western New York.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: It was with great pleasure that I read in today's Post it's determination to return to sanity. For many years I have read the editorials in The Post with entire satisfaction, finding them in nearly every instance broad, comprehensive and showing a high order of intelligence.

(Mrs.) FLORENCE S. AUGUSTE

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Bully for you! Your editorial in Sunday's paper was most timely.

A. G. THOMAS.

KEEPING YOUNG.

When he was well past 80, Dr. Harvey Wiley said that his plan of meeting old age and keeping it at bay was to do a little more work every year than he had done the year before. Most persons would be more youthful and happy in age, if they did a little more work than those around them usually think they should do, says the Minneapolis Journal. This work should not be drudgery, but something in which they can express themselves. It is the creative spirit, the creative energy in us, carried into activity, that makes work delightful and gives it the rejuvenating quality that fends off age.

An English writer, Edgar Wallace, has recently come into prominence because of the prodigious amount of creative work he carries out every year. Mr. Wallace has produced 26 readable novels and 6 plays in a single year. And the plays are good plays, too. Six of them are running in England now. His novels are popular reading at our public library.

Mr. Wallace has the assistance of secretaries who take his rapid dictation, read proofs and attend to the mechanical part of the work. But the creative part of it is his alone. His case recalls the remark of William James that we all have reservoirs of energy that are never tapped.

Activity is the creative life in expression. If we cease to create and cease to keep in a state of activity, old age and death begin to make their inroads. Retirement from business activities has brought sudden senescence to many a man who should have had ahead of him years of useful effort and of happiness in the effort.

Keep active and allow the creative spirit to have its way. That is the best remedy for age. Dr. Alexis Carrel, biologist of the Rockefeller Institute, says that "the number of years during which a man has lived has nothing to do with his real age."

BRET HARTE.

Despite the claims of numerous biographies and the popular belief that Bret Harte must have experienced personally the "hell-roarin'" life of California's gold rush days in order to have written about it so well, there are no authentic records to show that he was ever other than a literary, dandified and urbane, not to say ladylike personage, according to George R. Stewart, jr., of the University of California.

Prof. Stewart has made a study of Bret Harte's career and takes issue with the claims of biographers concerning the romantic flavor of Harte's early life, and states there are no authentic proofs of his ever having been a "rip-roaring, two-gun, red shirted, Jesse-James-and-Dead-Eye-Dick hellion."

Prof. Stewart cites five claims of biographers which he finds more or less legendary; that Harte served as a soldier against the Indians; that he was a tax collector in the mines; that he was a gun guard or express messenger for Wells-Fargo; that he had experience as a miner; and that he traveled widely for a considerable time through the mining districts.

Of these claims he says that the first two have no foundation in fact. If he worked for the Wells-Fargo, it was probably as a weigher of packages or a balancer of books. His experience as a miner could probably be counted in days rather than months. His travel through the mining districts was probably confined to a two months' excursion looking for a school to teach, with perhaps a little amateur work with a mining pan.

His time was spent, Prof Stewart finds, rather in tutoring, teaching, clerking for an apothecary, helping in a newspaper office and practicing writing. His material for tory writing was probably gleaned from newspaper exchanges and from acquaintances, who had had mining experience. Even Harte's own statements concerning his youth do not check up with known facts, and were probably an excusable attempt to capitalize on the popular legends for the sake of romance and publicity.

BEHIND THE SCREENS

With NELSON B. BELL

Bigger and better pictures used to be the goal of the movie industry. Now it is louder and longer talkies.

Only a few months ago it was a novelty to hear and see a one-reel talking picture. Today one can listen to so-called 100 per cent talkies running into seven reels, while with each new picture the producers are installing more microphones on the set to catch a greater variety of noises.

In the screen opera version of "The Desert Song" film fans will hear at one and the same time the voices of six principals, 100 singers in the chorus and a 50-piece orchestra playing the accompaniment. And that is only one picture. Nat Ross, who has made 32 silent collegiate comedies with Dorothy Gulliver, George Lewis, Churchill Ross and other juveniles, is going to make the big leap in his next one and put all the rah-rah and rough-house of a college campus full strength on the screen. While Rowland V. Lee promises to screen in "The Wolf of Wall Street" all the turmoil of a hectic day in the stock exchange, as well as the voice of George Bancroft.

For the benefit of those who are interested in such things, it should be said that the war is being fought—with all its boom-booms and rat-a-tats—at both the Rialto and the Fox. Anyone who wasn't there and wants to know how it probably didn't sound can find out for a modest four bits!

People who like pets will be glad to hear that dogs with good voices will get their chance in the talking films. Mervyn LeRoy is just now in the midst of testing dog-applicants for a role in "Ritzy Rosie." He really needs two hounds; but one of them, which will belong to the hero, must be a quiet, unobstrusive dog. The other will belong to the heroine and will be talkative enough for two of them.

If the movies move more smoothly on the screen this winter grateful fans can thank the cow, that versatile animal which is the source of so many things besides milk and butter and cheese. Condensed milk has been found to be an excellent substitute for the wax used in polishing films ready for shipment to theaters. The film is polished, of course, to make it run smoothly through the projection machine, but there will always be people mean enough to suggest that even the condensed milk treatment can not keep some screen voices from curdling.

And those "sour notes" do not sound any sweeter on Vitaphone or Movietone than they do when Sophie Glutz turns them loose in the parlor!

As long as we are chattering so volubly on the various aspects of the sound-picture, it might not be amiss to make known that the World War veterans from Walter Reed Hospital will witness the performance scheduled for 1 p. m., today at the Rialto Theater. The story of "The Melody of Love" was written by Robert Arch, a newspaper staff correspondent during the conflict.

Arch chose as his theme, the idea that intense longing for the use of a paralyzed member often leads to the recovery from seemingly hopeless affliction of that part. It is so in the story and, if need should occur, it would be possible to cite the case of a musician now active in a Washington theater orchestra who went through the identical experience that Walter Pidgeon simulates on the Rialto screen.

I can name him, but see no need of doing so here.

Sound-recording engineers around Hollywood allege they can put onto celluloid notes "so low they are felt rather than heard." Notes, no doubt, like the deep organ tones which occasionally shake the church during the playing of an anthem. On the other hand, some vibrations which almost go unnoticed in offscreen life register loudly on the screen. The faint purr of an X-ray apparatus in a doctor's office scene the other day registered on celluloid as a roar that drowned out all other sounds in the scene.

Ever since talking pictures began to be talked about there have been hints to the effect that some of the he-man heroes of the silent screen have voices which photograph soprano. The real embarrassment of the movies just now, however, seems to spring from the voices of the hard-boiled characters who heretofore have been portraying gruff brutality and boisterous villainy without sound effects.

The situation is not serious among the high-salaried low-brows. Louis Wolheim, for example, alongside whom the most famous pirates of history would look effeminate, usually sounds just as hard-boiled as he looks. But among the many bit players and extras who heretofore could be relied upon to make the film fan's blood run cold by scowling here and there in a picture it is almost impossible to find a handful with he-man voices.

Almost without exception, reports Dave Allen, manager of the studios' central casting bureau, the heartless brutes of the extra ranks speak in high, harmless voices. Many of them are losing talking picture opportunities to rivals who look less terrifying on the screen but sound vicious in front of a microphone.

Among the girls of the extra ranks a somewhat similar situation has arisen, except that it is the beautiful girl with the big wardrobe who is finding competition much keener in the talkies than it was for her in silent films. The beautiful face and the faultless wardrobe still are desirable, but frequently of late the more moderately beautiful girl with a pleasing voice has been taking work away from the Class A dress extra who mumbles her words.

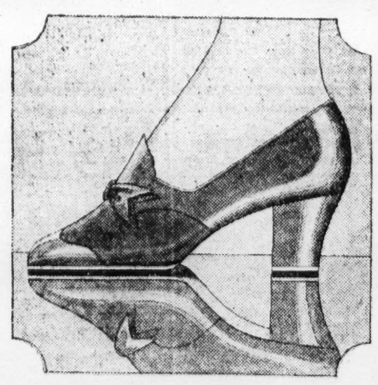

Actions, it seems, no longer speak louder than words!

Portrait of a Young Lady
by ABBOTT H. THAYER

WHO was a dreamer of beauty. Thayer's brush was a magic one! He had original ideas of the principles of shading and counter shading and all his portrait canvasses reflect his genius in the use of white paint and light and shadow depth.

In Underwood portraits you have the superb lighting effects of great masters whose works are prohibitive in price to the average person. $20 a dozen is a small sum to buy the skill of the world's foremost photographers.

A strike has been in progress at the mine several days. When police dispersed a group of strikers at the mine entrance this morning they found Papinchak lying in a nearby field dead from a bullet wound. He had been doing picket duty since the strike. At police headquarters Parker readily confessed to the shooting, police said. He said he had been pushed around and generally abused by the union pickets when he started to work and pulled out his gun and fired.

BRITISH WAIT RADIO TO MARS ANXIOUSLY

Meantime Dr. H. M. Robinson Adds Details to Story of Visiting Planet.

WANTS U. S. TO LISTEN IN

London, Oct. 22 (United Press).—Not only England, but the planet of Mars, as well, is waiting with some anxiety, and probably a bit of skepticism for Wednesday's scheduled attempt to send a wireless message from the powerful Rugby station to the planet.

This was revealed tonight by the man who is sending—and paying the Government for sending—the message, Dr. Hugh Mansfield Robinson. In an interview he gave further details of the planet and its people.

At the same time Dr. Robinson said he hoped United States radio stations capable of receiving a message from Mars on a 32,000-meter wave length, would listen in for the reply to his message for half an hour after 2:15 a. m., Greenwich time, Wednesday (9:15 p. m. Thursday, Eastern standard time).

"There is never any question of disarmament in Mars," said Dr. Robinson, "because Martians have learned to split the atom, which enables them to destroy an entire army corps instantly if they so desire. This fact is sufficient itself to cure any planet of the possible desire to attack its superpowerful neighbor."

Dr. Robinson said he had visited Mars a number of times, his spirit and body traveling through space at the same speed as light, while he held the hand of a Martian woman, "Oonaruru." This woman has communicated with Dr. Robinson many times by telepathy, he said.

The capital of Mars is "Ookalonga," he continued, and, upon his arrival there, Dr. Robinson said he felt as though he had been volplaning in an airplane. The psychic Martian woman told Dr. Robinson that Martians send and receive wireless messages, and that the planet has many 30,000-meter wavelength stations.

Dr. Robinson will attempt to send two messages to the Mars stations. Both are written in secret code and say "Love to Mars" and "God is love." He said he tipped the Martians off by telepathy, and they will be waiting to receive the message. He also said he had asked them to send their answer to the message by telepathy as well as by wireless.

Then he plans to translate the reply "in case of atmospheric interference we terrestrial attempts to receive the answer." He said it required about eight minutes to get a reply from Mars.

Slaying Laid to Clash Over Moonshine Sugar

Kansas City, Oct. 22 (A.P.).—Police believe a brown sugar combine here, which, they say, seeks to furnish brown sugar exclusively to liquor manufacturers, was responsible for the murder of Joe Wilner, a baker, Saturday night. Wilner was killed when his motor car was riddled with bullets as he drove home.

The police say Wilner used three bakeries he owned as blinds for selling brown sugar in large quantities to illicit liquor manufacturers, thus incurring enmity of the combine. The sugar is used in some liquors to give them alcoholic content, in others for coloring.

The action of the play takes place in the large room on the second floor of Gethsemane Church Parsonage, New York City, between noon and midnight on a Sunday in June.

Any time religion forms the thesis, theme, or background of drama, immediately come into conflict all the latent prejudices of human nature—so that honest as a man may be he finds, in any one of a dozen plays, a distorted picture. At least that has been the experience with religious plays, or plays dealing with religion, save in one or two outstanding exceptions.

In the play at the National, "Revolt," Harry Wagstaff Gribble lays bare the heart of a minister of the gospel—and though he does a magnificent piece of workmanship, in so far as the psychology of the play is concerned, he has gone so deep down into the subject that it becomes somewhat revolting.

Fanatics, of course, abound in all places—especially in those fields where men may throw themselves heart and soul into their work. The Rev. Barnabas Ford has killed a wife off in her prime because of his intense devotion to an ideal. There are three girls—Faith, Hope and Charity—and a boy, Paul, and these, too, have come to suffer because of their father's relentless worship at the shrine.

Two of the youngsters, Hope and Paul, revolt. That is the crux of the drama. How it is worked out becomes a matter of such excruciating pain that the last scene, copied verbatim from the Russian school, wherein a shot ends a life, is absolutely appalling. By the time this is enacted an audience, held intense, has seen all and knows all.

There is little comedy relief here; or, hardly any. It is stolid, sometimes sordid, but nevertheless supreme tragedy. The old man, blinded by his righteousness, permits himself to be hoodwinked by a charlatan having a daughter supposed to be an evangelist. A revival in the church, a complete collapse of the pseudo-evangelist, and the man's life work goes topsy-turvy. That is about all there is to it, save that Harry Wagstaff Gribble has gone into enough detail to fill a novel. Not a point is untouched.

Two high lights of drama stand out—one where a pitcher of ice-water poured, impromptu, into the face of a hysterical girl causes collapse from religious fervor, and another where the ministerial father is on the verge of striking his own daughter. For the most part, all the other touches of drama are by means of recitation. Group after group sits around and listens to such recitals, one a stirring tale of a boy crucified by his classmates—in the realm of hazing, because he was a minister's son.

Hugh Buckler, intrusted with the role of the minister, is nothing short of glorious in the part—an intense study of fanatical emotionalism seldom seen on the stage. The man is mountainous in his make-believe.

The popular idea of a minister's son, a boy who goes to the other end of the tether, young Ashland Powell plays with a surety that stamps him at once as an unusual juvenile. He gives what lightness there is to the play.

Then there is the daughter who kicks over the traces, though always with restraint. She is splendidly played by Elizabeth Allen, a dainty little actress with a flair for quiet comedy.

A native Washingtonian, sister of a stage celebrity, Helen Lackaye played the scheming mother of the girl evangelist, and played the part adroitly.

No denying the fact that this is an interesting study of a phase of life quite well known and recognized in some quarters. Nor should any one say that Harry Wagstaff Gribble has failed to plumb the very depths of it all, but there must be this qualification—it stalks with feet heavily shod, and with too little action on stage.

JOHN J. DALY.

There is more of the moon in Jane Cowl's new play which had its opening last night at Poli's, than is contained in the title, "The Jealous Moon."

There is much of the spell of unreality which Luna's rays can so well accomplish, but there is more of the essence of romance. From all of which may be gathered the fact that the brief period intervening between a near midnight curtain and the exigencies of press time is not sufficiently long to allow the subsidence of the havoc which moonlight traditionally wreaks on the human brain.

In this case, also, a star is particeps criminis; for Jane Cowl is credited with co-authorship of the play and there is no question of her double triumph. Evidently despairing of finding in contemporary drama a play to match her unforgettable Juliet and equally well-remembered Melisande, Miss Cowl has turned to the oldest romantic drama of all, the Harlequinade, and so invested it with the changes of imagination, the beauties of skillful acting and the color of artistic settings that it seems ageless, as, of course, it is.

Some taste of the unique flavor of the play is gained with the curtain's rise when a tiny Marionette theater is observed and the puppets enact the closing scene of "Pierrot and Columbine." Then as the curtains are drawn a life and blood Pierrot appears in the person of Philip Merrivale, last seen with Miss Cowl in "The Road to Rome."

The human Pierrot in his life with the puppet show is experiencing much the same tragedy of romance that the dolls enact and pondering over it falls asleep. From then until the final scene into his dreams are woven the mixed adventures of the Harlequinade, of "Hamlet" and of "Romeo and Juliet," which comprise the repertoire of the Marionette theater. Of course they all are touched with the spell of "The Jealous Moon," to which Pierrot attributes his romantic misadventures.

Young William A. Brady, who, with Dwight Deere Wiman, appears as producer, has shown much of his father's directorial genius in the production. Last night's performance moved with the smoothness of an established run with the one exception that Miss Cowl evidently did not anticipate the warmth of the ovation which followed the second act and was caught unprepared for her recall.

The supporting cast is excellent and includes Guy Standing as Harlequin. To single out any of the others would do an injustice to a long list of capable players.

The dream of the human Pierrot is suggested during the acts by a gigantic hand which is suspended over the proscenium of the supposedly Marionette theater and it is believed will prove prophetic.

When Your Child's Report Card Reads Only "Fair"

It's Time to RAISE Your Home's Lighting Standards

ASK YOURSELF: "Is our home as well lighted as the children's classroom?" Poor light, that might not be apparent to strong, mature eyes, soon strains the delicate, easily-tired eyes of children.

It's SO easy to have proper light. Portable Lamps are surprisingly inexpensive—much cheaper than glasses! You should have one good reading lamp for the exclusive use of your child during home study. And, of course, others for ANY member of the family IN EVERY ROOM OF THE HOME. It is the best eye insurance you can have to bring light as close to the object of your eyes' attention as possible.

Live With Furniture With the Charm of Youth

OLD AGE?—it is merely a condition of the mind. Keep young with new, modern, up-to-date things. Furniture must be simple, comfortable always, and faultless in style. That's Modern America. And of this modern era the "Sterling" suite was born. Berkey & Gay designed it for Youth, and that is the spirit it portrays. A bit of hand carving and a hand matching of swirl mahogany is the decoration. Surfaces are of mahogany, while a special toning process has given a paneled effect to the fronts. Strength is added by the use of American gumwood in mouldings, carvings and understructures.

HOOVER'S ELECTION FORECAST AT RALLY

NOMINEE'S WORK LAUDED

Herbert Hoover's qualifications for the Presidency were emphasized and his election was predicted by speakers who addressed a rally last night in the theater at the Wardman Park Hotel, under auspices of the Hoover-Curtis Club of the District of Columbia Republican State committee. Several hundred men and women attended.

The early careers and official records of the Republican and Democratic candidates for President were compared by Herman J. Galloway, Assistant Attorney General, the principal speaker. He and others declared Mr. Hoover is experienced in national and international affairs and asserted that Gov. Alfred E. Smith's experience is limited to New York State matters.

Mr Galloway also called attention to the attitude of Gov. Smith in regard to the tariff, which, he said, is at variance with the platform of the Democratic party.

"Let us place in charge of the affairs of this nation for the next four years a man with a broad experience and an extensive training and a long record of achievement," Mr. Galloway urged. "Let us not experiment with one whose chief claim to fame lies in political preferment by Tammany Hall."

Robert V. Fleming, president of the Riggs National Bank, cited inaccuracies in statements made by Gov. Smith dealing with Federal expenditures for the District of Columbia. The Republican party also was praised by Mrs. Virginia White Speel, Republican National Committeewoman of the District of Columbia.

Other "Hoover Minute Men" who spoke were John W. Fihelly, assistant district attorney; Hall Keough, Milton Barrett and George E. McNeill. Pearl Bellman Klein spoke in behalf of the Republican Professional Women's League. John Lewis Smith, president of the Hoover-Curtis Club, opened the meeting and introduced Edgar C. Snyder, United States marshal, who presided.

Porto Rico G. O. P. Head Asks Marines at Polls

San Juan, P. R., Oct. 22 (A.P.).—Harry F. Besosa, Republican national committeeman for Porto Rico, today issued a statement in which he called on President Coolidge to send marines to supervise the balloting in the island on November 6.

The statement pointed out that marines have guaranteed fair elections to citizens of Haiti, Cuba, Santo Domingo and Nicaragua in the past. Now, Besosa said, American citizens of Porto Rico need the same means of guaranteeing impartial elections here. He stated that the polls need to be freed from interference by police under Gov. Horace M. Towner, whom he denounced as unfit to handle any situation where energetic action was required.

French Towns Isolated As River Floods Banks

Grenoble, France, Oct. 22 (U.P.).—The Romanche River burst at Le Bourg d'Oisans today, isolating that city and temporarily cutting off the supply of drinking water and food. The railroads have been blocked between L'Argentiere and L'Roche-Derame, to the southeast.

The rising water cut the railroad between Embrun and Briancon and the villages of Gameau and Marcellin are isolated. Food was sent to those villages temporarily by cable line. The lowlands between Ambilly and Ville Gragande have been evacuated, and the rising water has transformed the area into one immense lake. Le Bourg d'Oisans is about 85 miles southwest of Lyons.

Mrs. Eddy's Place Claimed by Woman

Mrs. Bella Gilbert to Fight for Rule Over Christian Science Church.

Burlington, Vt., Oct. 22 (N.Y.W.N.S.).—Mrs. Bella Gilbert, the last of the three women who stood like pillars of the Christian Science Church 20 to 30 years ago and then were dismissed from membership one by one, announced in an interview today that she is on the eve of a campaign to gain control of the Mother Church and establish herself as "Leader No. 2," the successor of Mary Baker Eddy, founder.

"I claim that I am the divinely authorized successor to Mrs. Eddy and that I am Leader No. 2 of the Christian Science Church," said Mrs. Gilbert in a ringing voice. Mrs. Gilbert is now 66 but looks years younger.

"Mary Baker Eddy has been dead eighteen years," she said, "and they claim that she is still the leader of the church. That is preposterous."

Mrs. Gilbert averred that she is ready to launch her campaign to gain control of the church and that she proposes to abolish "excommunication," which severed her from the mother church in the same year that Mrs. Augusta Stetson, who died in Rochester on October 12, was dismissed from membership.

Police Asked to Recover Jewelry Lost in Trash

Mrs. Agnes M. Nolan, 517 Florida avenue northeast, yesterday asked police to help her recover $449 worth of jewelry lost in trash.

Mrs. Nolan did not discover her loss until after the trash had been removed on October 16. The jewelry consisted of watches, rings, cuff buttons, bracelets and other trinkets. She told police the jewelry was in a black cloth bag, and that she laid the bag in the trash basket and then forgot it.

Alleged Robber of Mail Car Is Declared Insane

Chatham, Ont., Oct. 22 (A.P.).—John Gbric, of Detroit, alleged mail car bandit, was pronounced dangerously insane today by Dr. J. W. Coulter, Chatham Jail Physician.

Since his arrest, October 2, after the holdup of three mail car clerks on a Canadian National Railway train, Gbric has been acting strangely, jail attendants said. He had been under observation for more than a week and last night was put in a padded cell.

16 Die Near Black Sea As Hurricane Strikes

Moscow, Oct. 22 (A.P.).—Great destruction of shipping has been reported as the result of a hurricane which swept the straits connecting the Sea of Azov with the Black Sea.

Many fishing smacks were wrecked and at least sixteen of their occupants drowned.

Prodigal Son, 8 Years Old, Bewails His Wasted Career

Life Savings, $5, Squandered, Remorseful Victim of Wanderlust Philosophizes After Arrest in Railroad Station; Kept Away From Girls.

Brooklyn, N. Y., Oct. 22 (U.P.).—His life savings squandered in high living since he ran away from home, Vincent Titus, 8 years old, sat in the Bergen Street Police Station today and philosophized for the benefit of Mrs. Mary O'Reilly, police matron, on his misspent career.

"My advice to other boys," said the 50 pounds of remorseful prodigal, "is, don't hit the road."

Vincent "took it on the lam," as the phrase goes in trampish circles, from his home at 211th street and Ninety-fourth avenue, Bellaire, Queens, three days ago. At that time he had $5, saved penny by penny over a stretch of several years during which he had been a respectable, home-loving member of the younger set.

Then the wanderlust got him. Today he was found sleeping on a bench in the Long Island Railroad's Flatbush Avenue station. And he was penniless.

"I foolishly spent it all in the last three days," he said, "eating in coffee pots. I knew better, but I couldn't help it."

"Just why," asked the matron, "did you pick out the railroad depot to sleep in?"

"I'm afraid of cops all over the country," replied Vincent. "You get to be that way. But I'm not afraid of the railroad police.

"I made the biggest mistake of my life," he continued, "in spending that money foolishly. Three days ago I had $5. Now it is al gone."

"Did you go to Coney Island?"

"No; I'm sorry, but I didn't know where it was. Coffee pots got my money."

"Sure you didn't spend it on girls?" The prisoner frowned.

"No. They are foolish. All they want to do is dance. I have kept away from girls.

"I've never been in any trouble before, but I'm glad I got arrested this time, because I might have met some bad company and then got into trouble. I didn't see any bad company, though."

Elder members of the Bellaire clan of Tituses will claim Vincent.

Well-Grave Choice Of Woman Suicide

Special to The Washington Post.

Frederick, Md., Oct. 22.—Standing on the brink of a well, Mrs. Belva Sharer, 45 years old, of Ladiesburg, Md., 15 miles from here, this afternoon fired a bullet through her brain and fell 60 feet down the shaft. She died instantly.

Mrs. Sharer has been despondent since the death of her husband about six months ago. Neighbors who heard the shot fired looked around, but saw nothing unusual, Mrs. Sharer having disappeared.

It was not until several hours later that her absence was discovered. A search then was started which resulted in the finding of her body in the 20 feet of water at the bottom of the well.

Early Arrest Seen In Murder of Crist

Jealousy Held Motive in Slaying of Merchant at Walkersville.

Frederick, Md., Oct. 22.—Centering their investigation around the belief that jealousy was the motive which led to the slaying of David M. Crist in his store at Walkersville, authorities today said they expect to make an early arrest.

Sheriff William C. Roderick has discounted the theory that a robber committed the murder, more than $100 and a watch having been found on the body.

The body of Crist was examined today by Dr. John Derr, who studied the course of the bullet and recovered it from Crist's back. The bullet is believed to have been fired from a small pistol found on the porch of Crist's store.

$10,000 Damages Sought For Death of Woman

Charging negligence by McGuire & Rolfe, Inc., of 101 M street northeast, and the Georgetown Gas Light Co., was responsible for the death of Rose Allen at 1068 Thirty-first street northwest, November 29, 1927, Thomas J. Allen, administrator for the estate of the dead woman, yesterday brought suit in the District Supreme Court against the two concerns for $10,000 damages.

Employes of McGuire & Rolfe were excavating in front of the Thirty-first street address, the suit charges, and broke a gas pipe, which caused the house to fill with gas fumes and asphyxiate the woman. The gas company was charged with negligence by failure to turn off the flow of gas during the excavating. Attorneys John H. Burnett, John J. Sirica and Bertrand Emerson, jr., appeared for the administrator.

Packer Test Suit Review Is Granted

(Associated Press.)

The Government was granted a review yesterday by the Supreme Court to test out the refusal of the Court of Appeals of the District of Columbia to reverse an order in the Packers Consent decree case.

The order of the Court of Appeals permitted the California Cooperative canneries to intervene in the suit which the packers had brought to set aside a consent decree under which they were enjoined from dealing in groceries, canned fruits, &c., and restricted to essential products of the meat packing industry.

The Supreme Court last spring refused to set the decree aside as requested by the Swift and Armour groups. Following that decision the Government sought to have the court of appeals reverse its order in the canneries case, and hold that it had no jurisdiction to review the refusal of the District Supreme Court to permit the canneries to intervene. This the Court of Appeals declined to do.

2 Men Are Identified As Would-Be Robbers

James Tolliver, colored, 34 years old, of 1117 Shepherd court northwest, and George White, colored, 19, of 438 Brothers court northwest, were charged with assault to rob after being identified by Israel Cohen, 1243 H street northwest, as the two men who attempted to rob him.

Cohen told police two men held him up at the point of a pistol on I street between Fourth and Fifth streets northwest Sunday, but were frightened away. Tolliver and White were arrested and identified by Cohen.

Party Chiefs Seek Smith Slanderers

North Carolina Committee Offers $200 Reward for Conviction.

Raleigh, N. C., Oct. 22 (A.P.).—The Wake County Democratic executive committee has offered $200 reward for evidence resulting in the conviction of any person for the publication and circulation of slanderous remarks about Gov. Alfred E. Smith, the Democratic presidential nominee.

A statement signed by Chairman James H. Pou, jr., reads in part as follows: "Certain cowardly, base-minded assassins of character are sending out anonymous pamphlets and printed matter falsely attacking and slandering Gov. Alfred E. Smith. These men are too utterly lacking in courage to sign these statements, which they know to be false.

"Two hundred dollars reward will be paid to any person furnishing evidence resulting in the conviction of any person connected with the publication or sending out of these statements, including the letter writing agencies doing the work.

Meanwhile a receiver has been applied for.

Swanson, Moore Speak At Alexandria Rally

THE WASHINGTON POST BUREAU,
124 N. Patrick St., Alexandria, Va.

Senator Claude A. Swanson and Representative R. Walton Moore spoke last night to a crowd that packed the armory. Issues of the campaign, and the merits of the Democratic party were discussed. Former Representative Charles C. Carlin introduced the speakers, paying tribute to the efforts of both in the interest of Alexandria. Mr Carlin said that he did not criticize Republicans who will vote their ticket, but he does those who vote the Republican ticket and still claim to be Democrats.

Senator Swanson said this was the first time he had ever delivered a talk in this city asking Democrats to stand by their party. Other cities have strayed, but Alexandria had always been a citadel of Democracy, he said.

SLAYER OF OFFICER IS SOUGHT BY POSSE

Virginia Sheriff Leads 200 in Hunt for Man in Thick Woods.

Special to The Washington Post.

Front Royal, Va., Oct. 22.—An armed posse of 200 men, headed by Sheriff Roy P. Collins, and his son, Deputy Sheriff Shirley Collins, spent the entire day searching a thickly wooded area near the northwestern depot of the Southern Railway today for a colored man, believed to be the slayer of State Policeman Neville Hatcher, who was shot and killed in Culpeper several months ago.

Early this morning a colored man, answering the description given of Hatcher's killer, was seen near the tracks of the railroad. He stopped at a shack near the tracks and asked for breakfast.

At the sight of the three armed men the man fled into the woods. Several shots were fired before they lost sight of him. Assistant Town Sergeant Hunter said he was sure one of his bullets struck the man.

Blood hounds were sent from Staunton, and a posse of about 200 residents of Front Royal continued the search all day. The use of the dogs was given up, because they found no trail.

In the last few weeks in Front Royal there has been a series of housebreakings, holdups and shooting of watchdogs. The few who saw the colored man said he resembled the one wanted for the series of crimes.

Diamonds Taken From Hopson Wreck Are Valued at $50,000.

Franklin, Pa., Oct. 22 (A.P.).—More than 300 diamonds, worth $50,000, have been recovered from the charred ruins of the plane in which Airmail Pilot William Hopson crashed to his death near Polk last week, William Tafel, a postoffice inspector, said today.

Many of the gems were dug from the debris by souvenir hunters, who flocked to the scene after the wrecked plane had been abandoned.

When Tafel learned the situation, he hurried to Polk, compiled a list of names of persons who found the stones, and arranged for their return. The diamonds were part of Hopson's mail cargo.

PASTORS WHO TAKE FULL PAY BERATED

VIRGINIA SESSIONS END

Special to The Washington Post.

Lynchburg, Va., Oct. 22.—The 146th Virginia Methodist conference adjourned this afternoon after hearing the statistical report and adopting the budget as reported, which represented a cut of $15,000 less than 1927-1928.

The report of the board of education presented by Dr. S. C. Hatcher, secretary, recommended observance of education day during May and asked appropriations of $1,200 for student work at the University of Virginia, $900 for William and Mary and $300 for Blackstone School for Girls.

Following the adoption of the report Dr. R. E. Blackwell, president, said church schools are threatened with extinction unless adequate endowments are secured. None of the church schools of Virginia, he said, have such endowments.

Efforts of Secretary Kellogg for world peace were commended by a resolution which was adopted.

The Virginia conference orphanage report showed 700 children have been cared for at the institution since 1902, of whom 200 still are there.

The church extension report showed $14,562 forwarded to congregations during the year.

N. D. Sill, of Richmond, a layman, scored preachers for accepting 100 per cent of their salaries while superannuates received only 46 per cent of the amount promised them. He said that last year 4,000 sermons were preached in the Richmond district and that only 140 professions of faith were secured from outside the Sunday schools.

The report of the budget showed that only 62.6 per cent of assessments have been paid during the year. Norfolk led with 72.8 and Farmville was last with 43.3.

Supreme Court Refuses Thompson Will Dispute

(Associated Press.)

The Supreme Court refused yesterday to review the controversy over the estate of Catherine L. R. Thompson, valued at approximately $25,000, who died in Washington County, Md., in October, 1923.

The deceased left a will made in California, which the Maryland court refused to probate, and John S. Hunter, of Oklahoma, sought to have this action set aside. This was refused on the ground that he had delayed the proceedings too long and had permitted the property in controversy to pass into the hands of innocent purchasers.

Men Dress Too Warm In Winter

Skin, Indoors, Surrounded by Air as if Under Tropical Conditions — Moisture Entails Suffering. Women Do Better.

To the limit of space, questions pertinent to hygiene and prevention of disease will be answered in this column. Personal replies will be made to inquiries, under proper limitations, when return stamped envelope is inclosed. Dr. Evans will not make diagnosis or prescribe for individual disease.

By DR. W. A. EVANS.

MEN do not know how to dress in wintertime. They would learn much to their advantage if they would follow the example of the ladies. But men are ignorant, opinionated and pig-headed. They will not learn. These are the opinions of Dr. E. Friedberger.

He criticizes the dress of men on two main counts. A man's indoor garments will weigh more than four times as much as those of a woman. In consequence the air next his skin is more than seven degrees warmer than is that next the skin of a woman. It is, likewise, 15 per cent more moist. The skin of a man living indoors in cold weather is under almost tropical conditions. That of a woman is under conditions that are compared with those of cool mountain air.

Man's indoor clothing in winter should be light in weight and open in texture. The fabrics should not retain too much heat and moisture. Adjustments for the outdoor should be made by means of overcoats and overshoes, garments readily discarded when the man comes into warm quarters.

Dr. Friedberger criticizes the winter dress of men on another score. He says it permits no light to reach the skin. Between the color, the thickness of the garment, the closeness of the weave, and the lining, the skin receives none of the beneficial effects of sunlight. On the other hand, women's winter garments never completely darken the areas under the clothing and next her skin. She gets some ultraviolet light whenever she goes out. The color is generally lighter, the weave is less close, the weight is lighter, and there are fewer linings.

HALTING NIGHTMARES.

Mrs. J. L. S. writes: I was interested in the questions asked by Mrs. V. P. I would like to give her the benefit of my experience with a child who had nightmares, as it is hard on both mother and child.

My little girl, from the time I stopped nursing her, had terrible nightmares and would scream out several times in the night, almost every night. She would tremble and go into hysterics after she woke up, and she was exhausted the next day. I was advised to cut down on eggs, cream and fats of all kinds and to give her many vegetables and more sugar and starches. It worked like a charm, and she sleeps perfectly all night. She is now four years old, but every time she gets cream in any form or an egg at night, the nightmares are sure to come back. Too much meat at night has the same effect. I give her only one or two eggs a week—always at noon, which do not bother her. If she has more, she breaks out with red bumps under the skin, and tosses all night.

LIVING IN BASEMENT.

E. C. writes: Is living in a basement flat bad for the health? I live in one, and since we have been having so much rain I am afraid it is a little damp. When I enter a room I can detect a certain odor which I think is dampness. Is there anything to be done about dampness? I try to keep the windows open and air the bedclothes. There is an ordinary wool rug on the floor. I wondered if oil cloth on the floor would be more sanitary. Would that get damp? There is a certain coldness about the bedclothes, too. Could you give me some advice on this matter?

REPLY.

Basement living rooms do not get enough sunlight. They are objectionable from that standpoint.

They are very likely to be damp, particularly when the heat is not on.

The consensus of opinion is that living in a damp room is conducive to rheumatism.

SHOW GIRL

The Post's Serial Story

J. P. McEVOY

INSTALLMENT 30.

SYNOPSIS.

Dixie Dugan, having opened in Jimmy Doyle's musical comedy, "Get Your Girl," and having made whoopee after the performance, is experiencing a "morning after" in a hotel room with her sister, Nita. She doesn't seem to like any one this beautiful day, and that goes for Kibbitzer and Eppus, the producers; Jack Milton, who supplied the money for the show, and Denny Kerrigan, flame of her youth, who was in Atlantic City attending a convention of greeting card salesmen at the time of the premiere.

Nita—Dickie . . . darling, listen to this: "A new musical comedy star swam into the firmament last night when Dixie Dugan sang and danced her way into the hearts of a representative first-night audience at the Apollo Theater, where "Get Your Girl" had its premiere. Vivacious, petite, with a gay abandon, and an in-an in-sous an i-n-s-o-u-c-i-a-n-c-e," whatever that is——

Dixie—Whatever it is I've got it. And a headache.

Nita—". . . She carried the show on her slender shoulders to a complete personal triumph, and all of this in spite of the handicap imposed upon her by tinny tunes, limping lyrics and an anaemic book."

Dixie (flashing) — That's a lie! it's not anaemic.

Nita—I thought you were off Jimmy?

Dixie—I am. But he has a good book, or rather he did have one until Kibbitzer and Eppus began to rewrite it.

Nita—". . . An adequate supporting company and one of the hottest little choruses that ever hoofed along the Boardwalks." What did you and Jimmy fight about?

Dixie—What else does it say?

Nita—Did you scrap with Milton, too? I think you're a fool.

Dixie—I care what you think. A lot you know about it. Who kissed you in?

Nita—Denny said last night night he came back to see you. He was out front all the evening clapping hands and yelling "whoopie!" every time you came on or went off.

Dixie—I heard him. Had a flock of sentiment slingers with him, too. Stuccoed to the ears. They couldn't be as enthusiastic as they were unless I was Jolson or they were blotto.

Nita—Did Denny go back to see you?

Dixie—What did Denny tell you?

Nita—He said he did. Said he begged you to come out after the show and talk to him, but told him you were tired and had a rehearsal and were going to bed early.

Dixie—Then what's all this checking up for? If you know what happened why do you ask me? Why don't you draw up a chair and hear my confession. There's your bacon and eggs at the door.

Nita—Come in . . . right here between the beds . . . Denny was pretty well broken up last night about you turning him down and lying to him.

Dixie—Oh, he was broken up! And how about me? I suppose I laughed myself to death all night. Gay and lighthearted and full of fun. What a party I had.

Nita—I'll sign it . . . What happened? Can't you tell me?

Dixie—'Course I can tell. But what good will that do?

Nita—Want some bacon?

Dixie—Bacon! That would finish me. Oooh, do I feel!

Nita—And do you look. Who did you go out with?

Dixie—Jack. Let's talk about something else. What else does it say in the paper? How do you like eggs? What's the next train back to New York?

Nita—What difference does that make to you? You're here for the week.

Dixie—Am I?

Nita—Don't be a nut. Of course you are. What happened to you and Jimmy last night? How did you see him if you were with Jack?

Dixie—At the Paradise.

Nita—What did he say?

Dixie—"Hello."

Nita—And you had a fight with him over that?

Dixie—Didn't have any fights with him.

Nita—Well, one of us is crazy. I don't get a bit of sense out of it.

Dixie—You should have had fish for breakfast. It's brain food. Full of phosporous.

Nita—Did you have a fight with Jack too?

Dixie—I wouldn't call it a fight exactly. One of those elimination contests. He makes a pass at her. She ducks. Counters with how could you think that of me. He backs up. She follows up the advantage with tears. Bell rings. Her round. Waiter appears. His round. Now they are set back in the center of the ring. They shake hands. He leads with peck to cheek. Tries to go into clinch. She lights a cigarette. They spar. Waiter appears. His round. Bell rings. Draw.

Nita—Talk sense.

Nita—Dixie! You're crying.

Dixie—I'm n-n-not.

Nita—You are too. What's the matter?

Dixie—God, I'm miserable. I wish I was dead.

Nita—(holding her close): Dickie darling! Don't cry. Tell me all about it. You can tell your big sister anything. What's the matter? What happened?

At last, in tomorrow's installment, we'll find out what Dixie is so peeved about.

Uncle Ray's Corner

II. JELLYFISH.

HAVE you ever seen a jellyfish floating on the ocean surface? One time when I was swimming in salt water, I saw several jellyfish floating about. I picked one up, but I let it go again. It seemed that I had been stung, though the pain was not very severe.

A Jellyfish.

Jellyfish are most often seen in bays and harbors. The top of the creature may be compared to a saucer, with threads and ribbons hanging below.

Usually the "saucer" has no color, and you can see through it; but some kinds are colored blue, violet, red or orange.

One kind of jellyfish, common along the Atlantic coast, has a body which is about 15 inches across.

Another kind is of an amber color, and has a disk three feet wide. From the disk hang "ribbons" 12 to 15 feet long.

The largest known jellyfish lives in the chill waters of the Arctic. It measures more than seven feet across the disk.

Jellyfish are able to sting, and they sometimes give off a bit of poison with the sting. By means of the sting, they have been known to kill fish a foot long.

The animals, however, are not able to eat fish of any size. The best they can do is to make use of minnows; and the eggs of fish are their more common food.

Most jellyfish float at or near the surface, but there is a kind in the East Indies which has a different habit. It lies on the bottom, flat on its back (as we may say) for hours or even days at a time.

WORK'S BRIDGE

THE series of fifty Bridge questions which has been running on Tuesdays, Wednesdays and Thursdays is now drawing to a close. Today we give Deal V with questions Nos. 45 and 46.

DEAL V.

Score love-all, South Declarer, contract No Trump.

The play to the first trick is: West leads Seven of Clubs, North plays Nine of Clubs, East plays King of Clubs, South (Closed Hand) wins the trick with the Ace of Clubs.

QUESTION NO. 45. What cards should Declarer play from Closed Hand and Dummy to trick 2?

ANSWER BLANK.

46 _____

THE ANSWERS.

45. Declarer should lead a small Spade from Closed Hand and win the trick in Dummy to place the lead there.

46. Dummy should lead a small Diamond, and, unless the Queen be played by East, Closed Hand should play Nine.

West must have three Clubs higher than the Seven, the fourth best he led originally, consequently the cards of the first trick marked him with the Q-J-8. If West should obtain the lead and continue his Clubs, Closed Hand's Ten would stop the suit; but if East should obtain the lead and return his partner's Club, West's Clubs all will be good and the adversaries probably will save the game. The Declarer, with a total of eight Diamonds (the Queen missing), should finesse; and should do it by leading toward the South hand so that if the finesse lose, West—not East—will be in the lead.

Handy Hints To Help the Homemaker

By LOUISE BENNETT WEAVER.

HALLOWEEN LUNCHEON MENU.

Chicken Croquettes
Mashed Sweet Potatoes
Buttered Peas
Egg Rolls Peach Conserve
Carrot and Celery Salad Cheesed Wafers
Mint Sherbert Orange Drop Cakes

HALLOWEEN SUGGESTIONS.

Make individual sweet potato "pumpkins" by shaping 3 inch balls of the mashed potatoes. Place on a greased baking sheet and bake for 20 minutes. Insert small green stems. The peas may be served around the "pumpkins," carrying out the green and orange colors of Halloween.

Tiny paper pumpkins pasted on tooth picks and inserted in the salads give a pretty effect.

CHILLED DICED ORANGES AND APRICOTS, FOR EIGHT.

(This may be served in glasses, with mint leaves.)

1 cup diced canned apricots,
2 cups diced, peeled oranges,
1½ cups water or fruit juices,
¼ cup lemon juice,
½ cup sugar.

Mix the water, lemon juice and sugar and boil for 2 minutes. Cool and add the rest of the ingredients. Chill and serve in pumpkin colored crepe paper cups.

Carrot and Celery Salad, for Eight.

Two cups diced cooked carrots, 1 cup diced celery, 2 hard cooked eggs, diced; ¼ cup chopped sweet pickles, 1 tablespoon finely chopped onion, 1 teaspoon salt, ¼ teaspoon paprika, 1 cup stiff mayonnaise.

Mix half the mayonnaise with the rest of the ingredients. Chill. Serve in cups of crisp lettuce leaves and top with the remaining mayonnaise.

Table Decoration Suggestions.

A large pumpkin hallowed out and filled with fruit.

A hollowed out pumpkin filled with popcorn balls.

A lighted Jack o' Lantern may be used for the center of the tables and low candles may be grouped about on the table.

Small pumpkins, fashioned into lanterns, may be used for place cards at each place. The name cards may be nestled in some corn stalks and candy corn may be sprinkled about the table cloth.

Candy pumpkins may be made from fondant, which has been colored orange and shaped like pumpkins. The ridges on the sides may be made by using the dull edge of a knife. Insert a small bit of green for the stem.

Cheese pumpkins may be made from yellow cream cheese by mixing a little paprika with the cheese to give the "pumpkin color." Mold into pumpkin shapes 1½ inches in diameter. A small piece of parsley stalk may be inserted for the "stem."

BEAUTY AND YOU

SMALL THINGS THAT COUNT

THAT time-worn and time honored reminder that "it is the little things that count" is never more apt in its application than in the matter of personal appearance. A seemingly trivial detail overlooked or neglected may mar or utterly spoil an otherwise meticulous grooming.

A heel that is the least bit run down either inside or outside gives a distinct note of carelessness. The defect can be remedied in a repair shop while you wait. Shoes that have begun to lose their lines must be discarded in the interest of perfect grooming. The habitual use of trees means much longer wear, since the forms holds the original lines. Changing the shoes at least once a day is also a measure of economy that can not be overstressed.

Another seemingly trivial detail of large importance has to do with the eyebrows. Fortunately, we have passed through and discarded the vogue for exaggerated eyebrows. We have learned that real smartness lies in training the brows to form a smooth, natural arch. Sometimes, however, there are a few stubborn straggly hairs that defy us. It may be necessary to employ the tweezers occasionally to avoid this suggestion of carelessness.

Then, there is powder. Too few of us give sufficiently painstaking study to the use of it. We may use too much or too little, or apply it too hastily, with the result that, without suspecting it, we are falling short of the perfection we wish. There should be no line where the powder stops. The application of powder must be varied with the different gowns. How often do we see a carefully powdered throat thrown violently into contrast with a dingy color at the back of the neck! And a nicely powdered face may be made only conspicuous by a neglected throat. Neither to overdo nor to underdo is the secret.

The same principle applies to the lipstick and to nail polish. A careless glance into the mirror when we are using lip color is not enough. The use of the lipstick is an art, or should be. The natural shape of the mouth is to be considered, and the good points emphasized. A ragged line is unpardonable, as is a smudge where it does not belong. The rouge should be applied in the middle of the lips and with the little finger, smoothed carefully toward the corners of the mouth, but not quite to them. In the case of the nails, even though the manicure may be perfect, there is always the danger of too high a polish or a polish that has been permitted on too long, to wear thin and become uneven around the edges. This is a small matter that deserves constant attention.

It is a part of human nature that we are apt to judge each other by the little things. The really smart woman overlooks nothing.

Sentenced as Vagrant, Man Inherits, $70,000

Troy, N. Y., Oct. 22 (U.P.).—While Thomas Jefferson Franklin, 51, itinerant sign painter, prepared to start a 30-day sentence for vagrancy here he received a phone call from a Syracuse, N. Y., lawyer, informing him he had fallen heir to $70,000. So excited was Franklin that he forgot to get the lawyer's name. City officials checked the call, however, and found it authentic.

ELEANOR GUNN On Fashions

That Frock You "Can Not Do Without" Is Black.

New York.—The crepe satin gown or the gown of flat crepe is ideal for the under-the-coat dress. It is not amiss even under a sports coat, should one make on's getaway after the wedding ceremony by motor—the modern's way.

The choice of black indicates sophistication. No trousseau is complete without a black frock and it is apt to be the most important of the frocks for day wear, important in the style sense, since the smart world sponsors black and important also because it is apt to be the frock without which one just can not get along. There is, of course, velvet—you hardly need to be reminded of the fact—but even the velvet frock has not crowded the satin one out of the wardrobe trunk.

There may be a bit of lace or a more tailored treatment about the neckline of the black frock, or the frock of any color for that matter. Chanel has been successful in reviving the touch-o-white-at-the-neck-idea, save that it is not always white, the preference in lace especially being for ochre, twine and ecru laces.

The black gown makes an effective background for costume jewelry and is often helped by the introduction of a smart rhinestone or other ornament. It should, however, be placed so that it least appears to serve some purpose other than that of decoration.

Black shoes and a color kinship between gloves and hosiery are advised. As to the hat, one must consider whether it is best to match the dress or the coat.

A lustrous black crepe satin frock achieves front fullness by means of a long tier, which opens in front and allows the two ends to fall in flared drapes. The top of the tier is molded into a tucked hip yoke, crossing in front and caught at each side by rhinestone pins. The neck is finished with a long self bow and cream lace edging.

Explains Bathroom Singing.

Urbana, Ill. (A.P.).—Prof. F. R. Watson, of the University of Illinois physics department and an expert on acoustics, explains why persons so often are bathroom concertists. It's because the bathroom is such a good reproducer of the voice, and the singer hears it more plainly than elsewhere in the house.

Wives of Tomorrow

"A Mother's Ways."

DEAR Miss McDonald: I will start off by telling you other people's opinion of me, perhaps it will give you a better idea of the situation. I am supposed to be dignified, quiet, sensible, good looking, well dressed girl, who has been held up as an example, by mothers in the neighborhood, to their little daughters. Furthermore I am 29 years of age.

My mother is a very kind-hearted, honest, good woman, not well educated. There is nothing she wouldn't do for one when everything is to her liking. But when one's expression, words or actions are in any way disrespectful in her opinion then there is sometimes a number of days of absolute silence, or else a thorough reprimand, very much prolonged and covering all one's sins, past and present, which is very nerve racking.

The trouble has now come to a head. I am engaged to a young man who is more truthful than polite. When he is at our place for meals he is supposed to rave about each dish and tell her it is wonderful. He is not that kind, but very quiet. He is also supposed to thank us for each meal. Well, I agree with her there, but he tells me he feels so dreadfully self-conscious that it is very hard for him to do it. Sometime ago he was working so very much overtime that he was terribly tired. He tried to get a little rest before coming to see me, and once slept all through the night, thereby breaking a date.

Well, mother became so worked up that she talked of nothing else for days. I received my ring a few weeks ago. She did not say it was pretty and did not congratulate me. She said it would be more appropriate to offer her sympathy, as in her opinion, he is selfish, ungrateful and has no manners. I want to work after I am married, for a while, and am severely criticized. She says that if my husband c not support me we shouldn't get married. It isn't that he can't support me, but it will make things much nicer if I do.

I should tell you that he and I get along well together and enjoy each others company.

Mother is very autocratic. Her word is law. If we don't like it we can get out. She must have absolute obedience. You see I have always obeyed her, but of late I have come to realize she is not infallible and makes mistakes too. It is very hard. I don't now what to do. Who is right or who is wrong?

This is beginning to get on my nerves. All I do any more is worry and cry. Mother paints such an awful pictured man I ever knew, and was a kind, almost convinces me. I should tell you that my father was one of the best natured men I ever knew, and was a kind, good husband.

Another thing my friend and I do not make a show of our feelings for each other. But if she sees anything that is in the least affectionate she gives a lecture on it and says how disgusting it is. When she comes in and knows we have been alone she assumes a stern judicial air and gives me a searching look that is terrible.

I know that mother's doing this for my best, as she says, only it makes it very hard. Please try to help me and thank you so much. "AT SEA."

You covered the whole situation when you said "it is all getting on my nerves." That is all that has happened.

Marry your sweetheart. Work for a time if you wish. Plan your life serenely, and live it as you plan. Do not become tense over mother's ways. They simply are her ways and they can't be changed.

When you are her "married daughter," she will be quite proud of you, and when your daughter comes along you will understand some of a mother's fears.

Keep sweet. Relax your mind and treasure the happiness that should be yours right now. Be sweet to your mother whose misfortune is an old-school attitude of mind, plus an unruly disposition. Smile, dear, and make allowances, for you will soon be looking back to the days when you were a little girl in mother's home.

Life is a short journey. Do not make it a hard one. Learn to overlook small irritations. And soon you will achieve serenity. Do not worry over who is right and who is wrong. Think only of being generous. Then you will be right.

YOUR BOY AND YOUR GIRL

By ARTHUR DEAN, SC. D.
The Parent Counselor.

The Mother Menace.

DR. JOHN B. WATSON, a noted psychologist, suggests that no child should be in the hands of its mother continuously for more than ten days, and that children should be shifted around the neighborhood after a maximum stay of ten days in one home.

But be that as it may—and my readers know that I take many of these modern psychological theories with a grain of salt—undoubtedly some mothers are the source of the bad habits of their children. Now here is a mother, for example, who is being wrongly accused by the neighbors of neglecting her children because she insists on having them help themselves. Listen:

"Dear Doctor Dean: I insist on my children helping themselves. They are a boy of six years and a girl of nine. They can wash, bathe, dress, go on errands and cook their breakfasts without my assistance. Of course the cereal for breakfast has already been thoroughly cooked. All they have to do is heat it. They can boil or scramble an egg, heat and pour the cocoa and milk and cut and spread the bread. I have taken great care to teach them just what to do and now I insist that they help themselves. I always examine them to make sure they are clean and tidy. Do you think I expect too much from them and am I negligent as my neighbors say?

I commend you. You are anything but negligent. You put your mind on your job. Some mothers are so lazy that they won't think, and not being willing to think they give up their lives for their children and work their finger tips to the bone doing things for their children that children had better learn to do for themselves. Such mothers pride themselves that they are unselfish and hard-working, when as a matter of fact they are mentally lazy. Such mothers spoon-feed youngsters of three because the youngsters get so dirty when they feed themselves. And they dress 5-year-old Jimmies from head to foot!

Why?

Because it is much easier than teaching Jimmies and Susies to feed and dress themselves. This is unnecessary work for mother and deprives the children of the self-reliance and development they otherwise would acquire.

I am not going to marry. I have watched my dad and now I know a thing or two. He is awfully careless in his relations with other women. Father is 45 and ought to know better. My mother, even though she is 42 is as good looking as most of the flappers father smiles on. He is not a bad sort you know, simply foolish. But I am not going to marry any man like this and they are all alike. Are they not?

GIRL OF SIXTEEN.

Answer — Youngsters and oldsters must develop love through its various stages, just as other qualities and attributes are developed. Slowly love-life ripens into completeness. Then is the time when it has a chance to begin to decay. It is at this time love must identify itself with broader and more interesting relationship than the mere physical and passionate relationship upon which it started and flourished.

A matured man, such as your father is, can go in quest of his lost youth in either of two ways. One is the course your father is pursuing. It leads into troubled waters and a sea of everlasting regret. The other is to renew his youth and live it over again in his growing children. This is the way to abiding love of wife and family. It is the way to a full and happy life. It is the course pursued by the vast majority of men. Space does not permit of further elaboration of this subject today. Perhaps we may touch upon it again.

LEFT-HAND SERVICE ONLY IS CORRECT

"DEAR Anne Singleton: At a formal dinner, I know the maid should pass or offer hot rolls or vegetables at the left of the guests, but, in removing and placing plates, from which side should she take them?"

This letter, beautifully written, was alas, signed "Mrs." I wonder how long it will be before this unfortunate error can be corrected! In the great world, it is considered as showing a lack of social knowledge.

About the formal dinner, or any dinner, I answer as I have often answered before. All service, except the filling of glasses and removal of right-hand implements, is from the left. It always has been so. Oysters are brought to the left of the diner and put down in front of him, or her; then soup. Fish is handed from the left, as is anything that goes with it. Meat, on its dish, is handed on the left, and each vegetable Game is handed on the left, and the salad that goes with it; so is dessert; so is fruit. So is coffee on its tray handed on the left, if people are taking it at the table and not in the drawing room, as most people do at formal dinners. Used plates are taken away and clean ones set on from the left. Only things to drink are poured from the right. And right-hand implements, of course, must be taken from the side, as has been said.

This question is so often asked that incorrect information, given here and there, is making an impression that it will be difficult to overcome. It seems a pity that any one who really wants to know should be incorrectly informed.

Girl's Facial Blemishes Held Cause of Suicide

New York, Oct. 22 (U.P.).—Dorothy Moskowitz walked from the Kings County Hospital a month ago, convinced at last that the deep scars on her face could never be removed. She was 23 years old and for six months doctors at the hospital had done everything in their power to erase the marks, burned into her cheeks when hot wax was spattered on her face while she was at work. Today her lifeless body was being prepared for burial and the scars were blamed for her death.

Since she had left the hospital, the girl had brooded over the marks. Late Saturday night two men were standing on the sidewalk in front of her third floor apartment when her body fell almost at their feet.

JUST FOLKS

By EDGAR A. GUEST

A FATHER'S DILEMMA.

If one should ask for money, and I should answer "No."
The money in my pocket wouldn't shout: "I want to go."
If one should come to my house and find upon my shelf
A certain book he fancied, which I wished to keep myself.
And I should say: "You're crazy! Give that book to you? Nay! Nay!"
The volume wouldn't turn about and ask to go away.

Yet "Give your daughter to me!" this rascal says to me.
"If you will let me have her, your son-in-law I'll be."
"What? Give away my daughter? The child I've loved so long?
No! No! I'll never do it!" said I to make it strong.
And then a strange thing happened,
my baby came to me
And whispered: "Let him have me.
His wife I want to be."

And so I've up and done it! And so tonight I say,
The joys we hold the dearest we all must give away.
For howsoe'er we guard them the human race survives
Because our lovely daughters must some day all be wives.
And though a selfish father may tell a suitor "No!"
He'll find the child he's cherished with him will want to go.

Mexican Oil Output Reported Dropping

Production in 1928 Estimated at Only 50 Million Barrels.

Mexico City, Oct. 22 (A.P.).—Mexico's oil production in 1928 will total only about 50,000,000 barrels, according to newspaper estimates based upon information obtained in the department of industry, commerce and labor.

Production until August 1 totaled 31,010,316 barrels and it is expected that not more than 20,000,000 barrels will have been produced during the last 5 months of the year.

The peak in Mexico's oil production was reached in 1921, when 193,398,000 barrels were produced. Since then the production has been slumping steadily. Exportation of oil fell off considerably in August of this year, when only 2,212,407 barrels were sent out of the country.

South China Seeks Economic Rebirth

Promotion of Native Industries Is Slogan of Canton Merchants.

Canton, Oct. 22 (A.P.).—"Trade revival and promotion of native industries," is the slogan of South China merchants, who are seeking to stage a commercial comeback from the lean times experienced during the past year.

Cooperation with the government to eliminate communism, harmonious terms with labor, eliminate the foreign middlemen with Chinese, and still other phrases are being passed about throughout the province of Kwangtung as Canton's merchant princes seek a trade revival and the prosperity that has not been Canton's for years.

At a conference of delegates from provincial chambers of commerce, held here and attended by 300 representatives from all parts of the province, appeals were made for unified efforts toward a general trade revival.

Prices realized on Swift & Co. sales of carcass beef in Washington, D. C., for the week ending Saturday, October 20, 1928, on shipments sold out ranged from 16.00 cents to 37.00 cents per pound, and averaged 20.40 cents per pound.—Adv.

FEW RALLIES MARK NEW SELLING WAVE

Day's Losses Predominate. Some Stocks Retain Sharp Gains.

Special to The Washington Post

New York, Oct. 22.—The stock market, not a little over-bulled in the recent violent speculation on the upside, experienced considerable difficulty in absorbing rather heavy and practically continuous selling today. It was a highly nervous session, with a noteworthy absence of the aggressive demand which characterized dealings in the high-priced stocks last week. There were the usual exceptions to the general trend, with remarkable advances in several instances, but losses on the day were strongly predominant, and, although for the most part under five points, several ranged much higher.

Undoubtedly much of the offerings were influenced by careful consideration over the week-end interval of the highly enthusiastic nature of the trading through the last few sessions, and the belief that such operations had robbed the market of much of its inherent strength. News of the day, at any rate, brought nothing to explain the sudden shift in the prevailing speculative attitude.

There was relative easiness in the money market, both in time and demand funds, with the call loan rate dropping to 6 per cent for new accommodation under pressure of large offerings in the outside market at that figure.

In Overbought Position.

Stocks, however, had given indication toward the end of last week, and particularly in Saturday's short session, of having been worked into an overbought position, and it again was a case of technical conditions outweighing all other considerations. The volume of business was somewhat contracted, with the turnover barely topping the 4,000,000 share mark.

There were a few sporadic rallies, principally in the early afternoon, but the market was distinctly reactionary most of the time. Final quotations, however, quite generally were up somewhat from the day's low levels among the shares which gave ground.

Motor products was the most spectacular performer on the down side, experiencing a sheer drop of 35 points in the afternoon to 147, but it came back 14 points before the closing. Adams Express lost 25 points on the day and quit at the bottom. On the other hand American Express was boosted 34½ points and closed at the top.

Radio, moving in about a 10-point range, finished the day 5¼ points to the bad. The stock had dipped to levels fully 20 points under the peak reached last week when word was passed around that negotiations involving that company, Keith-Albee-Orpheum and Warner Brothers had reached the stage where announcement soon would be forthcoming. Radio responded to these with a rally which was fairly brisk, but eased off again in the late dealings, ending the day but a point up from the low of the movement, after inquiry in w[illegible] ormed quarters elicited the information that the deal had not yet reached the stage where its consummation might be counted as a certainty, although considerable progress is being made. The report lifted both the common and preferred stock of K-A-O to new record levels and they held up well, finishing, respectively, 4⅜ and 6½ points net higher.

Motors Under Pressure.

Motor shares ran [illegible] an avalanche of selling in the forenoon, with losses ranging up to 4 points the rule in the more active descriptions including General Motors, Hudson, Graham-Paige, Packard and Studebaker, but most of these improved somewhat subsequently.

Missouri, Kansas & Texas replaced Kansas City [illegible]n as the outstanding strong spot in the medium-priced railway group, going to a new top at 47 and closing 2¾ points up on the day. Higher priced carrier shares were fairly steady.

United States Steel yielded 1⅞ net and most of the independent steels, the tobaccos and various of the merchandising issues were in rather steady supply. On the other hand, new high-price records were scored in the copper group, where activity continued pronounced on the hardening of the red metal prices.

National Tea had a further spectacular run-up, going to a new peak above 350 and closing at that level for a net gain of 40 points.

Western Union Star Performer.

Western Union was another star performer, being boosted to 175 on only moderate dealings and receding 3 points from that price to finish with a new appreciation of 14 points. Byers Co. stock also went into new high territory and registered a gain of 17¾ points, and Allied Chemical & Dye was another to attain a new peak. It wound up the day 8 points net higher.

Du Pont yielded 9 points net, Johns-Manville 6, American Smelting 4¼, Freeport-Texas 4⅝, and Murray Corporation 4⅜. Elsewhere depreciations were, with few exceptions, under 3 points.

Interest in foreign exchange dealings was concentrated in heavy buying of Japanese exchange by important local institutions, carrying yen cables up from 46.25 to 46.61, a gain of nearly a cent from prices prevailing a week ago. Sterling was unchanged at 4.85, lire eased slightly, pesetas reacted 3 points, and the Danish rate improved ½ point. Elsewhere in the continental list prices were unchanged, as was the case with South Americans. Canadian remained at 1-32 discount.

NEW YORK COTTON.

New York, Oct. 22 (A.P.).—Early advances on a renewal of trade buying and covering by sellers of late last week were promoted by reports of low temperatures in the Southwest in the cotton market here today, but after selling up to 19.85 for December, prices reacted partially under realizing and Southern selling. December closed at 19.72, with the general market closing steady at net advances of 14 to 15 points.

The opening was firm at an advance of 8 to 13 points on reports of frost in some sections of Texas and Oklahoma, and the buying was stimulated by the forecasts pointing to freezing weather in north Oklahoma and frost again tonight in north Texas. There was trade buying as well as covering or rebuying by recent sellers, with the market selling about 26 to 28 points net higher before the end of the morning. October advanced to 20.04, making new high ground for the movement on that particular position, while March advanced to 19.77, or within 9 points of the high price touched last Thursday. The advance was checked by realizing at these figures, and selling became a little more active after the publication of the detailed weather reports. These showed freezing temperatures at only a couple of points in Texas, and, on the whole, seemed rather less unfavorable than anticipated by some of the early buyers.

There was also a little Southern selling, while demand was comparatively steady after the early buying had been supplied and prices lost a little more than half their gain, with October selling back to 19.90 and March to 19.64 during the afternoon. There was enough further trade buying or covering to steady the market at the decline, however, and last prices were a shade up from the lowest.

Business was quite active at the start but tapered off later in the day, when the market seemed to be waiting for further developments, and there may have been some evening-up of accounts owing to uncertainty as to the probable showing of the census ginning figures scheduled for publication on Thursday. The talk was that ginning from October 1 to October 18 was probably heavy, but according to some of the local brokers ginnings to this date might be reconciled with various views of the crop on the basis of the percentages ginned during previous seasons. Port receipts today, 111,477. United States port stocks, 1,783,012. Exports, 34,578, making 1,842,463 so far this season.

The STORY OF THE METALS
Gold

A MEDIUM of exchange since 5000 B. C. the quest of gold has led men to hardships and sufferings, to toil, to crime, to revelry and to happiness.

Of all the metals gold is the most malleable. It can be hammered out into sheets so thin that it is almost transparent. A single ounce of unalloyed gold, if hammered sufficiently, will make three hundred square feet of gold leaf, enough to carpet completely a room 15 feet by 20.

But when gold is spread so thin, it may break somewhere. And that same thought is applicable to the gold you have saved for investment purposes.

Instead of spreading your capital out, it is far better to concentrate it in securities that show a high margin of safety plus good yield. The 6% First Mortgage Notes which may be purchased through Swartzell, Rheem & Hensey Company are typical examples of securities with a high margin of safety. No investor has ever suffered loss in fifty-nine years.

BUSINESS HIGH WEAKENED FOR GRID SERIES DEBUT

Second Corps Triumphs in Polo Finals

'Adds Low-Goal Tourney to Honors, Beating Blues, 12-7.

Capt. Cornblum Leads Attack That Wipes Out Handicap.

POLO honors in the War Department Association's tournament were captured completely by the Second Corps Area Team of Governors Island, N. Y., which followed its conquest in the high-goal series last week by defeating the War Department Blues in the low-goal finals yesterday in decisive fashion, 12 to 7. Another huge crowd witnessed the game at the West Potomac Park Field, which marked the end of the most successful and popular polo season in the city's history.

Leaving little doubt as to its supremacy, the Second Corps Area Four, led by the hard-riding Lieut. Cornblum, outplayed the Blues at every stage and phase of the game, quickly wiping out the two-goal handicap conceded the Blues by the ranking committee. Lieut. Cornblum contributed six goals during the contest, almost enough to beat the Blues single handed.

By its victory the Area Team won the Chief of Cavalry cup, emblematic of the championship. With three of the four men who won the high-goal tournament competing for the Governors Island team yesterday, the Blues appeared hopelessly outclassed, failing to score a point during the first three chukkers, while the Second Corps Four was compiling six tallies.

Only Maj. Dawley was able to penetrate the stubborn defense that the New Yorkers offered. He scored the first goal for the Blues in the sixth period and added two more in the final chukker. The slashing attack of the New York team, with Lieut. Cornblum and Lieut. George bearing the brunt, found the Blues in possession of the ball only rarely. Second Corps scored in all chukkers but the second and eighth. Four of the Blues' five goals were tallied in the last period. The line-ups:

War Blues.	Position.	Second Corps.
Col. Williams	1	Lieut. Cornblum
Maj. Milling	2	Lieut. George
Maj. Dawley	3	Capt. Scott
Capt. Shafer	Back	Capt. Blue

Second Corps Area ..... 2 0 2 2 1 0 3 2—12
*Given two goals by handicap.

Goals—Milling, Dawley (3), Cornblum (6), George (3), Scott (2), Blue. Substitutions—Maj. Chaffee for Capt. Shafer. Referees—Gen. Booth and Lieut. McKinney. Timer—Lieut. Bosserman. Scorer—Lieut. Roper. Time of chukkers—7½ minutes.

Maloney Beats Renault In Slow Ten Rounder

Boston, Oct. 22 (U.P.).—Jimmy Maloney, South Boston heavyweight, defeated Jack Renault, of Canada, in a slow, one-sided ten-round bout here tonight, taking every round, but showing only flashes of real boxing. Maloney weighed 196; Renault, 199.

New York, Oct. 22 (U.P.).—Baby Joe Gans, Los Angeles negro lightweight, gave Nick Palmer, New York National Guard welterweight, a terrific beating in a ten-round bout at the New Broadway arena tonight. Palmer stayed the limit, but was out on his feet in the final round. Gans weighed 139½; Palmer, 148.

New York, Oct. 22 (U.P.).—Al Singer, Bronx featherweight, won the decision from Al Tripoli, of Yonkers, N. Y., in a six-round bout at the St. Nicholas arena tonight. Singer weighed 126; Tripoli, 128½.

Philadelphia, Oct. 22 (A.P.).—Joe Dundee, of Baltimore, welterweight champion, won the decision over Walcott Langford, Chicago negro, in a slashing 10-round bout at the arena tonight. Both fighters were overweight and Dundee's title was not at stake.

Montreal, Oct. 22 (A.P.).—George Sidders, of Montreal, won the welterweight championship of Canada from George Field, of Toronto, here tonight on a foul in the seventh round. Field knocked Sidders out, but was disqualified because he had used the illegal rabbit punch.

COLUMBIA LOSES FULLBACK.

New York, Oct. 22 (U.P.).—Henry W. Kumpf, jr., of Buffalo, Columbia fullback, who had his leg fractured in the Columbia-Dartmouth game Saturday, will be out the remainder of the season.

Almost the Naked Truth

By JAMES S. COLLINS

NEW YORK, Oct. 22.—The pack is already snarling at the heels of Arnold Horween, football coach at Harvard. His critics believe he has had a fair trial and that the showing of his teams against the Army last Saturday proved that he has not made the most of it. If Harvard takes a couple more on the chin this season, and there seems to be a couple headed that way, it is almost certain that Harvard will have a new coach next season. If Horween steps aside, Reggie Brown, for many years connected with Harvard football, or Eddie Casey, the star back of a happier day, may try to lift the Crimson back up to the proud football eminence it once enjoyed.

From a Navy standpoint it seems just as well that the Army refused to readjust its eligibility standards to conform to those in force at Annapolis. This looks like an Army year, while the Navy seems to be going through its schedule just as a formality. But even though one team outclasses the other this year, football fans, deprived of the most colorful game of the year, will regret that an understanding could not be reached that would enable the two great service institutions to continue their football rivalry on a basis fair to both. Eventually such an understanding will be reached. Army and Navy officials will miss the annual combat even more than the public.

In repeating his Olympic marathon victory over Joie Ray in the Garden last night, El Ouafi, the Arab flier, satisfied almost everybody present that he is the American's master every week day as well as Sunday. Exceptions included Joie Ray and Will H. Pickens, guide, counselor and cashier of the Arab. Ray simply won't believe that he has a superior at any distance when he is "right." Mr. Pickens' belief that Ray may yet beat his man is based on his fear that El Ouafi's strength may be sapped by exposure to an effect civilization to which he is unaccustomed.

"Back in the desert," explained Mr. Pickens, "we—I mean El Ouafi—lived on a simple diet of ostrich eggs, cactus salad, dates and camel's milk. And now what does he eat, he starts at the top of the menu and goes straight south to the finish, regardless of the distance. Come to lunch with us tomorrow and I'll let you look at the check. This guy is the champion marathon eater as well as runner.

"Another thing that may slow him up," continued Mr. Pickens, as he gave El Ouafi two ones for only one five, "is the manner in which he spends his spare time. Back in the desert he spent it out in the open counting the stars in the heavens. That was the only way he could spend it. Now he spends all his time in stuffy and expensive movie houses watching the stars on the screen. I see to it, though, that he always goes away up in the gallery, in order to get the benefit of the climb.

"Living such an unnatural life as he is, it would not surprise me if he gradually slowed down far enough to let Ray take him. For that reason, if there is to be a return match between them, I want it to take place as soon as possible, before Ouafi goes sour on me." Mr. Pickens did not mention that Ouafi and Ray already were matched to race in Boston, Philadelphia and several other cities. Perhaps he did not know it.

When Messrs. Barrow and Huggins pounced upon Col. Ruppert's checkbook last year and paid Oakland $125,000 for Lary and Reese, infielders for 1929 delivery, many of their neighbors and friends thought Messrs. Barrow and Huggins were going goofy from too much baseball success.

"For pity's sake," the neighborhood women were saying to each other over the back fences, "what does Huggins want with another keystone combination when he has Lazzeri and Koenig just blossoming into stardom?" Don't let on I told you, but they say the Yanks are trying to corner the market.

It now looks as though Lary and Reese, if they can make the major league grade, will come in very handy next season. It is a question if Tony Lazzeri ever recovers the use of his throwing arm. Joe Dugan, it is believed, has played his last game as a Yank, and Mark Koenig may be shifted to third to replace him. If circumstances break up the present Koenig-Lazzeri combination, there will be a hole in the Yank infield big enough for a pennant and a world's championship to fall through.

In the death of Jack Dunn, of Baltimore, baseball loses one of its most colorful figures. His feat of winning the International League pennant seven consecutive times stamped him as one of the best managers in the game, and he could have had a major league berth for the asking. The death of his son, whom he was grooming as his successor as leader of the Orioles several years ago, was a blow from which Dunn never recovered.

Heart Attack Is Fatal To Jack Dunn

Famed Manager of Orioles Stricken Riding at Field Trials.

Won 7 Flags in Row; Sold Babe Ruth to Red Sox in 1914.

BALTIMORE, Oct. 22 (A.P.).—Jack Dunn, owner and manager of the Baltimore Orioles, seven times pennant winner in the International League, died suddenly today, while riding at the dog trials of the Maryland Field Trial Association, near Towson. His death was believed to have been caused by a heart attack.

Others attending the trials said Dunn had exhibited intense excitement just after one of his dogs, Bell the Devil, had come to a beautiful point. A moment later, they reported, his head sagged forward and he slumped from his horse's back.

First to reach the baseball manager was one of his dog handlers, Dr. Royston Green, of Towson, who was summoned, pronounced Dunn dead. Several who saw him fall from the horse expressed the belief that he was dead before reaching the ground.

Dunn was an outstanding figure in minor league baseball for a number of years. His first experience was as a player with the team of Binghamton, in New York State, and after an apprenticeship in the minors, he made his way to the major leagues as a pitcher, playing with the New York and Brooklyn National League Clubs.

Dunn had been in Baltimore as a player in 1901, under the managership of John McGraw. He came here as manager in 1907, succeeding Hughie Jennings, who accepted an offer to pilot the Detroit Tigers. He bought the club in 1910, and since that time had been president, owner and manager, and had established his record of taking seven consecutive pennants in the league.

It was Dunn who introduced Babe Ruth to league baseball. Brother Paul, head of the St. Mary's Industrial School here, called Dunn's attention to the boy who had played for the school, and the Oriole manager took an interest in Ruth and gave him a berth on the Baltimore Team. From here Ruth went to Boston, where his major league experience began.

Dunn's only survivor is his widow. The death of his only son, Jack Dunn, jr., several years ago, was a severe blow to the father, who had counted on the son to succeed him as owner and manager of the Orioles. Even intimate friends of Dunn said they did not know his exact age, which was one fact about himself that he seldom revealed.

Watertown, N. Y., Oct. 22 (A.P.).—Babe Ruth, informed by the Associated Press of the death of Jack Dunn, owner and manager of the Baltimore Orioles, today, expressed regret at the loss of "a fine fellow and a good sportsman."

Ruth is here on a barnstorming trip.

Jack Dunn not only achieved fame for piloting seven successive International League pennant winners from 1919 to 1925, inclusive, but for also selling more and higher priced ball players to the major leagues than any other manager.

The most valuable player in baseball today Babe Ruth, was developed by Dunn at Baltimore, but it is a curious fact that he was disposed of to Boston in 1914 at a price reported to be not over $3,000.

In contrast with this Dunn has sold such stars as Lefty Grove, to the Athletics, for $100,000; Jack Bentley, to the Giants, for $65,000, and others, including Max Bishop, Joe Boley and George Earnshaw, to the Athletics, for big prices.

Here's how Dunn once described his introduction to Ruth:

"When Ruth was recommended to me by the Brothers at St. Mary's, I set aside one winter day to look over this promising recruit. I found Ruth sliding on the ice with a bunch of school kids. He wore a pair of overalls and looked like a big kid. Still he looked like an athlete to me and the Brothers recommended him so highly I decided to give him a chance. In the meantime the other boys stood around and said, 'Gee, there goes our ball club.'"

That was 1914, the year of the Federal League invasion of Baltimore, and Dunn, in financial difficulties, was forced to sell such stars as Ruth, Shore and Egan to the Red Sox for a reported amount of $25,000.

Former Victim Ready For 2d Stribling Bout

Dallas, Tex., Oct. 22 (A.P.).—Back in 1925 Young Stribling, of the Georgia Striblings, dropped into San Antonio for a one night stand and made an impression.

He was pitted against an inexperienced soldier boy, Jack League, and the Atlantan punched at League for two or three rounds and then put on the finishing touches. Satisfied, Stribling and his parents moved on in search of other fights.

But League did not forget Stribling. He started in to make a boxing fighter out of himself. He joined Jack Dempsey's camp for a month and came out of it with experience.

Since then, League has fought much. He recently gave Big Boy Peterson a cuffing and has polished off some lesser lights.

Now he has signed up to meet Stribling here tomorrow night in a ten rounder.

Hudkins Given 3 Days To Accept De Vos Bout

New York, Oct. 22 (A.P.).—Ace Hudkins, the Nebraska wildcat, was given three days time today in which to signify his desire to climb back to the challenging post in the middleweight division. Tom McArdle, Madison Square Garden, slapped that time limit on an offer to match the ace with Rene de Vos, Belgian star, for a bout December 10 with a shot at Mickey Walker's championship dangled before the victor. Hudkins lost a title match with Walker recently in Chicago.

Army and Yale Hold Gridiron Spotlight

Clash at New Haven Tops Many Ranking Games Saturday.

Dartmouth - Harvard; 9 Big Teams Without Defeat or Tie.

NEW YORK, Oct. 22 (U.P.).—Nine major football teams in the East retain perfect records without a defeat or tie, with Army, Yale, Dartmouth, and New York University standing out as the leaders.

The other five undefeated teams are Pennsylvania, Carnegie Tech, Cornell, Georgetown and Boston College. Princeton is also unbeaten, but the tigers have a scoreless tie with Virginia to mar their record.

Stiff tests are in store for the four leaders this week. The Army and Yale clash in Yale Bowl at New Haven in what may go down as the most important game of the Eastern season. Yale won last year, 10 to 6, inflicting the only defeat of the season on the Army Mule.

The game also will mark the first meeting of Red Cagle, the Army's slippery half back, and Johnny Garvey, Yale's as yet unstopped left half back. Garvey did not attract notice last season until after the Army game, but he has exhibited All-American promise this season against Georgia and Brown.

Dartmouth plays Harvard at Cambridge and New York University meets Colgate at New York. The Big Green team swamped Harvard last year, 30 to 6, but may be in a bad way Saturday unless Al Marsters' sprained ankle recovers in time for him to get into action against the Crimson.

Jerry Jeremiah, who played so capably in Marsters' place against Columbia last week, injured his shoulder against the Lions and will be out the remainder of the season.

Colgate, which held N. Y. U. to a scoreless tie last year, again looms as a dangerous foe for the Violets' high powered scoring machine. Colgate lost its first game of the season to Vanderbilt, 12 to 7, but won its two succeeding intersectional games against V. P. I. and Michigan State.

Princeton and Cornell meet at Princeton, Pennsylvania and the Navy play at Philadelphia, Pen State and Syracuse clash at State College, Georgetown and Duke meet at Washigton and Pittsburgh and Carnegie Tech meet at Pittsburgh in the other important Eastern games Saturday.

Injuries Rise to Menace Title Hopes in the East

New York, Oct. 22 (A.P.).—Injuries, capable wreckers of championship football hopes, rose up to confront a number of Eastern college coaches today.

His team more or less wrecked by Dartmouth, Charley Crowley, at Columbia, suffered a heavy blow when it was announced that Hank Kumpf had suffered a fracture of a small bone in his left leg in the fray at Hanover and would play no more football for his alma mater. Another backfield ace, Stanczyk, did an injured shoulder no good by playing against the Indians and will not be able to get into the game with undefeated Williams this Saturday.

West Virginia, just reaching top form, probably will battle Lafayette at Easton, Pa., without the services of the brillian sophomore half back, Eddie Strumpp, who dislocated his knee in the Washington and Lee game.

Eight regulars are on Harvard's injured list, but all are expected to get into the game with Dartmouth. Arnold Horween will need to throw his full strength into that game or the Crimson will have another defeat on its record.

Army and Yale, conquerors of Harvard and Brown, respectively, came out of Saturday's battles in good shape. Mal Stevens devoted the Elis' practice period today to developing an aerial attack, while Army, with several regulars, including Capt. Mort Sprague, on the sidelines because of injuries, had only a light drill.

Ray to Race Arab Again At Philadelphia Oct. 30

New York, Oct. 22 (U.P.).—Joie Ray will continue his pursuit of El Ouafi's distance running honors in Philadelphia on October 30, when a little white man and the little brown man meet in a 16-mile race.

Disgruntled by his defeat in his first professional appearance, Ray kept his chest as inflated as ever as he promised to take the measure of the Olympic champion at the shorter distance next week.

A Philadelphia promoter, after watching the race won by El Ouafi Sunday night, and observing the attendance—which was considerably less than 13,000 announced by the management—signed up the runners, together with Arthur Newton, of Rhodesia, to meet some local talents on October 30.

Back Fields in Dixie Boast Much All-American Timber

Georgia Tech Shows Notre Dame Flashy Pair in Mizzell and Lumpkin; Tennessee Has Star in McEver; V. M. I. Has Barnes.

By ALAN J. GOULD
(Associated Press Sports Editor).

NEW YORK, Oct. 22 (A.P.).—The South has a flock of fleet ball-carriers, versatile enough in the arts of punting and passing, to be considered when the all-American frenzy breaks out later on.

Dixie broke into the all-American back field last season with Bill Spears of Vanderbilt qualifying among the country's best. Whether or not this has inspired this year's crop of Southern backs, it is a fact that the class of talent throughout the conference is unusually high.

Notre Dame's adherents thought they had at least two horsemen well equipped for the fray with Georgia Tech in Niemiec and Chevigny, but most of the rough-riding last Saturday afternoon on Grant Field was done by Warner Mizell, triple threat ace of the Tech array, and a raw-boned, powerful Sophomore who is known on the Atlanta campus as "Father" Lumpkin.

Lumpkin, with two years more ahead to him, looks like one of the most sensational beak field products the South has yet had. A power on defense, Lumpkin hits the line with pile driving force, scattering tacklers in all directions or going on with two or three of the more persistent still attached to him.

Tennessee also has a Sophomore star in Jimmy McEver, whose 98-yard run from kick-off for a touchdown against Alabama is as sensational an individual stunt as this season has witnessed.

"Ole Miss" boasts another Sophomore ball-toter of unusual talent in Gerald Walker. Georgia has McCrary, a great full back who was on the second all-American combination last year and a candidate for promotion this year. At Vanderbilt Capt. Jimmy Armistead is doing his best to keep up the good work he shared with Spears last season.

Tulane has a hard-hitting back in Bill Banker, so has Virginia Military in Capt. "Ab" Barnes, while the Pony Express back field of V. P. I., featuring the versatile Frank Peake, is a familiar threat.

It may be time to count West Virginia back into the Eastern picture. The Mountaineers were counted out when they stumbled up against Davis and Elkins in their first game and lost. Since then the squad, coached by Ira Rodgers, former All-American, has staged a big comeback, scoring four successive victories over West Virginia Wesleyan, the Haskell Indians, Pittsburgh, and Washington and Lee.

Notre Dame may be able to ease a few aching limbs this week, when the Hoosiers meet Drake before starting their annual Eastern campaign, but there is no palm on next Saturday's field for those other battered big fellows, Navy and Michigan. The Middies run plump into Pennsylvania and trouble this week. Michigan, after three straight setbacks, will require heroic measures to prevent being given another downward shove by Wisconsin. It isn't often such a startling table as this record of performances can be put together:

	Won.	Lost.	Points.	Opp. Points.
Notre Dame..	2	2	25	41
Navy	1	3	6	15
Michigan	0	3	14	42
Totals.	3	8	45	98

Friction in Coaching Team Denied by Yost and Weiman

ANN ARBOR, Mich., Oct. 22 (United Press).—Athletic Director Fielding H. Yost, and Tad Wieman, head coach, following a harmony meeting of University of Michigan football coaches today, issued a joint statement denying published reports that there was a difference between the two.

The statement signed by Yost and Wieman said the reports were "utterly without foundation."

Printed reports had stated Wieman had resented being made "the goat" for three humiliating defeats of the Wolverine football team this year. Yost had issued a statement before the opening game of the year announcing Wieman as coach in full charge and the athletic director as serving in an advisory capacity.

"Our association in our common effort to advance athletic interests of Michigan," the joint statement reads, "has been too long and too intimate to be jeopardized by any minor misunderstanding.

"For the handling of the football squad until October 5 Mr. Yost assumes full responsibility. Since the above date Mr. Wieman has been in charge as head coach.

"There is no disposition on the part of either to dodge or shift responsibility. In spite of the reverses this year the morale of the squad is splendid. We are entirely sure that there will not be a man representing Michigan who will not fight to his limit in each game."

Rumors had been current on the campus recently that Yost was going to resign, and later reports were that Wieman would quit. The statement today was accepted as a denial of both reports.

Boston College Dropped From Navy's Grid List

Boston, Mass., Oct. 22 (A.P.).—Boston College, which this year defeated the Navy, 6 to 0, at football, has been dropped from the Annapolis football schedule for 1929, according to advices received by Boston College athletic authorities from Annapolis today.

G. W. ELEVEN AT HEIGHT OF POWER

Full Strength Available for Contest With N. Y. C. C. Here.

FOR the first time this season, George Washington University expects to throw its full strength against an opponent, when it meets City College of New York, in its first home game at Central stadium on Saturday. That is, with the exception of Saunders, who is definitely out for the season with a broken leg.

Lopeman and Clapper, back-field men, who were injured in the first two games, are rapidly rounding into shape again and both are expected to assume their regular positions when the first whistle blows.

The return of these two veterans to the back-field will force Carey and Gates back into the line. This shift will materially strengthen the entire team, as Carey is a veteran end and Gates bolsters the line at either tackle or guard.

Coach Crum was displeased with the showing these two linemen made in the back-field Saturday against St. Francis and realized that they added little to the driving power of the team, while at the same time detracted much from the strength of the line. Their absence left the forward wall in such a weak condition that the St. Francis eleven plowed through for long gains.

With Clapper and Lopeman back in the line-up, the Colonials are expected to show much more drive and a good passing attack. Without Clapper, the team lacked a good passer and failed to get beyond their opponent's 30-yard line.

Crum anticipates shaking his line-up considerably for this game. It is almost a certainty that the Colonial mentor will not put the same eleven men on the field which have lost three straight games.

George Washington expects to encounter plenty of trouble from the New York Eleven. The City College Team has shown plenty of offensive power in all its games this season, defeating St. Lawrence a week ago, 33 to 0, and Drexel on Saturday, 26 to 6. The Colonials, with undoubtedly their greatest team in history, defeated City College last year. This year the tables are turned, as City College has an experienced team, while the opposite is true of George Washington.

Capital Again Bidding For Gold Cup Classic

Washington again is making a bid to stage the famed Gold Cup race, classic of power boat racing, on the Potomac River next summer, but Corinthian Yacht Club officials are not hopeful that the American Power Boat Association will award them the event at its meeting to be held today at New York.

W. A. Rogers, of the Corinthian Club, is representing the local club at the New York meeting with authority to ask that Washington be designated as the site of the race. Several other cities are bidding for the event, with the probability that it will be awarded Baltimore, where the race would be staged in conjunction with that city's celebration of its 200th anniversary.

Because of the abandonment of the Gold Cup race last year on account of insufficient entries of the Gold Cup type, the President's Cup race was not held here for the first time in three seasons, but with the renewal of the Gold Cup classic, the local event, which brings together the same type of speedsters, again will be staged.

Tech Favorite To Win Game Today

Marks, Center, Mahoney, End, Latest to Be Ineligible.

Hardell's Veteran Aggregation Known For Air Play.

By GARRETT WATERS.

A BUSINESS HIGH SCHOOL football team, all but wrecked by ineligibilities, takes the field this afternoon against Tech High with little hope of victory in the scholastic series debut for both teams. The game will be played at Central Stadium starting at 3:15 o'clock.

The small squad of Coach Lynn Woodworth, already handicapped by known deficiency of many regulars in academic work, received an added blow last night when it was learned that two more dependables, Bob Marks, center, and Pete Mahoney, end, also were ineligible because of scholastic difficulties. With Tech, counted by many the favorite to win the title as a result of its impressive early season games, Business' cause last night appeared hopeless.

This last minute blow forced Coach Woodworth to make two more changes in his line-up which has been shuffled from week to week as players were found to be ineligible. In practice yesterday he placed Ash in Mahoney's post at end and Brown at center. Woodworth now has 15 men eligible to play in today's game.

The rest of the line-up will see Loftus, end, Linwood Jones and Finley, tackles, Hargett and Denniberg, guards, Capt. Jakie Lewis, quarter back, and E. Duryee, Rich and Lester Jones, backs. The eligibility list offcially handed out by Principal Allan Davis of the school, included Layton, a back, and Anderson, Willard, Kasinoff and Levy, linesmen, in addition to the line-up mentioned above.

Coach Hardell, of Tech, reiterated yesterday that he is still undecided whom he will start. It is thought, though, that the names of Hissey, Cole, Oyster, Mayo, Dunning, Stutz, Hoy, Spencer, Goss, Florence, and Fountain will spot the Manuel Trainers' line-up when play starts.

Tech enters the fray the favorite. Many believe it has the greatest chance to cop the series championship. The team has displayed form in its early season games, winning all played in a competent manner. Business, too, has shown well and won in all contests, with the exception of last Saturday against York High. The Stenographers' real strength can not be taken, then, from these games, because of the use of the many players who will now be unable to play.

Against Business, Tech towers high. Tech has two combinations heavily spotted with veterans while Business has but one first-string eleven, the most of which are green and untried men.

Tech is favored because of its highly developed overhead game which is Hardell's chief attacking measure. It will be the Stenographers' business to break up this game if they are to win or even hold Tech to a respectable score.

Cantrell, Nats' Rookie, Is Sued for Divorce

Special to The Washington Post.

McAlester, Okla., Oct. 22.—Guy Cantrell, stellar moundsman with the Baltimore Orioles last season, and recently sold to the Washington Club, has been named defendant in a divorce suit filed in district court by his wife, Emogene Cantrell. The pitcher's winter home is here.

The petition alleges gross neglect, nonsupport, extreme cruelty and abandonment shortly before time of confinement of the wife. Custody of a child born in February is asked in the petition.

A restraining order has been issued in district court here prohibiting Cantrell from disposing of valuable property located here during the litigation. The case has been docketed for the February term of court.

Thompson Is Victor In Rotary Club Golf

The annual golf tournament of the Washington Rotary Club, played yesterday on the course of the Columbia Country Club, was participated in by a large number of business men whose game combines the maximum of enjoyment with a minimum of skill. The principal trophy, a handsome cup presented by W. L. Radcliffe, was won by S. Percy Thompson with a low net of 73, his gross score of 31 being aided by a handicap of 18.

The prize for low gross was won by Clyde B. Asher with a card of 43—42—85, his nearest competitors being L. W. Laudick and Fred B. Pyle who expended 89 strokes. The prize for high gross was won by John Brewer, 116.

First, S. P. Thompson, 91—18—73; second, Charles T. Clagett, 93—24—74; third, O. K. Evans, 96—24—75; fourth, Arthur J. May, 100—24—76; fifth, Fred B. Pyle, 89—13—76; sixth, John Delph, 105—26—79; seventh, W. V. Griffith, 109—30—79; eighth, Fred W. Seibold, 101—22—79; ninth, M. E. Horton, 101—22—79; tenth, Paul V. Lum, 104—24—80; eleventh, L. W. Laudick, 89—8—81.

PRINCESS TINA SCORES OVER HYDROMEL AT LAUREL

Jim Bean Beats Out William T. by Head in 4th Number.

Belittin Is Class of 2-Year-Olds in the Opening Race.

By CHARLES A. WATSON

LAUREL RACE TRACK, Oct. 22.—The Somerset Handicap, Laurel's feature attraction today, was won by Princess Tina, racing in the colors of the Audley Farm.

Running the mile and sixteenth in 1:45, Princess Tina, with George Fields astride, led home Senator J. N. Camden's fleet Hydromel by a length and a half, while a head behind the Kentucky-bred place horse came Sir Harry, from the Seagram Stable, to finish third.

Only a fair crowd was on hand when the racing started on its final week. Two favorites scored in rapid succession as the sport was ushered in this afternoon but from there on only one money choice passed first before the judges' stand.

Only four horses faced Starter Milton in the featured Somerset Handicap. The lightly weighted Sun Persian set all the early pace, but when the clubhouse turn was rounded and the horses reached the back stretch, Princess Tina went to the front and from there on was never menaced.

Fields rode a masterly race on the 3-year-old daughter of Spanish Prince II and Sonatina and finished well in advance of the flashy Hydromel, which ran third for the better part of the trip until the stretch run was reached.

Here Jockey Willie Garner called for a move forward at a faster clip, but the best the son of Light Brigade could do was second. Sir Harry moved along with Hydromel but could not pass the Camden entry as they raced head and head to the wire. Sun Persian dropped back steadily after the half-way mark was reached and finished far behind.

The undefeated Igloo, racing in the green and white silks of W. R. Coe, triumphed in the Elkridge, the day's secondary attraction, covering the six furlongs in 1:11 4-5, the fastest three-quarters ran during the meeting.

Eight speedy 2-year-olds vied for honors in the Elkridge, listed as the sixth number on the program, but the contest was very ordinary after Jockey L. Fator put the brown colt of The Finn and Wigwam out in front, to race as he pleased to victory. Minotaur, ridden by Sonny Workman, was in second place during the entire running, but was unable to make any perceptible gain on the leader, which won by many lengths. The McLean Stable's Mayor Walker surprised by finishing third, a nose in front of Katherine E. Hitt's Sunvir.

Edward Riley Bradley, master of the Idle Hour Farm Stable, supplied the winner of the first race, a dash of six furlongs, for 2-year-olds, as Belittin, with Jockey A. Coleman, in the saddle, galloped home in front of the McLean Stable's Classy. Domineer, a field choice and the early pacemaker, finished third.

The start was only fair and many of the youngsters were in tight quarters soon after the break, due to ragged getaway. Domineer went to the front and carried the field of fifteen starters along at a merry clip down the far stretch. Belittin, off with the leaders, ran in second place as far as the stretch run, where the Black Toney filly went to the front and won going away. Classy was rated off the pace in the early running, but came on well in the final quarter, to finish five lengths behind the winner.

Walter M. Jeffords' Binnacle proved the easiest sort of a winner in the second race of 6 furlongs, for maidens of all ages, as the Man o' War filly towroped her field, to win by ten lengths. Orlan was second, with War Nymph bringing up third.

The start was good for all but Mologa, which wheeled as the barrier rose, and was left flat-footed. Fair Bob set the early pace, followed by Binnacle, under the guidance of Jockey E. Ambrose. Binnacle was let out when the horses straightened out for the stretch run and simply romped home to victory.

The third number, a steeplechase over the short course, under claiming conditions, brought out a field of eight rather ordinary fencers. Mantonian, from the stable of H. Teller Archibald, finished first, with Manifold second and Foretime third.

Manifold, from the Canadian Riverdale Stable, cut out the early pace with Foretime, from the Triangle Stable, offering the contention. Mantonian, running under wraps, was rated off the early pace by Mr. G. Bostwick, a gentleman rider, and came on to win in rather easy fashion in the last quarter mile.

Manifold made a bold bid for honors, but was not good enough to hold his early advantage. The favorite, Rig Veda, proved a poor jumper and finished out of the money. Bryn Netta unseated her rider, G. Weeks, at the twelfth jump.

George L. Goodacre's consistent Jim Bean annexed the fourth race of a mile and 70 yards, defeating William T. and Nursery Rhymes, which finished in the order named.

Off to a straggling start, Hypnotism and Nursery Rhymes set the pace as far as the half pole, running as a team. Nursery Rhymes held his position throughout the running, but could not withstand the rush of Jim Bean under a hustling ride by Jockey E. Waters, which finished full of run to earn the decision. Burning Glass, the favorite, ran for the end book and burned up a ton of wise money.

Inches separated Valentino, with T. Malley in the saddle, and Resourceful, ridden by J. McGovern, in the final number. The honors went to the former over the mile and a quarter distance. Rim, from the stable of Robert I. Miller, finished third.

Valentino led for the entire distance and held on well in the final drive to earn the decision in a spectacular finish.

For the eighteenth consecutive day of the meeting James Butler's establishment has been blessed with fair weather. Old Sol has done his best to furnish ideal weather for the patrons and from the present outlook this year's meeting will surpass anything formerly given at this popular track.

St. Martins Prepare For Basketball Season

The St. Martin A. C. Basketball Team holds its first practice of the season tonight in the St. Martin Clubhouse Gymnasium at 8 o'clock.

The Saints have added Edward Bowers, former Quincy star, and Bud Wayler, formerly of the Covington (Ky.) Y. M. C. A. Team. Manager Sox Harrington is getting the Saints schedule ready at 1908 North Capitol street. Phone North 2622-J.

ROBBY BESPECTACLED PILOT.

LET'S whisper.

Kay Spence is starting a 2-year-old named THE CHOCTAW in the fourth race at Latonia today and word reaches me via the grapevine route, that the stable is set for an old-fashioned melon cutting. Never mind the dope, that last effort went for Sweeney, the guy who manicures the morgue.

The same stable dropped CHO CHO SAN in the opening event for maiden 2-year-olds. On dope it looks like money from home, but there is a sleeper in this event called NEVER TELL and I understand they are going to shoot. Tab the ring action, is the best I can tell you.

MICKEY D appears a standout in the second. KEEPING TIME and ROYAL SON for what is left.

COL. SHAW has only to gallop to get the decision in the third.

MINERVUS is consistent and look for him to beat MARTINIQUE in the fifth.

BABE K. is the live one in the sixth. BEDFORD ran an improved race and is likely to be close up.

Look out for TALEQUA in the seventh. Connections are betting heavily to beat DRONE. You have the answer in your lily white mitt.

Over at Laurel, the lads with the timepieces slip me THE FRESHMAN in the fifth race. Look for 5 to 1 and your own dough back.

CZARIST right back to cop the second race. PUGET SOUND figures close up.

NELLA R. goes for the bacon in the third event. Commissions were planted in China last night.

In the opening spasm the Ross-Salubria Stable is starting FAIRY RING and JUBILEE. FAIRY RING is the baby they intend to win with. FIRST THOUGHT, of the Widener Stable, finished a bang-up second last time out and is likely to be a serious factor.

DJINN is the hot patootie sent by the boys at Hawthorne, where there is plenty of mud. This thing was shipped here from the East, where he won several good races in the mud. INDRA was the medium of a plunge overnight. This trick eats mud. More anon.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—TWENTY-ONE SIXTY, $25.28, $7.06, $5.06; RANCH LASS, $3.52, $2.82; BLACK FLYER, $3.58.

TWENTY-ONE SIXTY, away well and hard hustled throughout, was sent into a good, early lead first half mile and continuing well through stretch lasted to hold RANCH LASS safe in final drive. Latter, void of usual speed, worked way up with a loss of ground, responded well when taken to inside through stretch and was rapidly overtaking winner near end. BLACK FLYER was a keen factor for entire journey, but weakened badly through stretch. PROCNE also tired after reaching stretch. MARHI closed well after suffering interference at the start.

SECOND RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $1,200. Claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won easily; place, driving. Went to post at 2:25. Off at 2:26. Winner, H. Massey's ch. c. Two-dollar mutuels paid—DUMPY, $24.60, $15.32, $10.10; IRAQ, $18.88, $7.12; UPDIKE, $5.98.

DUMPY raced under a steadying restraint first part of it, moved up stoutly rounding far turn, and continuing well under light urging, began to draw clear in final sixteenth. IRAQ, never far back, moved up determinedly at head of the stretch and although closing strongly could not menace leader. UPDIKE also closed strongly after suffering much interference. CRITIC had no mishaps and tired at head of the stretch. THE SHOW OFF, much used in forcing the early pace, quit badly in last quarter.

THIRD RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. Purse, $1,200. Claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won easily; place, driving. Went to post at 2:50. Off at 2:51. Winner, W. E. Smith's ch g. Two-dollar mutuels paid—OTTO, $3.72, $2.98, $2.66; NINETEEN SIXTY, $4.74, $3.18; KISSIN KIN, $3.16.

OTTO raced as if much the best, was held in reserve behind the pace, moved up steadily after reaching far turn and passing up NINETEEN SIXTY at head of the stretch, drew far out in final eighth. NINETEEN SIXTY cut sharply across to inside soon after start, was sent into a long lead first half mile while saving all possible ground, but tired badly when put to a drive through stretch. KISSIN KIN suffered from lack of racing room first half mile, moved up strongly when taken to outside entering stretch, and held on resolutely. DOROTHY DIEBOLD also closed gamely after being far back first three-quarters. QUICK STICK was knocked off stride when NINETEEN SIXTY came over, but recovered quickly and raced well to final quarter. ECHOLIGHT showed good speed first half mile.

FOURTH RACE—One and one-eighth miles. Purse, $1,200. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won easily; place, driving. Went to post at 3:22. Off at 3:23. Winner, John Allgeyer's b. g. Two-dollar mutuels paid—PANDOSTO, $16.10, $5.33, out; TEMPEST, $3.62, out; MOP UP, out.

PANDOSTO, closer up than usual, was rated behind the early pace, quickly disposed of FAIRY MAN when ready near half-mile ground and continuing gamely, was never in danger thereafter. TEMPEST raced under a stout restraint first half mile, improved position steadily on outside, and, holding on gamely through stretch, closed an immense gap. MOP UP, racing prominently throughout, came again when seemingly tiring and easily held others safe. PATUXANT was never a factor. FAIRY MAN fell lame while setting the pace to the half-mile ground and was eased up through stretch.

FIFTH RACE—One mile. Purse, $1,300. Allowances. The Twin Oaks. For 2-year-olds. Start good Won easily; place, driving. Went to post at 3:46. Off at 3:48. Two-dollar mutuels paid—OUI MONSIEUR, $3.88, $3.32, $3.16; WOOLORAC, $24.52, $11.80; ATHENS, $18.92.

OUI MONSIEUR, much the best, was fractious at post, was hustled to the front on first turn and opening up a big gap won as his rider pleased. WOOLORAC was pinched back on first turn, moved up stoutly when clear and continuing gamely, closed good ground in final eighth. ATHENS was sent into contention immediately after start, responded well when threatened on far side, but tired badly in final eighth. POT FULL was repeatedly taken back when in close quarters and held on well when straightened out through stretch. BIG SANDY had no mishaps. JEM quit after racing forwardly first half mile. DEMON went well to stretch turn, where he tired badly.

BOSSIE, never far back, but taken extremely wide into stretch and closing with a good burst of speed, got up in final strides. CATHERINE C. took command immediately after start, shook off PEGGY LEE rounding far turn, but tired badly in final sixteenth. MAIDEN'S TRYST showed a winning effort after racing in close quarters to stretch turn. ANNA BEALL was always well up, made a determined bid midway of the stretch, but weakened in final drive. IRENE T. closed fast on outside through stretch. BROOMSHOT tired after reaching stretch. PEGGY LEE had early speed.

GALE began slowly and outrun to final quarter, where taken to outside, closed gamely to outstay ROCK CRUSHER. Latter showed a good effort throughout and only weakened in final sixteenth. PETER PRIM closed resolutely from a slow beginning. DEPUTY tired badly through stretch after setting a good early pace. GEORGIA W. retired after three-quarters. DIMPLE DUNKIE also quit after racing forwardly to last turn.

MOHAWK PREPS---JANNEYS IN GRID LEAGUE FEATURE

Hard Contests On Sunday Promised

St. Stephen's-Nationals Also Clash in 150-Pound Class.

Notre Dame Preps to Oppose Palace in 135-Pound Class.

TEAMS in the 150-pound division of the Capital City League will pass the halfway mark on Sunday and teams which have been defeated, but who still retain championship aspirations, must begin climbing to the top or face complete elimination. Four games are scheduled in this section, while the 135-pounders, who are entering upon their third week of play, have five games listed.

The Mohawk Preps will attempt to do what other teams have been unable to do—defeat the Janney A. C. The Janneys started out three weeks ago by scooping up a fumble on the 4-yard line in the closing minutes of play to nose out a victory over the Alexandria Fire Department Preps, and eventually heartened by this good start have yet to taste defeat.

The Mohawks, however, are waiting for them and as the game will be played on Fairlawn Field, which the "Little Hawks" consider their home field, one of the largest crowds of the season is anticipated.

The St. Stephens and National Preps will stage another hot encounter. Both teams are neighborhood rivals in that they claim the old Georgetown Prep Field as their home field and as a result rivalry runs high.

The Alexandria Firemen Preps have lost only one clash with the Yankees. The Yankees have built up the reputation of a great passing team, but unless their aerial attack gets to functioning and they defeat a few opponents they will find themselves out of the running. The fourth game of the 150-pound division brings together the Peerless and the Mercurys. The field for this game will be announced later.

In the 135-pound division, five close games loom. The Palace, Northerns, Mardfeldts and Brookland Clubs are yet undefeated, but all face hard tests Sunday.

The Palace Club will face a little more opposition in the Notre Dame Preps; the Northerns have a hard game with the Columbias, while the Mardfeldts play the Carlisles; the Marions the Petworths and Brookland the Mercedes Eleven. The Notre Dame Preps and the Marions were just nosed out in their respective games Sunday and may cause their opponents plenty of trouble next Sunday.

Mohawks to Entertain Homestead Team Sunday

Undefeated elevens come together this Sunday when the Mohawks entertain the Homesteads of Baltimore at American League Park, at 2:30 o'clock.

The Mohawks have won every game so far this year while the Homesteads have bowled over every opponent the last two seasons, with the exception of a 7-7 tie game played with the Mohawks last fall.

Although the Mohawks are a great deal stronger than last year they expect the hardest fight against their Baltimore opponents Sunday. The Homesteads also boast of a much stronger team.

An unusual feature in the campaigns of both clubs last year was the 13 to 0 defeat the Homesteads handed the Reina Mercedes after the latter tad overwhelmed the Mohaws, 34 to 7. This setback and the loss of the city championship to the Apaches, were the only defeats of the season for the Mohawks.

GENTLEMAN RIDER LAUREL WINNER

younger brother of A. C. Bostwick, prominent New York turfman, is shown astride Mantonian, the 5-year-old gelding which he rode to victory against professional steeplechase jockeys in the third race at Laurel yesterday.

LAUREL NOTES

Special to The Washington Post.

LAUREL RACE TRACK, Oct. 22.—The Blue Ridge Handicap, for all ages at six furlongs and the Kensington, for 3-year-olds at a mile and seventy yards, holds the spotlight of the ninteenth day's racing at Laurel.

The entire card is one which will furnish some keen competition as every number is well filled and contains the names of some of the best horses at the track. Polish should earn a heat, when he starts in the Blue Ridge, but he can make no mistakes if he whips Oh Susanna, from the Camden Stable. In the Kensington, Corporal is the overnight choice to beat the consistant Balko, which is in perfect form at present.

Johnny Callahan, former riding ace of the Maryland tracks, was a visitor today.

Jim Bean was claimed from George Goodacre, the Washington horseman, by Niclot A. Lavato, of New Orleans, for $4,000. Jim Bean had just earned a victory for Goodacre, who felt badly over the loss of the game little colt of The Wanderer, which he had raised.

E. J. Holland, of Atlantic City, has option of 3,497 shares of Bowie stock owned by Mrs. Gadsden D. Bryan, a former associate of Jim O'Haras. The deal will be closed at the end of next month's meeting.

Holland is prominent on the turf and is the owner of the Serenta Stock Farm, 7 miles out of Lexington, Ky. The main portion of his racing is in the West but he has the fleet Krick here for the Futurity at Pimlico.

One hundred and fifty-three nominations have been made for the first running of the Spalding Lowe Jenkins Handicap, to be run on Saturday. The race is for 2-year-olds over the mile distance and carries an added value of $10,000.

Nick Huff, who is under contract with the McLean Stable, resumed riding today. He was injured on May 14, when Sport Trail fell at Louisville, Ky., during the running of a race.

Many luncheon parties have been given in the clubhouse owing to the popularity of the Harry M. Stevens' restaurant. Every day of the meeting the dining rooms have been crowded, necessitating the putting of tables outside of the dining quarters. Joseph Stevens is in charge of the Laurel interests of his father.

BYRD DRILLS OLD LINERS HARD

V. M. I., Conqueror of Virginia, Presents Difficult Task.

THE University of Maryland Football Team was sent through a snappy drill yesterday on the College Park Field in preparation for the hard game anticipated when it faces Virginia Military Institute at Lexington Saturday.

V. M. I. nosed out Virginia Saturday, 9 to 0, and the Old Liners are taking this game a little more seriously than usual.

While Maryland won Saturday by a 13-to-6 score over Western Maryland, there was little cause for enthusiasm for Coach Byrd other than the fact that his team staved off several successive threats to score by the visitors.

The Old Liners, after taking advantage of two breaks of the game to score its points at the very outset, failed to show much for the remainder of the way and failed to make more than one first down in the second half.

The Western Maryland eleven outplayed Maryland throughout the last three-quarters of the game. The Maryland line failed to open up holes big enough for its two star backs, namely Snyder and Roberts, to get away on any long runs.

Julie Radice, who again played as a regular in Maryland's back field Saturday, will undoubtedly remain at one of the half back posts. If he possessed a little more speed and shiftiness he would be an ace. His work as an interferer for Roberts and Snyder has earned him the place over Evans, at least for the present. Artie Wondrack also seems to have staged a comeback and at present is getting the nod for one guard position over Heintz.

McCann Beats Tindell In Start of Cue Match

In the first block of a 300-point match, Joe McCann defeated Ed Tindell in a pocket billiard exhibition at the Arcadia last night, 103 to 60. McCann had a high run of 51, while his opponent had a run of 14.

The two will play tonight and tomorrow, and the winer will meet Ralph Greenleaf, world champion, in a 300-point match on Thursday, Friday and Saturday nights.

6 Dozen Balls "Lost" In Game; Ruth Hits 3

Watertown, N. Y., Oct. 22 (A.P.).—More than six dozen baseballs were "lost here today in an exhibition game in which Babe Ruth and Lou Gehrig, home run sluggers of the New York Yanks played. The game was called before the ninth because no more balls were available.

Any ball that was fouled or knocked anywhere on the field was immediately pounced upon by scrambling youngsters.

The Babe hit three homers. Gehrig doubled and tripled. The score was not kept.

The Sportswoman

By DOROTHY E. GREENE

MEMBERS of the English Women's Field Hockey Team will arrive in Washington at 10 o'clock this morning instead of tomorow morning, when they were originally expected, and will spend the day in the Capital as guests of the Washington Field Hockey Club.

The group will visit the Capitol and other public buildings this morning and will go to the British Embassy at 12 o'clock, where they will be received by Ambassador Howard. From there they will go to the clubhouse of the American Association of University Women, where they will be guests of honor of the Washington Field Hockey Club and will meet members of the Women's National Press Club.

The change in date has made necessary the canceling of the proposed reception for the afternoon and the visitors will be taken to Mount Vernon after luncheon, returning in time to leave for Baltimore on the 5 o'clock train.

Many Washington club and school players will attend the match between the English Team and the All-Baltimore Squad tomorrow afternoon at 3 o'clock in the Baltimore Stadium. Tickets on sale at the George Washington University Gymnasium have been in great demand and the entire hockey squads of Mount Vernon Seminary, American University and Miss Madeira's School will make the trip in a body.

PLAYGROUND SPORTS.

Yesterday's sports schedule on local playgrounds was featured by a close match in the Park View School interclass basketball series, which the 8B2 Team won from 7B1 by a 1-point margin, 15 to 14.

In the Iowa Avenue section of the Columbia Heights Division, Monroe outplayed Brightwood, 12 to 2.

Other matches were as follows: Park View, dodgeball, 6A defeated 5A, 9 to 3; 5A defeated 6B, 12 to 5. Takoma Park School, dodgeball, 6 Grade defeated Fifth Grade, 41 to 37.

Mott School, dodge ball, 5B1 defeated 5R1, 13 to 11; 6A3 defeated 6A1, 17 to 7; 6A2 defeated 5A2, 28 to 17.

EIGHTY IN GYM CLASS.

Business Night High School gym class is under way with the largest enrollment since the work was inaugurated under the direction of Miss Margaret H. Craig.

More than 80 have joined the class, which meets each Monday and Wednesday evenings from 7:30 to 9:30 o'clock and is open without charge to any one who is not regularly enrolled in a public day school. Floor work, folk dancing, group and team games are included in the program.

A large basketball squad is also holding workouts and the night school will again enter their Eagles and Eaglets in the Washington Recreation League basketball schedule.

CAPITAL A. C. INVITES VISITORS.

An invitation has been extended to visitors to take part in the activities of the Capital Athletic Club for the next few weeks during which a membership drive will be conducted by the organization.

The swimming group will meet Thursday from 6 to 7:30 p. m. in the Jewish Community Center tank with Miss Lillian Cannon as coach and tonight the basketball squad will hold a workout at the Wilson Normal School Gym at 8 p. m.

MISS TURNBULL IN FINALS.

Jennie Turnbull reached the finals of the George Washington University tennis tournament yesterday defeating Mary Sproul in a hard three-set match with a score of 6—1, 4—6, 6—3.

Miss Turnbull will meet Mary Detwiler who advanced through the semifinals winning from Miss Laudick. The match will probably be played today.

Prep School Elevens Point For Contests Next Friday

Simondinger Shuffles Gonzaga Line-Up for St. John's Game; Emerson Crippled for Tome Tilt; Devitt's Injured Men Return.

UNLIKE the high school elevens who did not engage in any real practice yesterday, teams in the prep school group took advantage of the ideal football day and indulged in strenuous drills in preparation for their games this week-end. Gonzaga, Devitt, Emerson and St. John's especially put in licks for battles Friday.

Coach Ken Simondinger made several changes in the Gonzaga Team yesterday. Al Farrell was brought from full back to left tackle, Ferris from tackle to end, and Healy planted in Ferris' place. In the back field, McVean held forth at quarter, Allman and Freud were at half, with Bussink at full back. A new recruit reported in Tom Morris, 160-pound back field man from South Carolina, and Simondinger plans to give him the once over during drills the remainder of the week. Gonzaga plays St. John's on Friday on the Georgetown University field.

The Emerson Team is still carrying a collection of cripples, including Nelson Colley, who hurt his leg in the Gettysburg game last week. The others, Kennedy, Trilling, McKaig and Baker, are still ailing. Coach Banfield had Galotta at center in a new formation yesterday, but expects to put the player back at his end position by Friday. "Buck" Mangum, giant tackle, reported for drill yesterday and is expected to develop into a regular. Mangum weighs 190 pounds. Emerson tackles Tome Institute on Saturday at the latter's gridiron.

Coach Zube Sullivan had his St. John's warriors in another strenuous drill yesterday at the Tidal Basin Grounds. He is concentrating on winning from Gonzaga on Friday and plans to send his team into a scrimmage with Eastern tomorrow.

Devitt's squad of ailing players, including Waddell, Gilbane, Walker, Abramson and Gleason, are all in shape now and will be able to take their places against Calvert Hall on Friday. The game, originally scheduled at American League Park, has not been definitely arranged there as yet. Present plans call for the shifting of the contest to some other local field to be announced at a later date.

Unbeaten S. Carolina Plays Clemson Thursday

Special to The Washington Post.

Columbia, S. C., Oct. 22.—South Carolina's football classic, the Clemson-Carolina game, will be staged next Thursday at noon at the State fair grounds before probably the largest crowd ever to witness a football game in the Palmetto State.

Both teams have fine records for the season. Neither has bowed to a foe as yet. It will be a clash between two State institutions that have been warm but friendly rivals for many years. Both are Southern Conference members.

The South Carolina Gamecocks have defeated Erskine College, University of Chicago, University of Virginia, University of Maryland and Presbyterian College. Clemson has defeated Newberry College, Auburn, Davidson, North Carolina State and Erskine.

South Carolina is coached this year by Billy Laval, this being his first season at the University, while Josh Cody, former assistant Vanderbilt coach, is in his second season at Clemson.

The game will be witnessed by the governor of the State and his party, the presidents of the two institutions and their official parties, the president of the State fair and many other people high in the public and social life of the State. The governor will occupy a box on the Carolina side of the field for one half and on the Clemson side for the other half.

GOLF AS CHAMPIONS PLAY IT

Does the mastery of "trick" shots hurt a golfer's ordinary game?

By LARRY NABHOLTZ

(El Paso open champion, 1928; nationally known professional).

Regarding "trick" shots, I am firmly of the opinion that one should never seek to obtain a degree of proficiency in this phase of the game.

Attain a definite method of playing the required shots and you will deal more or less with an automatic repetition which tends to accuracy.

When one resorts to various methods of executing a given shot one has a tendency to become confused as to the proper method to employ, consequently concentration is destroyed and the result of this indecision is immediately disclosed in poor consistency of play.

To illustrate: A certain "trick" shot artist some time ago failed in three trials to get a ball on the fairway during a driving contest at a winter tournament.

Yet, following this performance his exhibition was remarkable. The morning paper stated, "He could make a golf ball talk." However, the only thing he could make it say during the driving contest was "Hook, slice, old top."

COACH DRIVES G. U. SQUAD FOR DUKE

Freshmen Use Tricks of Visitors During Scrimmage.

THE usual Monday respite of the football squad at the Hilltop was not in evidence yesterday. The reason for the change in tactics is that Duke has a respectable football team and that Duke plays Georgetown at Griffith Stadium Saturday.

Coach Lou Little is of the opinion that Duke is much better than the 6-to-0 defeat at the hands of Navy Saturday shows. On one occasion during the game Duke marched down the field to make it a first down on the Navy's 2-yard line and, then, with four tries to shove the ball the remaining 2 yards for a touchdown, lost its golden opportunity by fumbling.

Though the Hilltoppers had a fairly hard game against West Virginia Wesleyan Saturday, they tasted a little more scrimmage yesterday. The team was worked against Coach Dudak's big freshmen eleven, which was fortified with Duke plays. The Freshmen, using Duke formations, uncovered a bag of trick plays, innumerable passes and some nice line plays.

The Hilltop coaches spent much time in teaching their backs which men to follow out on the different formations when the opposing team throws a pass. This has been a weakness of Georgetown backs which, against a powerful team like Duke, would prove disastrous.

The team was without the services of John De Grossa, head line coach. De Grossa was called to his home in Atlantic City because of the sudden and severe illness of his mother. Otto "Dud" Saur, star tackle of last year's team and a member of the Freshmen coaching staff, took charge of the linemen yesterday.

John Hudak, regular back, who dislocated his elbow some time ago, took a light workout yesterday. He will be ready for the Duke game, but may not see service because of the New York University game which follows a week later.

Carolina Works Hard For Georgia Tech Game

Chapel Hill, N. C., Oct. 22 (A.P.).—Chuck Collins and his staff today began intensive training of the University of North Carolina football squad in the hope that the Notre Dame system, as exemplified by the Tarheels, will be more effective against Georgia Tech in Kenan Memorial Stadium here next Saturday than it was in Atlanta last Saturday, when Knute Rockne's charges bowed to the Tornado, 13 to 0.

Smarting under the 16-to-14 defeat inflicted by V. P. I., the Chapel Hill gridders bent with a will to the task of preparing for the Tech game, generally conceded to be the heaviest on the 1928 schedule.

Grid League to Hear Protests on Thursday

A meeting of the 150-pound teams of the Capital City Football League will be held at The Post sports department Thursday night at 8 o'clock.

Protests which involve the Mohawk Preps, Alexandria Fire Department Preps and National Preps will be heard and a decision rendered by the protest board.

Managers or a representative of every team in the league and the referees of the games in question are to be present. The meeting will not be open to others.

LOSS OF STAR IS FEARED BY C. U.

Malevitch May Have Broken Leg in Game With W. & M.

COACH JACK McAULIFFE, of Catholic University, fears that he has lost the services of Jack Malevitch, his star full back and one of the best defensive players to wear a Cardinal uniform in recent years.

Malevitch, who played throughout the game Saturday night against William and Mary at Williamsburg, had an X-ray taken yesterday to determine whether or not he suffered a broken leg in that game.

The squad returned to Washington Sunday night and it was thought that all players had escaped injury, but at practice yesterday, Malevitch's leg bothered him and it was though advisable to have an X-ray taken. The result will be known today.

The loss of Malevitch will be a severe blow to the team as he is one of the key men in the back field on both the offense and defense. He is an excellent line plunger, a fast running back and the defensive exhibition he gave against Villanova two weeks ago ranks him with the best defensive men Catholic University has ever produced.

If Malevitch is out the Cardinals' veteran back field combination of Malevitch, Murphy, Schmidt and Champa will be broken when the team faces Mount St. Mary's at Emmitsburg, Saturday. Healy will probably get the call in that event.

The team was sent through a scrimmage yesterday against the freshmen who were using Mount St. Mary's plays. The regulars did well against the freshmen and seem to be able to stop the style of play used by the Mountaineers.

The freshmen, however, were without the services of Johnny Oliver, Fitchburg, Mass., star, who is badly battered up as the result of the Freshmen-Gonzaga game last Friday.

Debeve to Make Debut Before D. C. Ring Fans

Arthur Debeve, the French lightweight who clashes with Lew Haywood, of Baltimore, in the 8-round headliner at the Relee Club smoker Thursday night at Arlington Park, Va., will be making his first appearance before a Washington ring audience. He is a slashing, tearing fighter who always puts forth his best efforts.

The supporting card has not been completed, but club officials hope to have all matches arranged not later than tonight. The first show last Thursday night was declared a success and increased membership is anticipated. The smoker is open only for club members. Membership blanks can be had at the Relee Club office, 407 Ninth street northwest.

Rain or cold weather will not interfere with Thursday's smoker, as the bouts are held in the dance hall at the amusement park.

Silver Spring Soccer Team Practices Today

The Silver Spring Soccer Team, which made its debut in the Capital City League yesterday, meets tonight at the home of Olin Dyer at 7:30 o'clock.

The team will practice at 5 o'clock this evening on the Silver Spring Field. "Spud" Coleman, well known in local sandlot circles as a baseball manager during that season and goal keeper for the British Uniteds, is manager and coach of the Silver Spring Team.

CALLAHAN VS. TRACEY.

Chicago, Oct. 22 (A.P.).—Mushy Callahan, world's junior welterweight champion, will meet Bobby Tracey, of Buffalo, in the feature match of Chicago's program this week. They will fight ten rounds to a decision Tuesday night.

ARGENTINE PROGRAM OVER WRC TONIGHT

Navy Band Will Provide Music for Entertainment of Visiting Cadets.

ADDRESS BY INVENTOR

POLITICAL BROADCASTS TODAY

11:30 a. m.—Republican National Committee program—WRC.
4:30 p. m.—Republican National Committee program—WRC.
8:30 p. m.—Mrs. Alvin T. Hert, vice chairman Republican National Comittee—WMAL.
9:15 p. m.—Senator Carter Glass, of Virginia, will speak from Richmond, Va., presented by the Democratic National Committee—WMAL.

Station WRC will participate in a special Argentine Navy program at 6:30 o'clock this evening, in honor of the cadets aboard the Argentine training ship Sarmiento, now anchored in New York harbor. The Navy Band will furnish the music and there will be speakers, including the Argentine Ambassador, who will speak in Spanish, the message being translated into English for the benefit of listeners.

C. Francis Jenkins, local inventor, who is now engaged in developing "Radio-Movies" and "Radiovision," will broadcast a talk through the NBC system and from the studios of WRC, as guest of The Radiotricians, at 8 o'clock this evening. Mr. Jenkins' subject will be "Modern Development in Television and Radiovision." Mr. Jenkins is widely known as the inventor of the motion picture projection machine. "The Radiotricians" are sponsored by the National Radio Institute of this city.

Liszt's "Liebestraum," the historic love song, will be heard as the opening selection by the Seiberling Singers at 8:30 o'clock.

James Melton offers "Una Furtiva Lagrima" (A Furtive Tear), the famous aria of Nemorimo in Donizetti's "L'Elisire d'Amore." He will also sing Schertzinger's "Chalita."

"The Birthday," by Barry Conners, author of "The Patsy," will be produced by The Eveready Hour this evening at 9 o'clock. Conners is the author of several successful plays, including "Applesauce." An item of main interest to radio listeners is the fact that he began writing "The Birthday" at the request of the Eveready Hour management with full appreciation of the fact that it would be produced solely for broadcasting purposes, and would, therefore, require a different technique in its conception and execution.

Station WMAL will present its first Columbia Broadcasting System musical program this evening at 9 o'clock, when "Melodies and Memories," a regular WOR feature, will be heard. In addition they will take two political talks from the system during the evening.

The Radio Movie Club will be broadcast at 10:30 o'clock as usual.

BOND PRICES STEADY IN SPITE OF SELLING

Easier Money Attracts Some Buying Which Holds Most Issues Firm.

RAIL GROUP STRONGEST

New York, Oct. 22 (A.P.).—A steady undertone was maintained in the bond market today despite considerable selling, especially of convertibles, in sympathy with realizing on the stock market. Easier money rates, with time money dropping to 6⅞ for some maturities, attracted some buying, which was instrumental in holding firm most prices in the general list. Coppers again were in demand in reflection of the strength of copper stocks on favorable trade reports. Total sales were about $8,500,000.

Anaconda Copper 7s were pushed up to a new year's top, at 149¾, but sold off and closed slightly more than a point higher. Cuba Cane Sugar 8s, Dodge Bros. 6s, Keith Corporation first 6s, Wickwire-Spencer Steel 7s, National Dairy Products 5¼s, United Drug of Delaware 5s and Virginia Iron 5s were among other issues to improve. Oils were irregular, with Barnsdall 6s showing a loss of nearly a point, and Sinclair Crude 6½s sagging. Colon Oil 6s moved to a new peak, at 105. Brooklyn Union Gas 5½s extended their gain 5 points, and Public Service of New Jersey 4½s advanced slightly more than a point in the face of declines by most other utilities.

Quiet buying of rails made these liens as a group the strongest in the list, although gains in most instances were only fractional.

Italian industrials were the strong features of the foreign list, with the Fiat issues and Montecatini 7s particularly in heavy demand.

United States Government obligations were inclined to heaviness.

Public offering will be made tomorrow of $1,000,000 Fifth Avenue Corporation 6 per cent first mortgage fee sinking fund gold bond certificates. Offering of the $25,000,000 Republic of Peru refunding bonds, announced recently, is expected Wednesday.

Another offering tomorrow will be $2,600,000 State of Arkansas 4½ per cent pension notes, issued for pension purposes, with the first maturity date November 1, 1930, and the remainder due serially from 1931 to 1951.

Copies of a letter from Mr. John A. Latzer, President, setting forth information regarding the Company and its Common Stock, may be obtained from the undersigned. Mr. Latzer gives the substance of this letter in part as follows:

HISTORY AND BUSINESS

"Pet Milk Company is one of the largest producers of evaporated milk in the world. Incorporated in Delaware in 1925, it is the successor to a business that was originally started in 1885 under the name of Helvetia Milk Condensing Company. The Company, with its subsidiaries, secures general distribution throughout the United States, marketing its product under the trade-marked brand "Pet Milk." The Company's 28 main plants are well equipped and are favorably located with respect to the large markets for its product. Its business has increased approximately one hundred percent in the last three years, accomplished largely through the construction and acquisition of additional plants. The management of the business remains unchanged.

The total consumption of all brands of evaporated milk in the United States increased from approximately 10,000,000 cases in 1915 to over 24,000,000 cases in 1927. The volume of business in this product is greater than in any other article of canned food.

PURPOSE OF ISSUE

The proceeds of the sale of this Common Stock will provide additional capital required as a result of the expansion in recent years.

ASSETS

The consolidated balance sheet of the Company and subsidiaries, as of August 31, 1928, after giving effect to the sale of 815 shares of common stock already issued to employees and to the sale of this Common Stock, as certified by Messrs. Price, Waterhouse & Co., shows net tangible assets of $11,610,620. Current assets shown thereon amount to $6,750,612, compared with current liabilities of $1,794,154, a ratio of over 3.7 to 1.

EARNINGS

The consolidated net profits of the Company and its subsidiaries, after eliminating interest paid on money borrowed to the extent replaced by the proceeds of this financing (such interest averaging $30,587 per annum) and after deducting (1) all charges, including ample provision for depreciation of physical property, (2) Federal income taxes at the rate of 12%, (3) dividend requirements on the preferred stock now outstanding, and (4) the proportion of profits applicable to minority stockholdings in subsidiary companies, for the four years ended December 31, 1927, as certified by Messrs. Price, Waterhouse & Co., have been as follows:

Year ended December 31	Net Profits as defined above	Per Share of Common Stock presently to be outstanding
1925	983,375.26	2.18
1926	1,551,151.77	3.44
1927	1,667,639.07	3.70

Net profits, as defined above, for the eight months ended August 31, 1928, as certified by Messrs. Price, Waterhouse & Co., amounted to $602,270.28 (after the elimination of interest, as set forth above, amounting to $40,171), the equivalent of $1.33 per share of Common Stock presently to be outstanding. Net profits for the full current year, I estimate, will be smaller than those for 1927. At the beginning of the year, stocks of evaporated milk held by manufacturers were larger than normal, which resulted in lower selling prices and a consequent reduction of profits during the first half of the year. Such surplus stocks have already been consumed and prices are now on a basis comparable with those of last year. Prospects for the future are favorable as the consumption of evaporated milk is increasing substantially and the Company's plants are favorably located for economical production and distribution.

The Company is currently paying dividends on the Common Stock at the annual rate of $1.50 per share, the latest dividend having been paid on October 1, 1928."

The Company has agreed to make application to list its Common Stock on the New York Stock Exchange.

Price $37.75 Per Share

This offering is made subject to allotment or prior sale and in all respects when, as and if issued and accepted by us and subject to the approval of Messrs. Sullivan & Cromwell, for the Bankers, and of Messrs. Wilfley, Williams, McIntyre & Nelson for the Company. It is expected that delivery of interim receipts or temporary or definitive stock certificates will be made on or about November 5, 1928 at the office of Goldman, Sachs & Co., 30 Pine Street, New York, N. Y., against payment therefor in New York funds.

DECREASE IS SHOWN IN BANK BORROWINGS

Reserve System Reports $50,000,000 Decline in Week Ending October 17.

STOCKS CONTINUE FIRM

By ROBERT C. ALBRIGHT.

Borrowings from Federal Reserve Banks for the week ended October 17 declined $50,000,000, according to the Federal Reserve Board's condition statement of 632 reporting member banks in leading cities, issued yesterday. Total borrowings in the Richmond district reached $20,666,000.

The statement showed increases for the week of $112,000,000 investments, including $102,000,000 in Government securities. Further increases of $37,000,000 in loans and discounts, of $125,000,000 in Government deposits, of $94,000,000 in net demand deposits, and of $15,000,000 in time deposits, developed.

Loans on stocks and bonds, including United States Government obligations, were $49,000,000 above the October 10 total, increases of $54,000,000 and $10,000,000 respectively being shown for the New York and Boston Districts, and a decrease of $10,000,000 for the Cleveland District. "All other" loans and discounts were $12,000,000 below the October 10 total at all reporting banks.

Holdings of Government securities, because of the recent flotation of Treasury certificates, increased $102,000,000. Holdings of other stocks, bonds and securities increased $9,000,000 in the New York District, and $10,000,000 at all reporting banks.

New Sections to Be Operated.

Steps to place in immediate operation the new auditors' fiduciaries and safe deposit sections of the District of Columbia Bankers Association will be taken Friday at an executive session of the council of administration of the organization, it was learned yesterday.

Although technically brought into being by constitutional amendment at the last open meeting of the association, the groups have yet to hold their first organization meetings, elect officers and begin to function as constituted parts of the bankers' body.

President Robert V. Fleming said yesterday that he would lay before the council a plan to effect this at Friday's meeting. Before it becomes active, each group must elect an executive council of five, and this in turn must choose a chairman, vice chairman and secretary.

Hyatt Joins Pierce & Co.

E. A. Pierce & Co. announces that Frank H. Hyatt, jr., is now associated with their Washington office. Mr. Hyatt has long been identified with brokerage interests in this city. He was formerly connected with the Washington office of Harriman & Co. and of late has been associated with the local branch of Eastman, Dillon & Co., of New York.

Mergenthaler Leads Upward.

Stocks continued firm on the Washington Stock Exchange yesterday, with Mergenthaler Linotype leading in point of sales. More than 270 shares of the issue changed hands at prices ranging from 102 to 103. Although these figures are more than a dozen points below the stock's peak for the year, they are well above any price brought in recent months.

Two stocks, however, achieved new peaks in yesterday's market. Resuming their recent advances, Sanitary Grocery Co. preferred climbed 4 points, to 150, and Peoples Drug Stores preferred mounted to 120. One hundred shares of Sanitary Grocery and 110 shares of Peoples changed hands.

Potomac Electric 5½ per cent preferred advanced to 109. Other issues displaying firmness included Potomac Electric 6 per cent preferred, 113⅛; Washington Railway & Electric preferred, 100¼; Lanston Monotype, 114; Chestnut Farms Dairy preferred, 109. There was one sale in the unlisted department, Chapin Sacks 8 per cent preferred trading at 106⅛.

There was little activity in the bond division. Washington Gas 6s, series A, led, $1,100 changing hands at 105 and 106; $1,000 Capital Traction 5s brought 101½, and $500 Washington Gas 6s, series B, sold at 107½.

Retail Trade Increases.

As reflected by department store sales, retail trade in the Fifth Federal Reserve District was 4.8 per cent greater last September than in the same month last year. Building operations for the district showed an increase of 57.4 per cent for the month, due primarily to big gains in Baltimore and this city, and new construction reached a total of $13,018,049, as against $7,921,195 for September, 1927.

The number of new projects dropped from 1,953 to 1,277.

Schiavone to Open New Branch.

Joseph Schiavone, founder and former president of the International-Exchange Bank of this city, who has been devoting his time to his steamship and insurance agencies in Washington, yesterday announced the opening of a branch office in Baltimore. He said he had expanded his organization through the establishment of a foreign exchange service dealing directly with the principal countries of Europe. He has also inaugurated an extensive travel service in connection with leading steamship lines.

Freight Claims at Lowest.

Freight claims paid by the railroads in the first six months of 1928 growing out of loss and damage to freight shipments were the lowest for any corresponding period in recent years, according to reports just received from the carriers by the freight claim division of the American Railway Association. Total claims paid in the first half of the year totaled $18,834,897, compared with $19,820,223 for the first six months in 1927 and $19,084,004 for the same period in 1926.

Ice Men at Atlantic City.

Washington ice manufacturers and distributors will be represented tomorrow at the twenty-second annual meeting of the Eastern Ice association at Atlantic City. The organization is representative of ice refrigeration interests in the Seaboard States from New York to Virginia. The welcoming address will be made by Mayor Anthony Ruffu, of Atlantic City, and the convention will continue to Friday, inclusive.

CHICAGO GRAIN.

Chicago, Oct. 22 (A.P.)—Record-breaking visible supplies carried all future deliveries of wheat down today to within a fraction of a cent of bottommost prices yet this season. On the sag, however, previous sellers intent on collecting profits became active buyers of wheat futures, and brought about rallies. Corn advanced, chiefly on account of rains delaying the crop movement.

Closing quotations on wheat were unsettled at the same as Saturday's finish to ⅜c decline, whereas corn was showing ⅜ to ¾c gain, oats were ⅛c off to ⅛c up, and provisions varying from 10c setback to a rise of 35c.

Total domestic stocks of wheat scored an increase today of more than 6,000,000 bu., and the world surplus was estimated as in excess of a billion bushels. Under such circumstances, houses with connections Northwest took early to the selling side of the market and there was a dearth of buying until the December delivery had touched $1.11¾, just ¼c above the season's low price record. The decline was in the face of Liverpool dispatches saying that considerable resistance to declines was becoming evident abroad that Liverpool stocks were being depleted, and that the amount of wheat on ocean passage was much under the total a year ago.

With the Canadian wheat visible supply total showing 10,866,000 by gain today, the combined North American stock in sight is 80,000,000 bushels more than was the case a year back. Besides, additional wheat was being sold today into store here, and indications were for further shipments of Duluth wheat to come here. Meanwhile, export sales today of wheat from North America amounted to only 400,000 bushels after the exact news was out, however, as to the big burden of supplies, the efforts to collect profits for previous sellers proved to be sufficient to overcome almost entirely the day's losses. From the outset, corn displayed an upward trend, but on the price bulges ran against increased selling. Widespread rains, with further downpours looked for tonight hindering the crop movement were emphasized by smallness of receipts today, and by announcement of 100,000 bushels of corn taken today for export. Oats were steadied by corn strength.

Larger receipts of hogs than expected had a bearish effect on most deliveries of provisions.

Curb Review

New York, Oct. 22 (A.P.)—The Curb Market rallied briskly today when call money dropped to 6 per cent after midday for the first time in two weeks, stemming in part a heavy selling movement which developed in the early hours of trading. More than a score of issues were boosted 2 to 11 points to new highs in the third most active day in the history of the market, total sales approximating 1,615,300 shares, just under last Friday's high total.

Borg Warner soared more than 11 points to a new top at 115¾, while Chain Belt jumped more than 8 points to a new peak at 49¾, and Libbey Owens forged ahead 7 points to a new record at 165. Consolidated Retail Stores, Evans Auto Loading, General Cable Warrants, Gorham Manufacturing, International Safety Razor B, Monsanto Chemical, Isaac Silver Brothers, United States and foreign securities, and Williams Oil Heating were among issues climbing 1 to 7 points to new high prices.

Low priced radios were again active, De Forest jumping more than 2 points to within a small fraction of its previous high, then losing part of its gain, in a turnover of 130,000 shares. Canadian Marconi was firm in heavy trading. In contrast, the high priced radios sagged, Grigsby Gruno 9 and Zenith nearly 10 points. Columbia Graphophone was firm in good demand, and Fox Theaters went ahead about 2 points in response to official estimates that recent acquisition of 334 theaters in Greater New York would increase earnings on present capitalization to between $7.50 and $10 a share next year.

Sparks Withington reacted more than 20 points at one time, but reduced its net loss to about 10 points on the rally. Auburn Auto, Bancitaly, Budd Manufacturing, Galesburgh Coulter Disc, Horn & Hardart preferred, Hygrade Food, Neisner Brothers, and Tung Sol Lamp A were among issues receding about 2 to 7 points.

There was some heaviness in the oils, although Standard of Kentucky sold up about 4 points at one time to a new peak at 143¾, and Derby preferred touched its previous high. Standard of Kansas fell more than a point. Mines were irregular, Noranda selling about 4 points higher in good demand at one time, while Phelps Dodge Utilities were inclined to heaviness, although American and foreign power warrants jumped more than 3 points to a new peak

To the Common Stockholders of

Keith-Albee-Orpheum Corporation

Holders of over 40% of the outstanding common stock of Keith-Albee-Orpheum Corporation have entered into an agreement for the organization of a new company to be known as Radio-Keith-Orpheum Corporation, which will issue shares of its class A stock, share for share, for common stock of Keith-Albee-Orpheum Corporation tendered for exchange, and which will also issue 500,000 shares of class B stock in consideration of certain contracts to be made with the new company by Radio Corporation of America, R. C. A. Photophone, Inc., and National Broadcasting Company.

David Sarnoff, Vice President and General Manager of Radio Corporation of America, has accepted the office of chairman of the board of directors of the new company, and Radio Corporation of America will have substantial representation upon the board.

It is contemplated that shares of class A stock of the new company will also be issued, share for share, for capital stock of F. B. O. Productions, Inc., a corporation engaged in the production and distribution of motion pictures, and additional shares of class A stock may be issued for the purposes set forth in the plan.

Copies of the plan containing further details and of the deposit agreement, may be obtained from Empire Trust Company Depositary, 120 Broadway, New York, N. Y.

Holders of common stock of Keith-Albee-Orpheum Corporation desiring to deposit their stock for exchange under the plan, should immediately deliver or forward by registered mail insured their stock certificates to the depositary. Stock certificates should be endorsed in blank for transfer and the endorsement witnessed and guaranteed by a bank. The depositary will issue transferable certificates of deposit. All transfer tax stamps required will be affixed by the committee.

The group of Keith-Albee-Orpheum Corporation stockholders who have entered into the agreement believe that the association of Radio Corporation of America, and its subsidiary, R. C. A. Photophone, Inc. (controlling the photophone devices for the synchronization of sound and motion pictures), and its affiliated company, National Broadcasting Company, with your company through the organization of the new company will create a combination of vaudeville, talking moving pictures and radio with vast possibilities of expansion in the entertainment field. The inclusion of F. B. O. Productions, Inc., will add to the business and established unit for the production and distribution of moving pictures. The undersigned deem the carrying out of the plan exceedingly desirable and beneficial from the standpoint of your company and invite and advise all holders of the common stock of Keith-Albee-Orpheum Corporation to join in exchanging their stock for stock of the new company. Lehman Brothers and Blair & Co., Inc., who are holders of substantial amounts of common stock of Keith-Albee-Orpheum Corporation and have taken an active part in the negotiations for the organization of the new company, have approved and agreed to the plan.

Attention is called to the fact that in order to declare the plan operative, the consent of only 51% of the common stock of Keith-Albee-Orpheum Corporation is necessary and that over 40% of such stock outstanding has already consented. In order to insure participation in the plan and the full benefits thereof stock should be deposited on or before November 15, 1928.

STIFF FIGHT ON GAS PLANTS' VALUATION HINTED AT HEARING

Col. Ladue Questions Item for $30,800 Purifiers, Once Discarded.

EVEN WOLF'S FIGURES ARE CALLED EXCESSIVE

Consideration of Substitute Modern Equipment Held Barred by Law.

Property, the value of which is unofficially estimated in the hundreds of thousands of dollars, has been improperly included by the gas companies in their claims for a higher valuation and will be contested, it was indicated when the gas valuation hearings were resumed before the Public Utilities Commission yesterday.

The point was touched on in the proceedings yesterday, the discussion being precipitated by Col. William B. Ladue, engineer commissioner. He questioned an item of old cast iron purifiers, which Ralph O. Luquer, company engineer, put into the record with a value of $30,800. The colonel wanted to know whether the purifiers were in use and Luquer admitted that the purifiers had been discarded, but now were in use again, explaining that their use reduced the cost of the purifying operation.

Ladue then suggested that undue allowances may have been made for antiquated equipment and inquired whether any consideration had been given to the question of reconstructing the gas plants new with more efficient modern equipment and operation, rather than merely to estimate the replacement cost new of all the present equipment.

Legal Stipulation Cited.

George P. Hoover, one of the atorneys for the gas companies, interjected that the law provided that the inventory and valuation should be based on the reconstruction new of the present plant, and the question of replacement of old equipment or methods with more modern machinery or methods did not enter into the question.

There was a brief discussion of whether all the items advanced by Luqueer were property "used or useful" within the meaning of the utilities law. Comparison of the Luqueer figures and those of H. Carl Wolf, engineer employed by the commission, show that Wolf has challenged items totaling $166,000 included by Luqueer. These, Wolf contends, are not "used or useful" property, and should not be included among the items which go to make up the valuation total.

But these are only a part of the items which have been improperly included, experts say, insisting that Wolf himself has included many items which should not be allowed and which will be challenged later in the hearings in an effort to have them thrown out. Analostan Island, owned by the company, and put into its valuation figures at a much higher figure than the price it paid for it, is such an item. The island was bought as a possible site for additional gas works, but probabilities are that it never will be used for that purpose.

People's Council Reticent.

Considerable attention will be devoted to this phase of the valuation later in the proceedings. Ralph B. Fleharty, people's counsel, however, is reticent on this point, refusing to indicate what his plans are for the development of this aspect of the case. Neither would he make an estimate of the total he expected such improper items would reach.

The hearings got off yesterday to a poor start, despite the abandonment of hearings last week to allow Luquer and Wolf to bring their inventories into direct comparison. There was a wide divergence between the two sets of figures, one engineer including items the other had left out and vice versa, while in other instances the same items had been placed in entirely different classifications.

Swagar Sherley, chief of counsel for the gas companies, refused to accept the comparative statement as evidence, finally agreeing that it should be marked "Exhibit X" and put in the record merely for the information of those who wished to consult it.

The hearings were adjourned at 1 o'clock to permit the commission to hold an afternoon executive session on street car fares. The gas valuation hearings will be resumed at 9:30 o'clock this morning, when Luquer will continue his testimony. The hearings are expected to last several weeks. Should the company's claimed valuation be sustained higher gas rates are almost certain to follow.

His Wife and Landlady Witness Against Man

John W. Weber, a haberdashery salesman, was arraigned in Police Court yesterday on a charge of threatening his landlady, Mrs. Josephine Jenkins, with physical violence. Weber's wife appeared as a witness against him. Judge John P. McMahon withheld sentence in the case pending the outcome of a probation officer's investigation into Weber's record.

Mrs. Jenkins testified that Weber became enraged and threatened her after she had ejected two young men lodgers from her boarding house at 327 East Capitol street, because they had ordered liquor delivered to their rooms. Mrs. Weber corroborated the landlady's testimony.

NEGLIGENCE FOUND IN ELEVATOR DEATH

ESTERLINE WAS VICTIM

Either the Federal Government, as lessee of the building at Vermont avenue and K street northwest, occupied by the Department of Justice, or the Wardman Construction Co., as owner of the building, is responsible for the death of Blackburn Esterline, 51-year-old assistant to the solicitor general, who fell six stories down an elevator shaft in the building Sunday.

The coroner's jury, which, yesterday, conducted an inquest, ruled that Esterline came to his death because of the failure of some party or parties unknown to provide proper and legal safety devices on the elevator doors. The doors were not equipped with the device which would automatically stop the elevator if one of the doors was open.

A law passed in 1925 requires that elevator doors shall be so equipped At the time of passage of the law according to evidence at the inquest, the Wardman company took up with the Bureau of Public Buildings and Public Parks the question of responsibility of equipping the doors to comply with the law. Wardman lawyers held that it was the duty of the Federal Government. Twice, once in 1926 and once this year, the public buildings and public parks office has been notified by the District Government that the locks had not been installed, Joseph M. Brown, chief elevator inspector for the District, testified at the coroner's hearing.

It was testified that Esterline on Sunday rang the bell to signal the elevator. He is then believed to have peered through the open door, being struck by the descending elevator.

Girl Smells Smoke, Saves Sleeping Kin

Detective Varney's Family, Sister, Visitor, Menaced by $2,000 Blaze.

Miss Mary Varney, sister of Headquarters Detective Frank A. Varney, probably owes her life to her 9-year-old niece, Olive Varney.

About 3 o'clock yesterday morning, Olive smelled smoke when she suddenly awakened in the Varney home, 3017 Channing street northwest. She called her mother, who was asleep on the first floor of the house, and mother and daughter traced the smoke to its source. They found that it was coming from Miss Varney's room on the second floor.

Forcing their way into the room, Mrs. Varney and Olive aroused Miss Varney and then led two younger children, Jacqueline, 7 years old, and "Buddy," 5, to safety. A call to headquarters brought Varney and an engine company, members of which turned in a regular alarm when they arrived on the scene. Damage amounted to $2,000. Miss Varney, who is visiting her brother, had a fire in the fireplace of her room. The blaze was attributed to a defective flue. Firemen had to cut away both the inside and outside walls to reach the fire.

Auto Hurled Against Light Pole; Three Hurt

Three persons were injured early yesterday and an electric light pole was broken when two automobiles crashed at Vermont avenue and S street northwest. The injured were Wolf Seigel, 54 years old, and Rebecca Seigel, 48, both of 806 E street southwest, and Grover C. Connor, 32, 6201 Seventh street northwest. They were treated at Freedmen's Hospital for bruises and cuts.

According to the police report, the car driven by Seigel was thrown against the electric light pole, snapping it, following the collision with Conner's machine. Seigel was going east on S street and Conner was coming down Vermont avenue.

ATTEMPTED HOLDUP IS LAID TO PRISONER

Suspicious Actions of Man in Store Bring Arrest; Had No Pistol.

DEMANDED CASH, CHARGE

Suspicious actions by a man giving his name as Herman George Chapin, of 5409 Thirty-ninth street northwest, while in the store of Irving Sirota, at 237 G street northwest, yesterday resulted in his arrest on a charge of attempted robbery.

Chapin is reported to have entered the store and asked for a package of cigarettes and a soda. After getting both he stuck his hand in his pocket and is said to have ordered Sorota to hand over some money. When the money was placed on the counter Chapin then told Sirota to keep the money.

A customer entered at this point in the proceedings. While the customer was being waited on by a clerk Sorota went to his prescription room and called the police. Upon his return to the main part of the drug store Chapin had left.

Sirota, however, found him standing out in the street hailing automobiles, it was said. Finally Chapin hailed a machine driven by M. I. Bridges, policeman of the Seventh Precinct, who placed the man under arrest. At the precinct Chapin was examined, but no weapon was found on him.

Gleason, of 302 Rhode Island avenue northeast, who charged he was injured while undergoing treatments for bronchial asthma from the defendant.

On January 27, Gleason declared, he retained Dr. Shippel to treat him for the ailment. As a result of treatments, including massaging by electrical and mechanical device, and of exposure to cold and low temperatures after sweating processes, Gleason declared, he was injured about the back, spine, heart, liver and lungs. Attorney Charles Baker and Benjamin L. Tepper appeared for Gleason.

Flier Lays Crash to Man Who Grabbed Controls

Atlantic City, Oct. 22 (N. Y. W. N. S.) George Edward King, 34 years old, of Mineola, Long Island, pilot of the all-metal passenger plane of the Junkers Co. of America, which crashed here Thursday night causing the death of a prominent banker, today signed a statement for the police in which he asserted he did not know whether the dead man caused the accident by interfering with the plane controls, and also that the dead banker did cause the accident, in his opinion, by such interference.

The statement containing the strangely contradictory assertions was made by King in his bed at the Atlantic City Hospital to a stenographer and before the police. It was then typewritten and read to him, after which King signed the document which was witnessed by Robert J. Furnello, of the police accident bureau here.

EXPERT SEES SAFE DIRIGIBLE MOORING AT GRAVELLY POINT

Starr Truscott, of National Advisory Committee, Says Airport Is Ample.

225-FOOT MAST COST IS PLACED AT $75,000

Tells Board of Trade Group Field for Planes and Ships Is Practical.

While Gravelly Point may not be suitable to house transatlantic dirigibles, there is no reason why it could not be utilized as a terminal for passengers and freight for airliners by installing a mooring mast at the south end of the field, Starr Truscott, lighter-than-air expert of the National Advisory Committee for Aeronautics, yesterday told the committee on aviation of the Board of Trade.

Truscott said he saw no reason why facilities for rigid airships need ruin the field for a model airport, stating that the large airship hangars, or sheds, are used as "dirydocks" to repair the craft. These, he said, could be constructed several miles outside of Washington, where land is cheap.

However, if a mooring mast is to be located on Gravelly Point it should be placed at the south end of the field, Truscott said, with sufficient free space in its vicinity for safe moorings. He stated about 1,000 feet on each side should be unobstructed.

The mooring mast, he continued, was sufficient for handling passengers and freight, and it had already been shown that airships moored to them had safely ridden out storms. He said a mast should be about 225 feet high and about 20 feet in diameter, with elevators in the center for passengers and freight and a gallery on the top for passengers to enter the nose of the ship.

He suggested that the mooring mast could be combined into the control tower of the airport. A mast, suitable for big dirigibles would cost about $75,000 fully equipped, he estimated.

Truscott praised the Gravelly Point site for an airport, saying it was unusually fine for land and sea planes and was of the opinion it could be so developed that it would be unrivaled in this country or abroad. He added if the mooring mast was to be installed the field should be developed in two sections 3,000 feet square. The northern section to be used for land and sea planes, and the south end for dirigibles.

Concluding his remarks, Truscott predicted it would be five years before there was regular transatlantic airship travel and said he believed a line between the United States and Panama would pay before an overseas line.

Capital to Be Link In Air-Rail Service

5 Countries to Be Connected by New York-Porto Rico Route.

Washington will be one of the main links in a direct air and rail transport service extending from New York to Cuba and the West Indies.

Service will be established January 1 by the Atlantic Coast Line Railroad, the Florida East Coast Railway and the Pan-American Airways, Inc. The system will operate through five countries, providing a fast de luxe passenger and mail service from New York and Washington to Havana, through Cuba, Haiti and the Dominican Republic to San Juan and Porto Rico.

According to plans announced yesterday, passengers will board the Atlantic Coast Line Palmetto Limited in New York at 7:10 o'clock in the evening and at Washington shortly after midnight, arriving at Miami via the Florida East Coast Railway at 7:15 o'clock the second morning. The train will be met by Pan-American Airways motor cars and passengers will be transported to the company's airport. Within 45 minutes they will board Pan-American air liners and arrive at Havana two hours and fifteen minutes later. The service is the first step to establish a direct transport line connecting the three Americas.

Wife Drops Charge Against Tavenner

Pledge Not to Molest Her by Former Representative Is Accepted.

Former Representative Clyde Tavenner, of Illinois, yesterday made a promise to refrain from molesting his estranged wife, Mrs. Isabel Tavenner, in the future and a charge of threats, lodged by the wife against him, was dropped in Police Court.

Mr Tavenner and his wife appeared in the office of Assistant District Attorney Joseph Bruce for a preliminary hearing of the charge and the former congressional representative made the promise Mrs. Tavenner declared that the promise was satisfactory to her and Assistant District Attorney Bruce nolle prossed the charge.

Armed with a warrant, sworn out by Mrs. Tavenner, police arrested Mr. Tavenner at his home, 1801 Belmont road northwest, on Saturday. Tavenner declared at that time that he was ignorant of making any threat against his estranged wife. Mr. and Mrs. Tavenner were married 16 years ago and became estranged on September 13. Mrs. Tavenner, after moving, requested part of the furniture, but the husband refused the request and declared that he had done so in the hope that a reconciliation might be effected.

UNFULFILLED ITEMS IN OLD SCHOOL PLAN IGNORED IN NEW ONE

Superintendent Says 5-Year Program Deficiencies Still May Be Met.

CONSTRUCTION PARLEY SCHEDULED FOR TODAY

Education Officials to Study Recommendations Made by Civic Societies.

None of the building items authorized in the first five-year school building program which have failed to be included in appropriation bills will be included in the second five-year program, initial preparation of which will be undertaken today by school officers and members of the legislative committee of the Board of Education, according to an announcement yesterday by Dr Frank W. Ballou, superintendent of schools.

Dr. Ballou, Daniel J. Donovan, District auditor, and members of the board concur in the belief that unfulfilled authorizations in the original five-year building program may be expected to materialize despite the fact that Congress originally intended that relief planned in the five-year program should be complete by June 30, 1930.

"There is nothing in the bill authorizing the first five-year building program that says its authorizations shall become inoperative at the end of the fiscal year, 1930," Dr. Ballou said.

If their interpretation of the bill is correct, officials feel that fulfillment of the authorizations in the original five-year program, which at the present time is but 57 per cent complete, will go a long way toward relieving the present ills of the public school system.

Scores of letters have been received by the Board of Education members from various community organizations recommending for inclusion in the new building program certain items deemed imperative to relieve conditions in the communities which the associations represent. These recommendations will be given serious consideration by the officials in their consideration of the new program, Dr. Ballou said.

SURPLUS WINS PRAISE OF FEDERATION LEADER

Clayton Wants Trolley Firms Merged; Georgetown Acts on Incinerator.

A. J. Driscoll, one of the founders of the Midcity Citizens Association, was reelected president of the organization for his seventeenth consecutive term by a unanimous vote last night. By the same ballot, all other officers of the association were elected to succeed themselves in office.

William McK. Clayton, chairman of the committee on public utilities of the Federation of Citizens Associations, the principal speaker at the meeting, complimented Driscoll on his successful administration and declared his surprise to learn that the citizens' group has a cash balance of more than $700 in its treasury. "That's a revelation to me. Most associations of this character are continually struggling with a deficit," Clayton said.

Clayton brought up the street car fare discussion by pointing out alleged discriminatory charges for transportation to various sections of the city. He declared that some points can be reached by the payment of an eight cent or token fare, while other places, a shorter distance from the heart of the city, cost a larger amount.

"Good" Merger Proposed.

Merger might remedy the situation, he said, but the form of merger that was recently proposed was described by him as a "hardboiled company's merger. It was not a square deal," Clayton said.

Meeting at the Potomac Bank Hall last night, the Georgetown Citizens Association went on record as approving the choice of a site at Thirty-third and Water streets for the new refuse incinerator plant, with the provision that the plant shall not be used for the assembly on destruction of garbage.

The action was taken after Maj. Donald A. Davison, Assistant Engineer Commissioner, assured those present that the plant would be odorless and no detriment to the plans of the Park and Planning Commission for a park at the end of the Key Bridge.

Of the proposed fare increase under consideration at the behest of local traction companies, Clayton told the Mid-City Association that it is unlikely to be put in effect at this time.

Cites Reserve Funds.

"Nothing could be worse than to raise street car fares at this time," he said. Company earnings and reserve funds were discussed at length by the speaker, who said that the Capital Traction Co. has a surplus of one and a quarter million dollars, while the Washington Railway & Electric Co. has six million.

All of this money came from fares paid by street car riders, the speaker asserted. Clayton also touched on the earnings of other public utilities, saying that no more financially healthy concerns can be found than the telephone, gas, electric light and street car companies of this city.

Another matter taken up at the meeting was the application of Miss Rose Dowling for rezoning of a house owned by her near the corner of Thirteenth and M streets northwest. It was pointed out that an injustice to the owner is being worked by the failure of the zoning commission to classify the property in the first commercial zone, although it is next door to a gasoline station classed as such.

The existence of an undesirable store in the neighborhod of the Thomas School was called to the attention of the association by W. H. Richardson and was ordered referred to the committe on police.

New Envoy From Japan Sees Secretary Kellogg

Katsuji Debuchi, newly appointed Japanese Ambassador to the United States, yesterday called formally upon Secretary of State Kellogg on the return of the latter to his desk after a few days absence from the Capital. The conference between the Japanese envoy and Secretary Kellogg was private, but it was made known at the conclusion of the interview that Ambassador Debuchi shortly will present his credentials to President Coolidge, thus formally assuming his post here.

Ambassador Debuchi arrived in Washington last Wednesday with members of his family, succeeding Ambassador Tsuneo Matsudaira, who has been transferred to London. Setsuzo Sawada, who has been charge d'affaires of the Japanese Embassy, has resumed his duties as counselor of the embassy.

Capital to Stage Voteless Observance Election Day

Election day will be taken as an occasion here to call attention to the voteless condition of residents of the National Capital, under plans devised yesterday by the joint committee on national representation at a meeting at the Washington Chamber of Commerce.

The committee decided to hold a city-wide demonstration on November 6, while the millions of voters throughout the States are going to the polling places to register their choice for officials.

According to a report of Frederic William Wile, chairman of the committee on publicity, the plight of hapless Washingtonians will be demonstrated by the press, radio, airplane, and placing of ballot boxes throughout the city draped in deepest mourning. In addition, a float bedecked in black crepe will go through the city as reminder to citizens that they are politically dead, as far as the ballot is concerned.

A feature will be staged by society girls, who will fly over the city and drop balloons inscribed with a national representation slogan. The committee, however, is not to wait for election day to start the proceedings. A few days hence talks are to be made over radio stations, WRC and WMAL, to the people for national representation, and the campaign will reach its climax on election day. "Voteless Washington" slides are also to be shown in motion-picture houses.
